

SOCIETY

BY MOLLY BRUNK

FORMING a symphony of color as well as sound, in their dark-toned garments, the Salem symphony orchestra appeared in its first concert this season, before a delighted audience at the armory last night. That the event was of more than local interest and importance was proven by the representatives from valley towns present. Motor loads of music-lovers came to Salem from Woodburn, Silverton, Monmouth, Independence, Dallas, Aumsville, and even Brownsville.

Just before the concert Dr. John R. Sites, director of the orchestra said: "If the patronage of this concert proves sufficient they will be made subscription affairs hereafter, with associate members, and it will only be necessary to secure a membership of four or five hundred to put the organization on a financial basis."

The orchestra was convincing in the possibilities locally, and the work was a revelation to many. It is not doubted that Dr. Site's dream of an orchestra of 75 members will be realized in Salem.

Celebrating the seventeenth birthday anniversary of Miss Margaret Pierce, daughter of A. N. Pierce, manager of the Hotel Marion, was the ten-cover dinner in the hotel dining room Saturday night. A novel decorative effect was obtained with tiny balloons and serpentine in rainbow colors. Dancing followed the dinner.

Guests bidden were: Miss Mabel Ackerman, Miss Marie Churchill, Miss Helen Seely, Miss Alice McClellan, Ivan Jones, Frank Chapman, Milton Steiner, Frank Deckbach and Asel Eoff.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ridgell of Detroit, Ore., have returned to their home after visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Charles O. Wilson.

Awards in the poster contest conducted by the Salem Public library last week went to Miss Margaret Stolz, first; Miss Lucille Jones, second; Miss Georgia Williams and Miss Hazel Salisbury who tied for third honors.

All contestants were Salem high school students, and the awards were based on idea, artistic execution and general poster qualities. There were 15 posters in all, and the judging was very difficult as all were of unusual excellence.

The contest was put on with the motive in mind of fostering the owning and reading of good books in the home. Others represented were Thelma Birdwell, Vera Kozar, Cora A. Nist, Hope Güler, Gwendolyn Hallin, Mabel E. Marcus, Ella Aspinwall, Donna Walker, Adeline Craven, Claude Palmer, Catherine Smith.

F. building Friday night of the same week, a tree and appropriate program to be the features. The heads of the three committees in charge are Mrs. C. G. Nichols, Miss Wilma Sigmund and Mrs. Perry Hubbard.

Friday afternoon of this week the club will be entertained by Mrs. Carlo Engstrom, at her home on the corner of Union and Capital streets.

Mrs. W. W. Emmons returned yesterday from a week-end trip to Portland.

RECOMMENDED TO SCHOOL CHILDREN

This is the season when children are subject to croup, colds and coughs. Rena C. Marchand, 36 Lawrence St., Salem, Mass., writes: "I used Foley's Honey and Tar with good results. I had a very bad cold and it gave me relief at once, so I recommend it to every child that goes to school." This standard, low priced medicine loosens and clears mucus and phlegm, checks strangling coughing, makes easy breathing, soothes and heals raw, inflamed membranes, and stops tickling in throat. Sold everywhere.

ARMENIAN GIRL PREFERS TURK

Many Armenians Taken In to Captive Refuse to Leave Turkey

SAMSOUN, Asia Minor, Dec. 4. —Entente and American officials and relief workers entrusted with the task of restoring Armenian girls and women to their families have found that many of the girls who were in the war were forcibly taken into harems and became the involuntary wives of the Turks and Arabs preferred to continue as Turkish wives, and were unwilling to leave their husbands. They feared the hardships of life among fellow countrymen who knew of their servitude. Some of the girls became attached to their foreign husbands and said they liked the life into which they had fallen. Where the girls had children the problem was doubly hard. The lot of some of the educated women and girls was much more pitiable than that of those who had enjoyed no advantages. American women relief workers found one case in Central Turkey especially perplexing. A girl who was graduated from one of the American mission colleges was taken captive in the early part of the war. A prominent Turkish official whose only wife had recently died took the Armenian girl into his home. His mother and children became much attached to the girl, whose superior education made her an important member of the community. The Turk was very influential and through the influence of the young Armenian, saved Armenian refugees from persecution. He proposed to the girl and she finally married him. When the relief workers went to the Turkish home to find whether the young bride desired to freed from her husband, there was consternation in the house. The Turk and his mother and children were devoted to the girl and begged the Americans not to force her to leave. The young wife had one child.

Fun and Melodrama In New Ince Picture

Tears vie with smiles in the story of "Homespun Folks." Thomas H. Ince's tremendous triumph for the Associated Producers, Inc., which will be shown at the Oregon theatre soon. Perhaps in no American-made photoplay of recent years has there been such a vast wealth of appeal, combining human interest, comedy and melodrama. The new Ince picture contains heart throbs, romance and pathos, in addition to numerous comedy touches.

It tells of a country lawyer's fight against crooked politics, and as a modern picture of small town life holds the mirror truthfully to the real thing. These are the high lights of "Homespun Folks"—its realism, its truth and its simple honesty. The characters are real, the plot is a story of human people and the direction is chock full of master touches.

Lloyd Hughes, as the young district attorney with a conscience, takes a definite step upward in his screen career, breadth and scope being apparent in his characterization. Two remarkably lifelike old country codgers are played by Charles H. Malles and Al H. Filson. Gladys George is the heroine.

the Armenian wife privately and told her they would not insist upon her leaving if she wanted to stay. She told them she could not leave her child; that the Turk had been kind to her and she felt that by remaining in the village as the wife of its most prominent official she could be of greater assistance to Armenians than in any other way. The Turkish husband and his family were overjoyed when the Americans told them they would not take the girl away. He promised he would not take another wife and gave the Americans rugs and other gifts as an expression of appreciation. Aches and Pains of rheumatism are not permanently, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies. Why not use an internal remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and cures the disease?
