Conditions of Prune Market Are Discussed

The unusual conditions that prevented the maintaining of the prune market in the east will be discussed in the March issue of the Oregon Grower, published by the Oregon Growers' Cooperative association.

As all growers know, prunes were no exception when all food commodities took the toboggan of prices. It is well known that wool, hogs, cotton, hides, corn, wheat and tobacco suddenly dropped in prices to pre-war prices and in some instances lower.

But it is not generally known that the efforts put forth by the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association to maintain prune prices in the east, and the efforts made by others to keep hammering the price and to cause heavy buyers in the east to feel there was an unlimited supply of Oregon prunes that would be thrown on the market at any old figure.

The difficulties of attempting to maintain the prune market while others were working just the other way are fully discussed in the March issue of the Oregon Grower which will be off the press this week.

1921 BASEBALL TO BE POPULAR

Seating Facilities For Fans Begins to be Owners Problem

NEW YORK, Feb. 16. — Baseball throughout the country during the 1921 season promises to show continued growth in popularity, which has been a consistent feature of the National game since the close of the war. Last season new attendance records were made in the major and minor leagues and unofficially it was said that never in its history has the game enjoyed such a prosperous season generally. Off season indications are that the records of 1920 will be surpassed next summer. This leads to the questions "Where will the club owners put the fans who desire to see the games if baseball continues to grow in popular favor?" There are some sizeable baseball parks in the country, the largest of which is Braves Field at Boston with a seating capacity of 47,800. Most of the parks are sufficiently large to accommodate the crowds that ordinarily attend the games, but in every baseball city there are occasions during the season, especially on holidays and in the cases of important series, when the largest of parks are inadequate to accommodate those who desire to pass through the turnstiles.

And numerous as are the baseball parks throughout the country in cities represented by professional teams, it will surprise a majority of the fans to learn that the total seating capacity is less than one per cent of the total population of the country, 1920 census, shown by the 1920 census. The seating capacity of the parks in the major leagues and the principal minor leagues totals approximately 961,000, which with some minor leagues whose statistics are not available, probably bring the total seating capacity of all league parks in the country up to around a million.

The apparent congestion of seating capacity is more acute in the two major leagues than it is in the minors. The parks represented in the National league have a total population of 12,655,308 and the baseball parks in those cities have a total seating capacity of about 199,000. This means that there are seats in all National league parks for only 1.6 per cent of the population and it would mean that if all the people of those cities took the notion to attend the games on some holiday about 60 persons would be scrambling for possession of each seat.

As regards the proportion of seats in the American league, the American league is virtually the same as in the senior major league. The cities in the circuit headed by Ban Johnson boast of a total population of 13,594,014 persons while the clubs in the American league provide seats for close to 215,000. Here the percentage of accommodations for the population is about 1.6, the same as in the National league, but reduced to actual figures it means one seat for each 63 persons.

Conditions are a trifle better in the three Class AA leagues, the seating capacity of which is between three and four per cent of the population. The American association with a population of 2,423,000 in its eight teams has a seating capacity of 143,500; the National league with a total population of 2,879,000 has seats for 70,400 and the Pacific Coast league with 2,100,000 population has provided 92,400 seats.

The club with a particularly attractive star, the Babe Ruth with the New York Yankees last season, finds it difficult many times during the season to take care of those who are anxious to contribute to the financial success of the club. There were several Saturdays and Sundays last season when the Yankees were playing on the Polo Grounds and when it was necessary to close the gates long before the game started, thus turning away thousands of disappointed fans.

The problem of seating capacity is one that is likely to remain with the club owners for all time. In most of the parks that are now established it is quite impossible to increase the seating capacity because of the lack of space and in cities club owners find it impossible to select sites for new parks within distance that fans are willing to travel to witness games.

Adjournment Time of Legislature In Doubt There is still doubt as to when the legislature will be able to adjourn. The house was reported in good shape at adjournment late last night, but a number of important bills that will require debate are on today, making it doubtful if final adjournment can be reached before tomorrow.

Head Stuffed By Catarrh or Cold? Use Healing Cream If your nostrils are clogged, your throat distressed, or your head is stuffed by nasty catarrh or a cold, apply a little pure, antiseptic, germ destroying cream in to your nostrils. It penetrates through every air passage, soothing inflamed, swollen membranes and you get instant relief.

How good it feels. Your nostrils are open, your head is clear. No more hawking, snuffing, dryness or struggling for breath. Get a small bottle of Ely's Cream Balm from any druggist. Colds and catarrh yield like magic. Don't stay stuffed up. Relief is sure. (adv.)

Special Election Bill Is Passed by Senate The Joseph bill, calling a special election on June 7 next to vote on measures referred to the people by the present legislature, passed the senate yesterday without dissent. It appropriates $15,000 as the state's share of the expense.

The election is primarily for the purpose of voting on the two benefit measures for service men who participated in the world war. One is a bonus bill providing for $15 a month for each man, the total sum not to exceed $500, and the other is a proposed constitutional amendment authorizing a bond issue up to 2 per cent of the state's total assessed property valuation for loan purposes. This fund would be in the neighborhood of $20,000,000.
