He was the unpaid judicial and legal-political advisor to the imperial embassy. He is one of the most important, if not the greatest counsel of the United States, the presumptive successor of Mr. Gerard if he should leave his ambassadorial post, a former very influential member of the Democratic party of New York state, a personal friend of Warburg, federal reserve bank, of the secretary of justice, the chief state counsel of New York."

PAPER COMPANY PLAN EXTENSION

Further Development Urged At Annual Meeting of Stockholders

The annual meeting of the Oregon Pulp and Paper company was held today in this city at the Marion hotel. Stockholders gathered at the noon hour and partook of a luncheon, after which the election of officers for the year took place and Fred W. Leadbetter, president of the company, gave a report and submitted to the members recommendations for development of the plant.

The construction of the plant started the first of July, 1919, and was completed and put in operation about October first of last year, making a little over three months of operating. During the first month the operation was more or less of a warming up process getting the machinery to running properly and gradually bringing about an efficient operation. Nevertheless the trial balance proved very satisfactory to the directors of the enterprise.

Mr. Leadbetter recommended the development of the company's North power, saying that the property is of great value to the mill. It has a two-thirds ownership in what is known as the Santiam power race, together with the millrace through the city. The ditch will develop from 800 to 1000 horse power. He also recommended the purchase of a third machine for the plant.

The officers elected were F. W. Leadbetter, president; Charles K. Spaulding, vice-president; William S. Walton, treasurer and Roy H. Mills, secretary. The directors who were re-elected were Joseph Kaster, superintendent and manager, Walter L. Spaulding, Frank G. Andreas. Three more were added to the board who are E. S. Collins of Portland, John McNary and Joseph Baker.

METHODISTS, CATHOLICS JOIN TO FIGHT BILLS

Eberhard insisted that it be acted upon in executive session.

Prior to dismissal of those who had been heard the Hume bill making it unlawful for any teacher in the public schools to wear any garb or dress indicating affiliation with any church or order was taken up.

"The wearing of such garb by Catholic teachers in the public schools," said Senator Hume, "is injecting the Catholic religion into the public schools. I do not think it is consistent with our theory of government."

This brought a vehement reply from Mr. Lonergan.

"There are a number of religious sects whose teachers wear distinctive garb in the school room," he said. "This can be controlled by the people of the school district. The teachers would not be there if the district did not want them. What right has the legislature to say what they shall wear? Where is the legislature going to stop on this question? The Catholic sisters wear a distinctive garb, but no one can say it is an immoral or an immoral garb or that it flaunts Catholicism. Catholicism, Presbyterianism, Methodism and the Baptist faith are not taught by garb."

Would Stamp Out Rancor "There is no need for me to say where this movement comes from. I do know where it comes from. But it is time for this rancor to be stamped out in the legislative halls."

The Hume bill, No. 121, which was agreed upon after amendments, puts all private and parochial schools under supervision of the public school officers and causes teachers in these schools to meet the same requirements as are met by the public school teachers. The bill was amended to apply only to the eight elementary grades, and not to the high schools as originally drafted. Dr. O'Hara urged this amendment on grounds that after the eighth grade students cannot by law be compelled to attend school, and that the proposed law should not extend farther than the compulsory schooling point. Another amendment provides that teachers who have served a long term of years may have two years in which to prepare to meet the requirements. As drawn the bill made this requirement immediate.

Patriotic Clause Changed It was declared that the parochial schools already meet the public school study course requirements. The measure also requires that the private and parochial schools comply in substance with the patriotic exercises prescribed by the state superintendent. The wording of the bill was objected to on grounds that it would allow the superintendent to prescribe special exercises for the private or parochial schools. A remedying amendment was agreed upon.

Senator Hume declared that the measure was not an anti-Catholic bill as it had been termed, but that it simply was intended to put all the schools on a uniform basis.

Special Committee is Appointed by Ritner

Senators Norblad of Clatsop county, Smith of Josephine, Banks, Farrell and Moser of Multnomah were yesterday appointed by President Ritner as the senate members of the special legislative committee to confer with a joint committee from the Washington legislature relative to mutual fishing interests of the two states in the Columbia river.

Unusual Interest Shown In Case of State vs. Beck

Beck is being tried on a charge of assault with intent to kill, in a holdup occasioned on South Commercial street about one year ago. Carson and Brown are prosecutors and W. C. Winslow the attorney for the defendant. It is thought the case will be ready for the jury this forenoon.

Albion Normal School to Be Abandoned by Law

BOISE, Idaho, Jan. 25.—The Albion normal school will be abandoned if a bill introduced in the senate today by the state affairs committee becomes a law. The measure, if passed, will close the school July 1, 1921. It was referred directly to the printing committee.

The report of the financial committee of the senate, killing senate bill No. 63, which would increase the salaries of judges of the district and supreme courts, was adopted by the senate.

The Van de Steeg anti-Japanese resolution was reported out by the committee on immigration, labor and statistics with a majority report recommending its passage and an adverse minority report. A roll call was taken and the former report adopted by a vote of 39 to 14.

Purported Treaty Draft With Persia Reaches U. S.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 25.—What purports to be a draft of the treaty which soviet Russia is seeking to have Persia accept has been received by the state department. The exchange for its children, by a jury in superior court today, with the recommendation of life sentence. The jury which included three women, returned its verdict after four hours of deliberation. Colagino will probably receive sentence Saturday.

McGibbon was shot down in a quarrel over the alleged theft of some chickens.

Advices to the department say that the negotiations between the two governments have progressed to a point little short of ratification of the treaty and that as a result the British are in process of quitting Persia.
