Mr. and Mrs. Homer Smith have issued invitations for a dancing party to be given Thursday evening at the Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Van Doren entertained with a watch party and midnight supper Friday night, guests numbering about 25, including Mr. and Mrs. H. G. Terry of Portland, who came up to remain over the week-end at the Van Dorens' guests.

There was a host of Salem folk who addressed across the fourteenth Betty Kirkbride and her husband Delano Dell, the principals in "Listen Lester," which was presented at the Grand theater Wednesday night, but there was one person in Salem, fortunate enough to have a more personal acquaintance for Mrs. Zedoc J. Riggs and Mrs. G. O. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spaulding, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. reels. This work followed her graduation from O. A. C. She was eminently successful in her chosen profession, so much so that when Wallace Reid essayed to return to the legitimate in "The Rottler," he selected her for his leading lady, the others members of his company also coming from the Egan school. Splendid success was scored for six weeks, the company playing up and down the coast.

Later Miss White played in Canada with the Ellison White chautauqua. She is home now enjoying a rest for a few months. During this interim she has not been idle, however, her services being solicited by the McMinnville Elks in coaching the play, "It Pays to Advertise," which they staged in their home town about three weeks ago.

The lodgesmen plan to produce the play a second time, coming over to give a complimentary performance before the Salem Lodge B. P. O. E. Miss White will return with them at that time, for she not only directs the play, but appears in the leading feminine role as well.

Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Wetherbee of Eugene, are week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Allen.

A large coterie of young folk gathered at the home of Miss Henrietta White on Bellview street, Wednesday night, participating in post-Christmas merry-making.

Those present were Misses Edith Brotherton, Gladys Burnside, Florence Jones, Evangeline Powell, Martha Powell, Ruth Kuhn, Ruth Peck, Miriam Shepard, Helen Selig, Margaret Stolz, Helen Ramsdorn, Miriam Roberts, Lois Taylor, Georgella Willoug, Henrietta White, Messrs. Ralph Bailey, Reginald Busick, Arthur Hamilton, Ralph Hamilton, Robert Littler, Kenneth Perry, Donald Petram, Merle Petram, Russel Pratt, Elton Thompson and John Skewrs.

A group of pupils of Mrs. R. L. White accompanied her to Silverton Thursday, appearing before her recently organized class, and a large and select audience in solo and group dances. The children were in costume in all their numbers and were enthusiastically applauded.

Those presented were Leona Geer, Mildred Roberts, Cynthia Delano, Maxine Glover, Faye Wasson, Nancy Thielsen, Janet Plimpton, Jeannette Sykes, Gweneth Edwards, Hazel Martin, Margaret White, Bert Hoffine, Henry Wesley Thielsen and Sherman Plimpton.

Accompanying the group were Mrs. J. J. Roberts, Mrs. W. M. Plimpton, Mrs. L. S. Geer, Mrs. Horace Sykes and Mrs. F. G. Delano.

The ballroom of the Derby building presented a scene Monday night like that of the Mardi Gras, with the exception that the dancers were boys and girls from six to twelve, and that there was no queen and her court. In costume and spirit the two occasions were identical. The party was a Mc-Careme festival arranged for the pupils of Mrs. R. L. White's dancing school.

To the young folk, who will be the belles and beaux of a few years hence, the evening was one of unalloyed delight, and the mothers and not a few fathers and friends enjoyed the affair very much in the same manner. Many of the spectators, who had not previously witnessed a similar affair were surprised at the painstaking care and originality displayed in the costumes, and the dancing also was a revelation.

The music was excellent, and to its rhythm the youngsters danced the same waltzes, fox trots and hesitations that the grown-ups find delight in this winter. The children made their entrance one at a time, courtesying as they came. When they were all in they chose their partners without respect to age or size and the party was in swing from that moment until the last child had been taken home by mother or maid.

The same attractive decorative scheme employed for the Christmas eve dancing party for Miss Margaret White was left intact for this occasion.

The youthful participants made a motley aggregation of Indians, cowboys, as was to be expected if boys were allowed to express their natural bent. Chinese were there, Turkish girls, flowers and butterflies, fairies and pierrots, follies and comics, all mingling in the gayest frolic of the juvenile season. In fact there is but one real dance in a year for the boys and girls of the ages represented Monday night, and that is the "fancy dress."

Among the more striking costumes noted there was that of Henry Wesley Thielsen, who impersonated a bold, dashing pirate, even to the fierce black moustache, turban and flaming scarf worn as a girle.

His sister Nancy Thielsen was a true Highland lassie, with kilted plaid skirt, cap and all the other accessories of a typical Scotch costume.

Charles Kay Bishop was a gay, Spanish troubadour, with breeches of green, dark coat and cap and a frilled blouse, and completed with a striped sash.

Mildred Roberts was a rosebud with a costume of green net, set off with tiny pink rosebuds.

Sherman Plimpton was a jockey, in a white suit and forepecced cap.

Janet Plimpton was an alluring court jester.

Spanish maid, in an ivory-toned costume, worn with a crimson bolero and hat.

Chandler Brown wore the costume of an acher, and so true was every detail that he might have stepped out of one of the tales of Shakespeare.

Kanah Webb was a handsome Casack, the brilliant contrast of his white and scarlet and ermine-trimmed costume, making his figure particularly distinctive.

Little Elsie Ann and Mary Van Doren who were veritable little dolls came in for general admiration in their ethereal ballet costumes of white and pink.

Small Maxine Webb was daintiness personified in a similar costume.

Jeanette Sykes wore a lavender "Flirtation" costume fashioned of lavender net, with a coquettish bowtie to harmonize.

James Campbell was a sprightly court jester.

Cynthia Delano was a pretty apple blossom girl in pink and green.

Jack Minto was a courtly gentleman in white colonial costume and powdered hair. And so was Harold Olinger.

The Gold Dust Twins, impersonated by two tiny lasses, Melva/Belle Savage and Maxine Simeral were other children who were quite the most cunning figures.

Dorothy Tweedale was a pretty French maid.

Maxine Glover and Velma Emmett were marguerites in white scalloped costumes and with daisy wreaths in their hair.

Charles Claggett was "Boy Blue"; Margaret Tucker, "Bo Peep"; Lloyd Claggett was "Fiercofeathers" in Indian costume; Frances Martin was a pretty Irish colleen; Evelyn Berger was a little "Red Riding Hood"; Dorothy Belle personified "Night,"

Margaret Poorman was a May-time girl, Harry Minto was a clown, Deryl Myers was an Irish bean, Frank Schafer and tiny Freddy Thielsen wore full evening dress even to a monacle, Caroline Lambrith was a Harem beauty, Betty Abbott was a stunning Spanish maid, with striped skirt, turban and tambourine; Virginia Berger was a pink and blue folly, with tiny bells on the points of her costume, the two little Patton girls, Marit and Jeannette, were Chinese maids; Josephine Albert was a vivid flower in her coral costume and hat to harmonize; Florence Power was a folly; Lucille Pettyjohn was a shimmering pink butterfly; Glen Drager was a cowboy; Pauline Marnach personified "Winter," Janet Green and Jean Neal were pierrottes; Bertha Babcock was an Irish Lassie; Pauline Johnson a
