CHAPTER 26.

WHAT BESS DEAN WHISPERED TO MADGE AS THEY PREPARED TO LISTEN TO DICKY'S TALK

"Police! Help! I'm sinking! Will nobody throw me a rope?" Dicky piped the words in a high falsetto, throwing up his hands in a ludicrous pretence of being overwhelmed by the weight of his mother's remarks.

meant to say to the children when the time came for him to make the speech he had planned. For with the new light of the morning had come the realization that Dicky was perfectly right in his strictures upon the phraseology of the speech I had written for him, however unjustified he might have been in the rude phraseology in which he couched his criticism.

A Troublesome Thought. The thought troubled me all the morning, stayed with me during the otherwise enjoyable lunch of which Dicky and I partook at noon, and increased intensely when, after returning to the school, and introducing Dicky to Mr. Stockbridge, who promptly took him in charge, I assisted Miss Holcombe in marshalling the pupils into the big assembly room and arranging the trophies which Dicky had permitted me to bring as a background for his talk.

Dealers in Candy Must Make Show-Down to State

Because of complaints that have been received, the officials of the state department of weights and measures have begun an investigation relative to the marking of boxes and other containers used in the candy trade in Oregon. Manufacturers, wholesalers and retailers are advised that there is a legal requirement that the net weight of the contents be plainly and conspicuously marked on the outside of the package in terms of net weight or numerical count.

"I will not stay here to be insulted," she began, but her volatile son had reached her side before she had fairly gotten away from her chair, had put his arm tenderly around her, and was looking down into her face with laughing, audacious eyes.

"Don't be mad at me, Mumsy," he pleaded, giving her the old pet name which I knew he had used in his childhood. "I didn't mean to be bad. But they were awful whoppers of words, now weren't they?"

"All right," Dicky returned nonchalantly. "I'll blow in there a little before noon, order lunch, and send a taxi over to the school house for you. No, ma'am, I won't be in it." He answered the involuntary question in my eyes.

"Well, I'm going to feed my face if all Bayview stands on its head," Dicky grumbled, "so you'd better be on time."

"I'll be at the door," I promised, and excusing myself, sped away to my train, happy in the thought that Dicky meant to attend the functions planned for him, but uneasily wondering what he

DRESS WARM AND KEEP FEET DRY

Tells Rheumatism Sufferers to Take Sals and Get Rid of Uric Acid

Rheumatism is no respecter of age, sex, color or rank. If not the most dangerous of human afflictions it is one of the most painful. Those subject to rheumatism should eat less meat, dress as warmly as possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.

At the first twinge of rheumatism get from any pharmacy about four ounces of Jad Salts; put a tablespoonful in a glass of water and drink before breakfast each morning for a week. This is said to be possible, avoid any undue exposure and, above all, drink lots of pure water.
