dan, chancellor of Stanford university, in a case that he says is not charity—that of lending sufficient funds to enable two Oregon born citizens, now in Germany, to return to this country and state.

They are the son and daughter, respectively 21 and 18 years old, of Professor Tausch, who taught in Portland high schools 15 years ago and later held the chair of philosophy in Willamette university. The death of Dr. Tausch left his widow and small children without means and Dr. Jordan solicited the funds that enabled them to return to Germany, where their mother found a position as teacher of English at Erfurt.

"The mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Tausch, Reinhardstrasser, Str. 2, Gotha, is very anxious that the young people should return to their native land, to Oregon, in fact," says Dr. Jordan in a recent letter to the Oregonian. "and would like to borrow, not beg, the money to make this possible. This purpose should appeal to the heart of some friend in Oregon, in spite of the heavy demands that world wreckage makes on all of us this season."

"Both have been educated, the boy as an engineer. As Dr. Tausch was an American citizen, the family regards itself as American, but lack of money and passport difficulties held them in Germany throughout the war."

"Their father, Dr. Tausch was a remarkable young man, a graduate of a German university and a scholar of marked originality, who had written an admirable review of the philosophy of William James. His case was unusual, both for his native ability and for the fact that without money he had paid his way through a German university by the winning of prizes."

Communications relative to the matter should be addressed to David Starr Jordan, Stanford university, Palo Alto, Cal.—(Oregonian.)

PIONEER WOMAN PASSES BEYOND

Name of Mrs. Emma Hughes Closely Connected With State History

Mrs. Emma Pringle Hughes, widow of the late John Hughes, and mother of Mrs. A. N. Bush and J. F. Hughes, of this city, died at her home in Portland yesterday morning. She was 82 years old and since the early pioneer days of Oregon her name, with that of her husband, have been closely connected with the history of the Willamette valley, and until her removal to Portland a few years ago she was one of the most influential citizens of Salem.

Mrs. Hughes was born in St. Charles, Warren county, Missouri in 1838 and was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Pringle, who were pioneers of Salem.

She came to Oregon when eight years old, coming over the old trail by way of Fort Hall and the Applegate cutoff. She was accompanied by her parents, and a large group of immigrants, among them being her grandmother, Mrs. Tabitha Brown. They made a road of their own from Humboldt, Nevada, to Oregon, coming through the desert and over the mountains not far from what is now the Klamath country and then into southern Oregon, wading in the water through the Cow Creek canyon and losing part of their cattle and equipment there. They arrived by way of a trail over the Eola hills and came in sight of Salem, where they had pitched their camp on one of the hills, on Christmas day, 1846, after a journey of nine months, attended with many hardships and privations, depending for their food part of the time on friendly Indians on the plains.

Her father engaged in shoe making in the then village of Salem in 1851. He later settled on a donation land claim of 640 acres four and a half miles southeast of Salem. There he carried on farming for a time but later returned to Salem and was identified in business and public life for many years.

The grandmother of Mrs. Hughes, Mrs. Tabitha Brown, founded a school at Forest Grove, out of which grew Tualatin academy to which she devoted her time and her means, and from the academy grew Pacific university.

For many years Mrs. Hughes was a leader in the First Methodist church of Salem, taking a prominent part in all its activities. She took an active interest in the early life of the Oregon institute, out of which grew Willamette university. She was in Salem at the time of the unveiling of the picture of Jason Lee over the speaker's desk in the hall of the house of representatives in the Oregon capitol, and she was privileged to be present and was at that time in good health. She was a member of the Oregon Historical society and worked constantly during her life for the betterment of the city and valley.

She was the mother of seven children, four of whom survive her and who were at her bedside at the end: Mrs. A. N. Bush of this city, F. Hughes of this city, Mrs. William A. Carter of Portland and Mrs. D. A. Mackie of Portland.

The funeral will be held in the Finley undertaking parlors in Portland Thursday morning at 9 o'clock and the burial will take place in the family lot in the Odd Fellows cemetery in this city, as soon as the arrival of the 12:50 Oregon Electric train from Portland Thursday.

Half Million in Bonds Are Sold by Commission

Although it had called for bids on a block of $1,500,000 in bonds only $500,000 were sold at a meeting of the state highway commission in Portland yesterday.

The award was made to Carstens & Earles, Inc., subject to approval of the firm's head offices in the east, and the attorneys of the commission.

The bid accepted was on the basis of $90.71, a decided drop from the bid of $94.58, which won award on bonds in November.

The original bids on the total $1,500,000 of bonds, in lump sums, opened by the commission today, were as follows:

- A. M. Wright for the United States National bank, $1,358,250.
- Carstens & Earles, Inc., et al., $1,360,650.
- Ralph Schneelock & Co., et al., $1,336,950.
- John E. Price & Co., et al., $1,322,550.
- Harris Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago, et al., $1,334,145.

ESTACADA TEAM HERE TONIGHT

First Interscholastic Basketball Game of Season Is Scheduled

Salem high school's red and black hoop artists play their initial game tonight when they meet the Estacada quintet in the armory at 7:30. A fast and hard game is anticipated as it is understood the Estacada aggregation is a fast team. The Salem men after weeks of hard practice are in the pink of condition and promise to show their visitors a stiff fight.

Considerable satisfaction has been expressed following the announcement of the season's schedule. Two dates, January 21 and February 18, are still open, there seems to be some sentiment, however, that an understanding can be reached with the Eugene high school and that it will later fill one of the two nights. In reply to a query as to whether the Eugene manager would sign a contract for this season was the letter from the Eugene principal severing relations for the present between the two schools.

The probable lineup for tonight's game was given out by coach "Lobby" Hendricks as follows: Forwards, Staley and Randall; center, "Bill" Gosser; guards, Jones and Ashby. Possible substitutes were given as Socolofsky, Eran Jones, Claire Tucker, Wilbur Dalley and Asef Eoff.

The schedule for the season follows:

- January 5—Estacada at Salem.
- January 8—Forest Grove at Salem.
- January 12—Estacada at Estacada.
- January 15—Corvallis at Corvallis.
- January 19—Newberg at Newberg.
- January 23—Corvallis at Salem.
- February 4—Newberg at Salem.
- February 11—Roseburg at Roseburg.
- February 16—McMinnville at Salem.
- February 23—McMinnville at McMinnville.
- February 25—Roseburg at Salem.

Sunday Organ Recitals Planned by Musicians

To assist in the promotion of good music and to increase musical appreciation as well as to provide a wholesome entertainment, the Oregon State Music Teachers' association is arranging for a series of organ recitals to be given in the First Christian church, each Sunday afternoon for six successive Sundays.

The first of these recitals, which will be given at 3:30 next Sunday afternoon, will present Frederick Goodrich, organist, and Mrs. Hallie Parish-Hinges, vocalist. Mr. Goodrich is a leading organist of Portland, and president of the State Music Teachers' association, having been re-elected to office for a second term. Mrs. Hinges needs no introduction to a Salem audience, and in the giving of her musical talent on this occasion will again delight her hearers.

A tentative program for the following five Sunday recitals is as follows:

- January 16—Lucile Ross, organist; Ada Miller, vocalist, Marjorie Emmons, violinist.
- January 23—Lucien E. Becker, F.A.G.O., organist; Lena Belle Tartar, vocalist.
- January 30—Prof. T. E. Roberts, organist; E. W. Hobson, vocalist.

February 6—Lillian Hartshorn, organist; Ruth Johns, vocalist. There will be no admittance fee charged for the recitals, but the club hopes in a silver collection which will be taken, to be able to meet the expense necessarily incurred.

The friends of jazz declare that it is popular in China. Then why be so hard-hearted as to take it away from that benighted land?

WHY HAVE CATARRH?

So Disagreeable to Yourself and All About You.

Catarrh is generally conceded to be a constitutional disease. Therefore it requires a constitutional remedy like Hood's Sarsaparilla which reaches every part of the system by thoroughly purifying and enriching the blood. This medicine removes the cause of the trouble, which if not checked may lead to more serious disease.

In 46 years of use and test Hood's Sarsaparilla has relieved many cases as told by voluntary letters of commendation. Why not get a bottle today and give it a trial? It combines economy and efficiency. Keep Hood's Pills on hand as a family cathartic.

Missouri and Arkansas Watching Oregon Method

Having heard of Oregon and the beneficial results of co-operation among fruit growers, the Missouri and Arkansas states horticultural societies have written the Oregon Growers Co-operative association asking for information regarding the Oregon way. At a recent meeting of the horticultural societies of the two states, it was voted that the Oregon Growers Co-operative association be asked for a copy of its by-laws and constitution in order to aid Missouri and Arkansas in forming co-operative associations. A meeting of those interested in fruit growing in the two states will be held at Rogers, Ark., early in January and the by-laws and constitution of the association will be used as a model when the convention adopts a form for its co-operative associations.

Remember when the piece de resistance for the evening serenading parties used to be "Sweet Evelina?"
