toward the completion of the strawberry plant inspection in Marion county. Yesterday he was inspecting plants at Falls City. J. W. Mayo, cashier of the bank at Stayton, was in Salem Wednesday. PORTLAND HEAT RATES INCREASE Over 30 Percent Added By Order of State Service Commission An increase of from 30 to 35 per cent in the steam heating rates of the Northwest Electric company for service in the city of Portland is made in an order of the public service commission issued yesterday, following hearing and investigation on the company's application. The original application was filed with the commission July 2, 1920, and this was followed by an amended application on October 12. The increase is based primarily on an abrupt increase in the cost of fuel oil. March 1 is the effective date. "The significant fact about the whole situation," says a statement by the commission accompanying the order, "is that Portland rates still remain lower than any other in the Pacific mountain territory. This probably is partly traceable to economy of operation. One would naturally expect that Salt Lake City, in the middle of fields of coal of excellent quality, would have lower rates, but such is not the case. Spokane, Tacoma, Seattle and Yakima in Washington, and San Francisco in California are all higher than Portland, and if a comparison is any criterion, from a business point of view, this should appeal to the businessmen. Many of the business concerns would doubtless use oil as fuel if they operated their own plants, but as the oil companies now on the Pacific coast are not making any contracts, it is very apparent that all concerns must go into the open market and buy oil at the same price."

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING (Continued from page 1) had the best of results when they advertise in the Oregon Statesman. I like very much to read your paper and most of all the advertising pages. My mother has had an ad in the Statesman for maternity cases at private hospital, and she finds she has had the best of results and appreciates it very much indeed. I think the Statesman is a paper for everybody. It is a country paper as well as a city paper, and by so many country people taking the Statesman they can hear from far and near around the state and country and also see the advertising pages, which is a great help to the farmers. They may be in need of a horse, cow, wagon, and so forth; your page is in such an outline that you are sure to find just what you are looking for. The advertising pages are a help to the school children as well as to the grown people. The teachers may ask for a classified ad to be answered in the language class, and The Statesman can help them. I think there is no other paper like The Oregon Statesman. I am, Very truly yours, Miss Anna Stine. 1647 North Front street, Salem, Or.

NO MINING BOOM WILL COME—But the Santiam country is on the eve of substantial developments, and they will be solid and long the correct lines with modern methods.

So Salem is not very far away now from becoming what she has been destined to be, a mining center.

The Statesman's classified ad contest is developing interest, and it will grow more interesting.

The idea is to get everybody to reading the classified ads, which nearly everybody is already doing.

This is the last day of the Wilson administration. Praise God from whom all blessings flow.

The gathering of mining men in Portland from all over the world next month is bound to attract men of genius and capital who will assist in developing the great mineral resources of Oregon.

There is enough water power in the Santiam district to drive all the mining machinery of that section to take out and treat all the ores, with enough to spare to fill the whole central Willamette valley with the hum of industry. The streams in those defiles will prove to be golden beyond the dreams of the men of the old days who staked them out as placer claims.
