offertory anthem. The offering will be devoted to the European relief fund.
Everybody welcome. Chas. H. Powell, rector.

First Christian
Center and High streets, J. J. Evans, pastor. Dr. H. C. Epler, superintendent of Bible school; Lena Belle Tarrar, choir director. The Christmas program by the school was given on Thursday evening, but the services today will partake of the same spirit. The sermons by the pastor will present phases of the Christmas thought. Morning topic, "Christ and the Present Life;" evening, "The Lost Christians." Large audiences are being heard of the present pastor and many are giving assurance of spiritual help. The Bible school is moving forward with strong programs and new plans for the boys are about completed. A boy's department will open at the school hour, 9:45, on the first Sunday in January.
The Endeavor society invites the presence of all young people at 6:30 each Sunday evening. Welcome to all at all our services.

will bring the message, "It may be worth your while to bear her," "Hail, Peace," and "Salvation for All. Be sure to come and see it all." A special service will be held from the Throne of Heaven, W. C. T. U. hall, 3 p. m.

Arches and Pains of rheumatism are not permanently, but only temporarily, relieved by external remedies. Why not use an internal remedy—Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acidity of the blood on which rheumatism depends and cures the disease.

Methodist Entertainment
The Sunday school Christmas entertainment given in the First Methodist church last night was a complete success, as was evidenced in the appreciation shown by the large audience which packed the house. The church was beautifully decorated for the event with evergreen, mistletoe, and a gaily adorned Christmas tree. The first part of the program was taken up with numbers by the primary department, followed by selections by the intermediate, junior and senior departments, interspersed with music by the orchestra.
It was a white Christmas, and after a touching appeal on the part of the pastor, for an offering toward the near east relief fund, and also the Chinese fund, a generous response was made, which it is believed will total $900 when all subscriptions are handed in.
Apart from this offering, a great number of those attending brought gifts for the city's poor, and hundreds of pounds of potatoes, apples, flour, meats and groceries were donated.

AFTER THE RUSH
Back to Our Normal
Selling Business
The Christmas rush is over! Yes, and we might say that it has been the biggest Christmas business we have ever gone through. Now for normal times once more.
During the Christmas week Gale & Co. service was shown on every side, and this service stood the test of a busy time, such as this. We are proud of our showing—proud of the congeniality of our sales people, of their ability in suggestion, and proud of the class of merchandise we can put out.
In normal times this service will be even more evident, and once you have experienced the pleasure of purchasing at Gale's, you will be a regular customer.
Our prices always the lowest.

Facts About the Catholic Church
Rev. J. R. Back
THE ANTICATHOLIC CRUSADES IN AMERICA.
During the early days of the United States, religious grounds furnished legal debarments in various states by reason of their constitutions. But the United States constitution, more accurately reflecting the rising American spirit, had decreed in the body of the instrument that "no religious test shall ever be required as a qualification to any public office or public trust under the United States." The incongruity of a condition whereby a Catholic could be duly eligible to the office of president, representative in congress, senator in congress, United States judge, ambassador or envoy of the United States, but could not be an alderman in his city or legislator in his own state, did not at first strike the American public. But a growing spirit of toleration and a confidence in the Americanism of all citizens led the citizens with the voting power to remove the restrictions, gradually to be sure, but with inevitable certainty. It is noteworthy that the first amendment to the United States constitution testifies to a sense in the American people that Catholicism was not a despotism to be feared. The Catholic faith developed more speedily as Catholics became free. That it might become a danger in any way to the American people seemed to be in no one's mind until the Irish immigration to the United States set in, during the middle third of the 19th century. Irish immigration to the United States up to this time was largely Protestant Irish; but in the thirties of last century a large wave of Catholic Irish immigration set in. These people were miserably poor. Their forefathers had been deprived of the right of education, the right of office and the right of free worship for almost a century prior to 1790. A price had been set on the heads of their priests by England and they were treated like outlaws in the British realm of those days. They could follow no profession but medicine, no occupation but handling flax. They could not sue or be sued at law, could not own a horse worth over $25, could not inherit property, could not educate their children as Catholics nor send their children out of the country to be educated. Thus denied education, deprived of any means of livelihood, denied office, oppressed, hunted, and treated with the utmost contempt by a ruling minority the Catholics had lived in Ireland, had held their faith, had sheltered and dis- gusted their priests, had won back some of their rights. Yet they had always had to pay for the support of the Anglican or Episcopal faith, in which they did not believe. These miserable Catholic Irish lived in the utmost squalor. They spoke Gaelic. Their English bore the marks of the Calvary of Elizabeth's day, now called a brogue. These things were done by England to bring the Catholic religion into disrepute and to protect the reputation (?) and lineage of "The Good Queen Bess." These exiles from Ireland came to America, as stated, seeking opportunity, the chance to work for their sustenance, the immigrants' share in the liberty and opportunity heral- ded around the world as the shining jewel in the coronet of Columbia. But English propa- ganda and intrigue had had its influence and the poor exiles met contempt, hatred and religious persecution.—(Ad.)
