Rotary Clubs of State Will Spread Idea Through United States

C. W. Hillman, manager of the Harbor. Cherry City Baking company and William Edwards, chief bak er, got their heads together a short time ago and made some experiments with prune bread. Now they are using 25 pounds of prunes a day at that bakery in the making of prune bread, and the indications are that the demand will persist-and that they will use at least 25 pounds a day. 365 days in the year. That will be something around 10,000 pounds a year of prunes. But this is not the whole story.

The other Salem bakers are also making prune bread; and the movement is spreading to Portland, and likely to spread all over the United States.

The Salem Rotary club is tak. ing it up, and so is the Portland Rotary club, and other Rotary clubs throughout the state. And these Oregon Rotary clubs propose to spread the idea to the Rotarians throughout the . United States, and perhaps samples of the bread baked in Oregon will be sent to many of the eastern cities, to show how good it is. Would Mean Millions

If this movement for prune bread should be extended to the bakeries of the United States generally, it would mean millions of pounds 'f prunes disposed of in this way every week; perhaps every day-

And, anyway, there would very toon be a demand for all the surplus prunes that are now on hand. Hall Returns to State and all that could be spared for this purpose from future crops for this would advertise prunes to everybody, and housewives would make prune bread in their homes, and they would eat more prunes
