Harding Asks Full Measure of Cooperation in Educational, Religious and Physical Training of Children

WELFARE AGENCIES TO BE KEPT DEMOCRATIC

President-elect Will Confer With Governor Coolidge Today

MARION, O., Dec. 15.—American mothers were asked by President-elect Harding tonight to give to school officials and other public servants, a full measure of cooperation in the educational, religious and physical training of children.

Home Spirit Must Revive

Speaking before a senate meeting of the Child Conservation League, Mr. Harding declared it the duty of motherhood to keep the old time home spirit alive in spite of the growing tendency to entrust the instruction of the child almost wholly to public institutions.

The president-elect also asked that the public welfare agencies of the nation be kept democratic and expressed disapproval of the practice of the rich in withdrawing their children from the public schools and entering them in private institutions.

Harding Spends Busy Day

The address was delivered at the Methodist Episcopal church here at one o'clock. Mr. Harding's business days since he began his consultations on an association of nations and other public problems. His callers included Raymond Robins of Chicago, a former leader of the Progressive party, Senator A. B. Fall of New Mexico, and George Fred Williams, a former American minister to Greece, and the conference was understood to have covered many foreign and domestic questions.

Peace Tangle To Be Unraveled

Confidence of an acceptable solution of the peace tangle was expressed by Senator Fall, who said after the conference that he believed the president-elect's consultations here were progressing toward a peace plan that would permit America to regain world leadership.
