Distinguish Service Medals Pinned on Eleven Officers by Daniels

13 MEDALS OF HONOR

More Than 2500 Decorations Awarded Navy and Marine Members

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—While officers and men of the navy and marine corps throughout the world were receiving today decorations won by distinguished war-time service, Secretary Daniels personally presented similar rewards to officers on duty at the navy department.

Mr. Daniels pinned the distinguished service medal on the tunics of the following officers:

Admiral Robert E. Coontz, chief of naval operations; Rear Admiral Thomas Washington, Charles to release the depth charges before the torpedo could reach the ship.

David E. Hayden, hospital apprentice, navy, who at Thiacourt, braved an open field swept by machine gun fire to dress the wounds of a fallen comrade, then brought the wounded man back to safety.

Lieut. Commander E. V. M. Isaacs, navy, captured by the German submarine which sank the transport President Lincoln, and while confined in a prison camp obtained information so important that he determined to escape and jumped through the window of a rapidly moving train. Recaptured, he made a second successful attempt, "deliberately drawing the fire of the armed guards in the hope of permitting others to escape during the confusion," and finally swam the river Rhine during the night.

A. G. Lyle, dental surgeon, navy, who administered "such effective surgical aid" under fire during a bombardment as to save the life of a wounded soldier.

Lieut. Commander J. J. Madison, naval reserve force, commander of the transport Triconderoga, sunk by a submarine after prolonged resistance directed by the wounded officer from a chair.

Lieut. W. E. Osborne, medical corps, navy, killed while carrying back wounded under fire at Bourges, France.

Lieut. Orlando H. Petty, medical corps, R. F., who was knocked to the ground by a gas shell which tore his mask at the Belleau Wood fight, "but discarded the mask and courageously continued his work" of caring for the wounded.

sergeant, marine corps, an observer in the marine aviation force, whose plane and one other became separated from their formation during a raid and were attacked by 12 enemy scouts. In the fighting he fought off the enemy until he collapsed from three bullet wounds.

Ensign Daniel A. J. Sullivan, R. F., who flung himself on loose depth bombs on the deck of the United States steamship Christobol during a fight and succeeded in securing them, saving the ship from disaster.

Lieut. Ralph Talbot, marine corps, Robinson's companion in the air battle and who, after the observer's collapse, shot down the nearest enemy scout, "and then with his observer unconscious and his motor failing," dived back across the German lines at an altitude of only 50 feet, took his comrade to a hospital and returned alone to his airdrome.

Letters of appreciation also were forwarded to 261 officers who served in the naval overseas transportation service for assisting in "making possible worthy achievements of the navy in the war."

The lists of awards did not differ from that announced by Secretary Daniels last winter, prior to the investigation by the senate, except that 491 were added to receive medals. In no case was a revision made downward.

marine. Those to receive this highest award for valor were:

Lieut. J. T. Boone, medical corps, navy, "for extraordinary heroism" in treating wounded in France. Although the dressing station was twice wrecked by shells, the citation said, the officer "continued without cessation his treatment of the wounded."

Ensign Charles H. Hamman, naval reserve, who piloted a seaplane in a patrol which dropped propaganda on Pola, and when a comrade was shot down, landed on the water and rescued the pilot of the wrecked plane.

John Henry Balch, pharmacist's mate, navy, who fearlessly aided wounded under fire at Verzier as they fell in the attack, voluntarily keeping up the work "for 16 hours on a field torn by shell and machine gun fire."

O. K. Ingram, gunner's mate, navy, of the torpedoed destroyer Cassin, who was killed while try-

Coke

What Is It?

—It consists principally of the carbon content or portion of coal.

How Is It Made?

- It is made by baking or roasting coal in silica clay ovens that are heated to 2,500 degrees.
- This high temperature drives out of the coal all of the oils and greases that make coal so dirty and disagreeable to handle.
- These oils are vaporized as they come out of the coal, and form the gas which is pumped out of the ovens, cleaned, purified and sent out to your home through pipes.
- More about the story of Coke tomorrow.
