

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

The Story of a Honeymoon

A Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON

CHAPTER 763

WHY IS LILLIAN SO APPREHENSIVE OF MADGE'S SAFETY?

"Madge! At this hour! What has happened?" Lillian's voice, staccato, disturbed, came over the wire to the telephone booth at the Pennsylvania station from which I had called her as soon as the "midnight train" which I had taken arrived there. I reflected whimsically that I ought to be flattered to be able to disturb Lillian's almost bomb-proof peace.

"Nothing special has happened, dear," I hastened to assure her, "only I thought it best to get this train in."

"Of course you're coming right over," she asserted, then after a moment in which I almost fancied I could feel her anxiety transmitting itself to me across the telephone wires, she shot a pregnant question at me:

"Are you sure you weren't followed?"

"Positive."

Another moment's pause, then with the air of finality which always accompanies Lillian's decisions, she spoke again.

"I don't dare let you come over in just any taxi—tell me why when you get here. Now listen carefully. If I can get hold of the man who brought you to the station before and home again—you remember him, don't you?"

"Perfectly," I replied laconically. Could I ever forget that trip to Craigie Manor, and the exciting interview with Allen Drake which was staged there?

A Vague Irritation.

"That's all right, then," a note of satisfaction in her voice. "I'll send him. But if I can't get hold of him I'll find another of our operatives and come after you myself."

"Will that be necessary?" I asked, loath to put Lillian to so much trouble, although I might have spared myself the question.

"Absolutely," she returned. "Now please stay right in the

CUT THIS OUT—IT IS WORTH MONEY

Cut out this slip, enclose with 5c and mail it to Foley & Co., 2835 Sheffield Ave., Chicago, Ill., writing your name and address clearly. You will receive in return a trial package containing Foley's Honey and Tar Compound for coughs, colds and croup; Foley Kidney Pills for pains in sides and back; rheumatism backache, kidney and bladder ailments and Foley Cathartic Tablets, a wholesome and thoroughly cleansing cathartic for constipation, biliousness, headache, and sluggish bowels. Sold everywhere.

Long Island waiting room, don't cross over to the Penn side, and I'll be there or send the man as quickly as possible. Good-by."

The receiver went up with a click as decided as the voice of Lillian herself. I could visualize the swift efficient movements with which she was going about the business of getting me to her home in safety. I felt grateful, of course, for her care for me, but I was nervous enough to be vaguely irritated as well. It piqued me to have Lillian assume, as she always did, that I needed safeguards thrown around me, and I wondered if my own wits wouldn't have been sufficiently sharp to enable me to traverse the short distance from the station to Lillian's home without these elaborate precautions.

Who Is The Man?

But there was no use wasting time in annoying speculation, so I went to the news stand, bought my favorite magazine, and was soon deep in an absorbingly interesting description of the base hospitals in France.

I always lose track of time when I read, so that when I finished the article and glanced at my wrist watch—the trick one, in which was concealed the precious paper I was guarding—I was surprised that a half-hour had elapsed since I'd telephoned Lillian. I knew that I might expect her any moment, so I closed the magazine, put it in my small traveling bag, and sat in readiness to greet her.

Another five minutes, and then I noticed a young man in chauffeur's costume come down the stairs from the upper level and look searchingly over the people in the big room. He walked along, scanning each face, and I saw him speak respectfully to three women about my age and size. I could see that each answered him in the negative, and finally he stopped beside me.

"Pardon me, madam," he said, and his voice had an English accent so exaggerated that it almost smacked of the stage, "are you Mrs. Graham?"

"Why do you ask?" I returned frigidly, on my guard in an instant.

"Mrs. Underwood, Mrs. Lillian Underwood," he repeated precisely, "requested me to find a Mrs. Graham, who was to be in this waiting room at this time and to bring her to her home."

"I am Mrs. Graham, certainly," I admitted, reassured, but puzzled. "But Mrs. Underwood was to come after me herself."

"I know," deferentially. "But she was prevented. She asked me to give you this."

He took from his pocket a sealed envelope. As I tore it open I recognized both envelope and the monogrammed paper within as coming from Lillian's well equipped stationery cabinet. And the handwriting of the brief note was undeniably that of my friend.

"If Madame will please hurry in the reading," urged the chauffeur in a low voice. "Mrs. Underwood advised against delaying long in this room."

SAYS IT FIRST AND SAYS IT LAST

Carrie G. Harren, 319 Nicholson St., Norfolk, Va., writes: "I'll tell anybody that Foley's Honey and Tar is all right. It did me all the good, I said it first and I'll say it last." Thousands of bottles of this reliable remedy were bought last week by careful mothers so as to be prepared to check coughs, colds and croup at the beginning. It acts almost instantly, cuts phlegm, soothes raw, irritated membranes, stops tickling in throat. Sold everywhere.

While riding on a train one day I saw a man wearing handcuffs. Beside him sat his wife. Soon she said to him, "John, shall I bring the children down to see you electrocuted?"

The man looked astonished and said, "You ought to be ashamed of yourself suggesting such a thing." "That's just like you," she remonstrated; "you never did want the children to enjoy themselves."—Science and Invention.

Wireless Telegraph to Serve Farmers is Plan

WASHINGTON, Dec. 4.—The wireless telegraph as a means of carrying to the farmers agricultural market news such as prices and conditions is to be tested by the department of agriculture in co-operation with the bureau of standards. The experiment is to be tried in half a dozen Maryland and Virginia counties adjacent to the District of Columbia and if successful will be extended over the country.

The plans contemplate the eventual use of 17 wireless stations over the country. The wireless news of market conditions and prices will be sent broadcast and arrangements will be made with numerous private licensed operators who would aid in distributing the reports to farmers and others interested in the territory covered.

Present plans for the system provide for the use of 10 wireless stations with a 250-mile radius. Eight in the east where market centers are more numerous and closer together, and two in the far west; two 300-mile radius stations to reach the outlying points of Maine and New York, to be located in the northeastern part of the country, and five 500-mile radius stations west of the Mississippi river.

Each of the distributing radio stations would be connected with

THIS MONTH AND CATARRH

Many people find that during this month, catarrh is so aggravated by sudden changes of weather, indiscretions in the matter of clothing, and other things, that it becomes constantly troublesome.

There is abundant proof that catarrh is a constitutional disease. It is related to scrofula and consumption, being one of the wasting diseases. Hood's Sarsaparilla has shown what that what is capable of eradicating scrofula, also relieves catarrh, and aids in the prevention of consumption.

It is not easy to see how any sufferer can put off taking this medicine, in view of the widely published record of its remarkable successes. It is called by its proprietors America's Greatest Medicine for America's Greatest Disease—Catarrh.

In some cases there is occasionally need of a thorough cathartic or gentle laxative, and in these cases Hood's Pills are taken with very satisfactory results.

the Washington headquarters and other distributing stations by leased telegraph wires of the present market news service of the department and twice a day would receive for immediate release by wireless a summarized report of market conditions and quotations at the principal market centers and shipping points. Detailed reports of market conditions in the immediate territory served would also be released, as well as crop and weather reports issued by the department of agriculture. Scorchington—Hello, Clatterby. Say—, ha, ha!—have you heard the last Ford joke? Clatterby—Well, I hope so.
