From the Benedictine Sisters. Coughs and colds are infectious, and prompt measures should be taken to stop the coughing and spreading of germs. The following letter from the Benedictine Sisters Holy Name Convent, San Antonio, Fla., is of value to every one. "We have just received shipment of Foley's Honey and Tar. It is a household remedy. COREY DEFENDS RATES

Postmaster General Burleson attempted to place increased telephone rates in effect throughout the United States. This commission, as you may recall, took issue with him and refused to permit the increases to become effective in Oregon without a thorough investigation as to the reasonableness of such rates, and so far as we are able to ascertain the so-called Burleson rates are in effect throughout the United States. During the past two years, Oregon has enjoyed lower telephone rates than those obtaining in other western states.

Company Loses, Says Corey. "Having completed our investigation and experimented at the utility's expense with lower rates during the past two years, we find that the company has actually lost hundreds of thousands of dollars from operation in Oregon. We have, therefore, granted an increase in rates that will afford a return of approximately 6 per cent for the year 1921 upon the physical value of the company's plant in Oregon, as fixed by this commission. This rate base value was ascertained after two years' study and analysis by our engineering and accounting force. Needless to say, the base rate value, as fixed by this commission, does not include any allowance for stocks or bonds or franchise value.

New Capital Imperative. "It is not generally understood that there is need of many millions of new capital investment in order to serve adequately the public and keep abreast of the rapid development of our state and that this additional capital must be obtained by sale of new securities and not from revenue derived from rates paid by the public. In order to be able to borrow new capital at reasonable rates of interest, the utility must be sound financially, that is, receiving a fair rate of return from the honest investment in the present plant."

SALEM CITIZENS PRAISES Service Commissioners

Fred A. Williams, chairman of the public service commission, has received from A. Rogsdale of Salem, a letter thanking the commission through Mr. Williams for its promptness in assisting him to recover an overcharge from the Union Pacific Railroad company. Henceforth, he says he will look upon the commission as a public necessity.

POLICY IS TOLD BY MR. OLCOTT

County Jail Pardons Based On Recommendations of Authorities

Conditional pardons by the governor of offenders lodged in county jails will be based entirely upon recommendations of trial judges and district attorneys who act in the cases, Governor Olcott said yesterday in commenting on two recent county jail pardons issued from his office. "Issuance of county jail conditional pardons by this office is based entirely upon the recommendations of the trial judge and district attorney who acted on such cases," said Governor Olcott. "It has happened in the past several days that two of such pardons have been issued. The executive office has no way of having knowledge of county jail cases save through the officials themselves and absolutely no action is taken on these cases until such officials voluntarily send in recommendations for the issuance of such pardons, and such pardons are never issued until such recommendations are received."

Revival services which have been in progress for some time at the United Brethren church at Hopewell closed Sunday night. The results of the revival were 10 conversions, seven accessions to the church and a general spiritual awakening in the neighborhood. It is said that in all of his messages, Dr. Powell, the evangelist, struck straight home and caused people to think about the most important things in life. He left yesterday for The Dalles where he will conduct meetings at the United Brethren church.

TRUE STORY OF WANT AD

back, hopped into the open cage upon the perch and began eating seeds. I put our bird in with him and closed the door. But lo, they agreed to disagree and feathers began to fly. Says I, this won't do and picking up the Statesman I took it at the birds and made them quit their fighting. And she thought came to me to look over the "want ads" and see if anyone had lost a canary bird.

which I did, and behold there was the "ad" of Mr. and Mrs. Doe? neighbor about four blocks away, stating they had lost their bird. As the two birds in the cage did not agree at all I decided that I would run over and see Mr. and Mrs. Doe? and tell them about the bird I had just captured.

As I approached their house I spotted an empty bird cage hanging on the porch. In answer to my knock Mrs. Doe opened the door and said, "How do you do." "Removing my hat I answered, "How do you do. I see that you have lost your bird." At that she became greatly excited and just fairly shouted, "Have you seen our ad in the Statesman?" "Why, yes," I said, and just came over to tell you that I captured a bird this morning." She began to jump up and down and about, "It bet it's our Dicky! Oh, John," she shouted, and John came. "This man has got our Dicky Boy. Oh, poor Dicky!" she said, and by this time her hair had all come down. (own-man fashion.)

The description John gave of their bird fitted the one that I had captured to a T. "Well, I said, "I have him." And, oh, the tears began running down their cheeks with joy. Reaching for the cage, John said, "Thanks to the classified ads, mudder for finding our little Dicky Boy, fodder will go right home with this man and bring him home to mudder."

On the way back I said to John, "The Statesman is a great paper, isn't it?" "Well, I should say it is," says John, "I would not be without it at all. Why, the joy that that one little ad is giving my wife and I in getting our bird back is more than words can tell." "Yes," said I, "Not only the want ads alone but the other advertisements, and if you want to know when a train is due look in the Statesman, and if you want to know the price of anything they have it in the market prices. Besides we get all the principal telegraphic news, county, state and local news fresh every day."

"Yes," he said, and do you know that story "Revelations of a Wife" is worth the price of the paper alone." By this time we reached my home and I put his Dicky in his cage; John picked it up and said,

"I will take you home to dear old mudder." I anticipate that she was one of the happiest women Salem ever knew upon the arrival of Dicky's return home. Written by J. H. Nickerson, 685 South Winter street.

Recommend Foley Kidney Pills to all who suffer from kidney trouble as I did." Sold everywhere. (adv.)
