

FLARES AND FLICKERS

Thursday is get-away day for that sparkling comedy, "The Husband Hunter," at the Grand. It features the beautiful star Eileen Percy, formerly with Doug Fairbanks. The story relates the experiences of a young girl who decides to marry a man she never has seen, and develops situations that are uproariously mirthful from start to finish. Its concluding climax is a most amusing surprise.

"Blackbirds" is one of the most exciting and breathless photographs ever shown at the Oregon. From the day that the Countess Leona sidetracks the Paris police by Douglas Mac Lean in his new Paramount picture, "The Jailbird," which is to be the feature attraction at the Oregon theater today.

Clancy starts in jail, dishonest, but makes an effort to be honest. But circumstances and his crooked instincts are against him and the prospective profits from an illegal oil deal promise to lure him from the straight and narrow path. Just as he is about to put through his crooked deal along comes Fate, in the guise of love and sets him squarely back in the center of the path, with a sweet little bride-to-be as an incentive for him to stay there.

"The Jailbird" is jammed full of clever comedy situations and is a fitting sequel to the former pictures which have been the means of elevating Mac Lean to stardom. The story, which was written by Julien Josephson, was directed by Lloyd Ingraham. Bert Cannan was the photographer. Doris May plays opposite the star.

One of the most exciting moments in "Girl of the Sea" is the combat between a diver and an Octopus, in which the honors go to the diver. The pictures were taken under the sea by the Submarine Film Company. They are unique and instructive as well as highly entertaining and thrilling. At Ye Liberty today.

Katherine MacDonald, generally termed the "world's most beautiful woman," will be seen in a strong society drama, when "The Beauty Market," her latest production, is shown at the Liberty theatre commencing Thursday.

Lieutenant Ormar Locklear at the Grand today and tomorrow, in his last picture, "The Skywayman."

In a thrilling story of the half-world that is said to offer him immense opportunities for his best work, George Walsh, the athletic William Fox star, will be seen at the Grand theater next Tuesday and Wednesday in "From Now On." This is a picturization of the successful story by Frank L. Packard, author of "The Miracle Man," and from advance reports young Walsh, in his new vehicle, will surprise even his most devoted fans.

Tom Mix in "The Untamed," at the Grand theater next Saturday.

"The Skywayman" is a story of life and thrills above the clouds. At the Grand today and tomorrow.

Wallace Reid's next picture has been released and will be shown at the Oregon next Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. "Always Audacious" is the title, and it is said to surpass anything he has yet made.

When William Farnum, as Francois Villon, recites before the disgraced King his poem, "If Villon Were the King of France."

When Villon sees Katherine de Vaucelles praying in the chapel which he and his cronies are robbing. The capture of Villon for throwing a poem over the royal wall into the lap of Lady Katherine.

The duel in the darkened tavern between Villon and the Grand Constable, as Lady Katherine and the king looked on.

Farrell and Hatch, arrayed in evening dress these boys indulge in nicely blended harmony singing, offering original compositions. At the Bligh today.

A whole menagerie of trained animals is used effectively in "The Stage Hand," the Larry Semon picture.

BITS FOR BREAKFAST

It's Harding and Coolidge—And it is Stanfield in Oregon. This means a business revival—All over the country, and the world—And Oregon and this coast will feel it stronger than any other part of the country or the world.

It means protection to our arms and our factories, and work at good wages for all who are willing to work.

It means government bonds at par and above; and stable business conditions, with widening markets for American goods carried by American ships.

It means a period of the greatest growth and expansion ever seen in this or any other country, with the highest range of individual opportunity for all our people ever known.

It means hope for the world, peace for the world, under American leadership and with American participation in the healing of the wounds of the war.

It means a forward looking time, but with our feet on the ground.

With good wishes for all concerned, and with an idea that there is room for all in a reorganized and harmonious and well directed force, the Bits for Breakfast man thinks Mr. Moffitt is the best fitted man for making the Salem police force efficient, and that there will be no cause for regrets if he is elected city marshal.

The Rexall stores straw vote in Oregon to date is 7897 for Harding and 4554 for Cox. That is about the way it will run in the returns from Oregon. The wonder is that in this state Cox could get as many votes—seeing that his party is against every single interest Oregonians have in any possible way.

BETTING IS TABOOED.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—A letter by Romeyn Barry, graduate manager of athletics at Cornell, asking the student body to refrain from betting on the Cornell-Dartmouth game in New York on November 6, was published here today. Manager Barry asserted that crookedness in betting on professional baseball games, recently exposed, threatens to be duplicated in inter-collegiate sports and intimates that a group of professional gamblers may be endeavoring to obtain "easy money" from undergraduates.
