The Story of a Honeymoon

Wonderful Romance of Married Life Wonderfully Told by ADELE GARRISON

REVELATIONS OF A WIFE ...

CHAPTER 779 WHAT MADGE ARRANGED FOR LILLIAN'S DAUGHTER OVER THE LONG DISTANCE PHONE.

"Number?" Central droned the word sleeply, almost resentfully. It was long past midnight, but I seated at Lillian's desk telephone behind the locked doors of her won-little Marion during the inevitable coming trial of her grandmother's death. My home in Marvin wasn't a safe place for the little creature even if there had been anything unusual there to interest her. And although Marion liked me, yet was unused to children-how the old haunting pain gripped me at the thought-save as I had dealt She needed more skilled care than mine, and even as I had realized my own lack the thought had flashed into my mind. "Shandaken, 135 F." I said clearly into the telephone, and as the girl repeated it there came to me a vision of the cosey farmhouse in the Catskill mountains which that telephone number represented, and the true, kindly folks it sheltered. I knew if there was any service, even to life itself, which Robert Savarin, artist recluse of that
