Vick Brothers Sell Wonderful Inner Tube Vick Brothers are more than pleased with the new tire and inner tube contracts which they have just closed. Anyone driving a car or truck equipped with pneumatic tires is interested in a tube that will not deflate when punctured by nails, licks, etc. Vick Brothers now have for sale just such a tube. You can actually drive the tire full of nails and pull them out again without the loss of a single ounce of air, and no damage to the tube. This sounds too good to believe, but nevertheless is perfectly true. The tube is so constructed that when the nail is pulled out the hole is automatically closed. Automobiles have been improved until they are nearly perfect mechanically, and about all the trouble that could mar a perfect outing would be tire trouble and now the new puncture-proof tubes will eliminate all punctures and add greatly to the joy of motoring. Former Inmate is Returned to Hospital An elderly man named M. E. Hearn, a retired pensioned employe of the Southern Pacific company, was taken from the train in this city Friday night by Police Officers Victor and Hayden and placed in the Oregon state hospital. A message was received by the police from Portland, requesting that the train be searched for Mr. Hearn and if found that he be taken in custody. Mr. Hearn was a former inmate of the hospital, and had been on parole to his sister, Mrs. Harrigan, 191 Park street, Portland. However, of late it was thought best to return him to the institution. When taken in charge Mr. Hearn said he was going to Eugene for a visit with a daughter.

Facts About the Catholic Church Rev. J. R. Buck The Anti-Catholic Crusades in America. The political activities of the Know-Nothings continued up to this civil war. That great struggle put an end to such propaganda for a time, for all creeds met together day after day, the sharing of each other's tents, the bearing of each other's burdens and cares, and all those things in army life which bring men to know each other so intimately, broke down the barriers of creed and prejudice, and the "fact" could not exist in such an atmosphere. The Catholic priest was "one of the boys," and it was rare indeed where prejudice and hatred remained long with those with whom he came in contact. At Fredericksburg Father Willist gave the 69th New York regiment absolute freedom before the charge against the stone wall of Mary's Heights. At Gettysburg Father Corby pronounced the absolute for the Irish brigade before that gallant remnant went into the fight. At Camp Scott Archbishop Hughes confirmed 400 men of the Corecan legion. And who of "the old boys" but has heard of the patriotism and valor of the late Archbishop Lenain of St. Paul? And those "angels of the battlefield" the Sisters of Mercy and the Sisters of Charity! What soldier has ever had aught of evil to say of one of these? No difference how much he may have hated Catholics, he nevertheless could but speak in praise of those devoted women. Rosemary, Thomas, Sheridan, Corecan, March, Binkley, Guinness and thousands of brave Catholic officers served the cause of the Union, as did thousands and thousands of Catholic soldiers, while the Know-Nothings were conspicuous for their absence. They were the "natives Americans," but they allowed the "foreigners" and the "papists" to fight for their country while they hid themselves away from all harm. (This very trick was repeated by the "Guardians of Liberty" in the late war.) One-sixth of the Union army was composed of native born Irishmen, and the Irishmen of 1861 to 1865 were almost exclusively Catholic. Thousands of German-born Catholics as well as Catholic men from British America and other lands fought for Liberty and Union and the striking of the shackles from the black slaves. When peace came it seemed as if religious bigotry had perished with the fall of slavery and the darkness of the Civil War. Yet, about 20 years after the end of that war, there arose the "American Protective Association," the well known A. P. A. - Adv.
