

CENSUS SHOWS GREAT GROWTH IN POPULATION NOW LET US GROW IN HEALTH AND HAPPINESS

A City That Grows Only in Population and Business Is Not Growing at All—It Is Only Swelling Up

The last census shows a great growth in population, especially in the towns and cities. We know from the bank statistics and from other sources that the United States has grown tremendously in wealth. The people have more savings deposits, more bonds and stocks, more life insurance and more of everything that shows great material prosperity. Prices are all high, but most people seem to be able to pay them and have a surplus. Now, also we are given figures to show we have more people. Our cities are growing at a rapid rate, so far as population and wealth are concerned.

Is that the only way a city should grow? Should it not grow in beauty, in the things that make life more worth living, in conveniences for recreation, in social activities, in those things which uplift the spirit and especially should it not grow in the promotion of health and the reduction of the death rate?

Bigger Things Expected.

The spirit of the times is not alone for bigger things and more things, but it is especially for better things. That really is "the great unrest." The people want better things, better living and growing conditions. They are not satisfied merely to see their city grow large in population and business. They want it to grow also in those things which make life more pleasant and more free from sickness and from the distress caused by loss of employment through disease and epidemic. Everywhere there is this demand for these better living conditions. People are reaching out for them, blindly in most cases, because they do not know just what to do to get them. They do not realize that they can produce these conditions for themselves, if they will work together to get them. Any city can be healthy and beautiful and a desirable place to live in, if its citizens will pull together to make it so. There is

EASTERN EDUCATOR BELIEVED INSANE

Premeditated Suicide Theory Is Established by Letters

SYRACUSE, N. Y., April 2.—Dr. Holmes Beckwith, educator, former army lieutenant and California bank examiner, who shot and killed his superior, Dean John Herman Wharton, at Syracuse university today before committing suicide, was probably insane as a result of chagrin over losing his position, according to statements made by the authorities and Chancellor James R. Day of the university tonight. That Beckwith had premeditated suicide has been clearly established by letters the instructor left. At first it was believed Dr. Wharton had been killed in an attempt to prevent Beckwith's suicide. County officials now are agreed that Dr. Wharton was shot following an argument when Beckwith presented a letter in answer to Wharton's notification that the university would have no need of Beckwith's services after June. Five bullets were found in Dr. Wharton's body.

plots and window boxes, keeps grass lawns neat, plants and trim shade trees, and enforces the milk and food laws, and paints up fences, trellises, garages, porches and houses.

All these things create more sanitary and healthful conditions, reduce sickness and loss of employment, add to the joy of life because of more beautiful surroundings, increase the value of property, reduce fire losses and insurance premiums, create new pride in the city and a new civic spirit which leads to further civic enterprises, and impart to both old and young new interest and active interest in municipal affairs.

Wonders Are Revealed We did wonderful things in the war, wonderful as a nation and especially wonderful in the spirit and deeds of our soldiers. Probably our nation has now more vigor and initiative and creative power among its people than ever before. Now it is our turn to take the force into making living conditions better throughout the nation, in making life pleasanter and freer from sickness and sorrow. If we put into this effort but half the zeal and determination, but half the patriotic spirit we devoted to making the world "fit place to live in," we shall soon have the most beautiful and healthful cities in the world.

EUGENE FIRE LOSS IS ABOUT $70,000

About 70 Automobiles Burn When Pierce Garage Is Destroyed

EUGENE, Or., April 2.—Fire that broke out in R. H. Pierce's garage this morning destroyed between 60 and 70 automobiles and almost completely destroyed the building, entailing a loss estimated at $70,000. Most of the cars destroyed were insurance or in the hands of Pierce, besides these, Pierce lost 20 cars of his own, most of them old. Eugene's only airplane, owned by Pierce, was entirely destroyed and he lost his entire shop equipment. The airplane had just been overhauled and was to have made its first trial flight of the season today, an aviator from Portland having been employed for the summer. Mr. Pierce says his personal loss is $30,000 and he carried $2,000 insurance. Fred E. Chambers, who owned the garage, estimates his loss at $8,000. He carried only $2,000 insurance.

FUNERAL OF NATURALIST IS SIMPLE

Group of Mourners is Representative of Admirers of John Burroughs in All Walks of Life.

EDISON, HENRY FORD AND FIRESTONE PRESENT

Ceremonies Are Reminiscent of Great Man Of Out-of-Doors

WEST PARK, N. Y., April 2.—In a rustic house, the retreat of John Burroughs for nearly half a century, 150 representatives of the thousands of nature-lovers who admired his outdoor life and writings, gathered today at his funeral. The ceremonies were short, of great simplicity and reminiscent of the career of the great naturalist.

By train and by automobile the little groups arrived throughout the forenoon at Riverby, the naturalist's home, situated where the Shawangunk mountains meet the waters of the Hudson. Scientists and manufacturers mingled in sorrow with the neighborhood children. Publishers and horticulturists bowed with religious men from the holy cross monastery.

Among the mourners were Thomas A. Edison, Henry Ford and Harvey S. Firestone, who for several years have spent their vacations outdoors with Mr. Burroughs. Next Mr. Edison stood an aged and gray-haired man who had pedaled his bicycle from Birmingham, more than 300 miles away. He was C. C. Brannan, an acquaintance of the naturalist since childhood.

The funeral service began with the soft strains of "In the Light of the Day." The Lord's prayer was repeated and Jines written by Earl W. Williams which Mr. Burroughs felt characteristic of his own self were read. "The forest nods in fellowship," they ran, "the winds, my playmates are, the waters leap in the sign of brotherhood, and in the thunder's voice, I hear a tongue which is not wholly strange. The stars are kindly counselors to me; I claim a kinship with the worm that crawls, and with the clay whose life is the tale of its dim life in the sun."

Quotations from Emerson and Wordsworth and Walt Whitman, companion of his middle-age, were read. Then William Omitson Roy, of Montreal, a friend of Mr. Burroughs, read excerpts from "Waiting," one of the first poems penned by the naturalist and from "Accepting the Universe," his latest book.

Reverend F. D. Elmer, pastor of the Collegiate Baptist church at Colgate university, likewise an old friend, led the prayers and made a few remarks. "There are here to pay him tribute," he said, "those who have come from the woodland and the field, the shop and the school, the church and offices of state, the mart and the ocean's shore. This man has taught us the beauty of the Lord's creations, of the river, the stream, the valley, the birds and beasts."

Wild Flowers Deck Bier When he had finished the soft flute and violin notes of a cradle song were heard. Then the mourners filed by the bier for a last look at Mr. Burroughs. Some placed flowers on the coffin to keep as remembrances. There were many floral offerings, all of them wild flowers gathered from the fields and hill sides.

The children of West Park, who frequently visited Riverby to learn of animal and vegetable life from the aged nature lover, stepped softly past the dead, each leaving a bunch of wild flowers. From all sections of the nation letters came today telling of the love for the naturalist and his inspiration to those who find comfort and contentment in the great outdoors.

Tomorrow, Mr. Burroughs' eighty-fourth birthday, his body will be taken by automobile into the western Catskills and interred at the place where he was born, near Roxbury. Many of those who attended his funeral will go to "Woodchuck Lodge," his home in the mountains, for the burial.

PROponents OF PEACE IN SENATE FIRM

Congressional Resolution To Be Presented By Advocates On Convening Of Extra Session.

HARDING'S OPINION NOT YET LEARNED

Conference Considered Most Important Since Administration Change

WASHINGTON, April 2.—Senate proponents of an immediate peace with Germany by congressional resolution are understood to be standing firmly by their intention to present such a resolution promptly on the convening of the extra session of congress.

This information was obtained tonight after a day of White House conferences which the advisability of a congressional declaration of peace together with other questions involved were understood to have been discussed.

Whether the intention of peace-resolution senators has been approved by President Harding and whether it has the support of senate republicans generally, were matters on which no information was available.

The conferences were generally considered in the bearing on international affairs as probably as the most important that President Harding has held since his inauguration.

Senator Knox, former secretary of state and author of the republican peace resolution, Colonel George Harvey of New York, selected as ambassador to Great Britain, Myron T. Herrick, of Ohio, understood to be under consideration for ambassador to France, and Stephane Lausanne, French journalist, who came to America with former Premier Viviani, were among those whom the president saw.

By inference the day's developments were coupled with the visit of M. Viviani. Gossip about his mission persistently has suggested that he is supposed to persuade the administration not to push its peace declaration, but rather to consider on what basis it might accept the Versailles treaty.

Senator Knox and the president spent more than two hours together. The senator's visit started a new outcropping of speculation about the fate of the peace resolution.

The impression given was that a definite policy was yet to be framed.

RUSSIAN INDUSTRY APPROVES NOTE

Hughes Decision to Soviets Meets Favor of Trade Union

PARIS, April 2.—(By The Associated Press)—The union of finance, trade and industry, claiming to represent nearly all of Russia's industry and commerce has drawn up a resolution approving the note Secretary Hughes sent to Soviet Russia in reply to the request that the United States open trade relations with Russia. The resolution also condemns the Anglo-Russian trade agreement, which it describes as a temporary agreement carrying only secondary advantages in commercial dealings "to the detriment of the vital interests of a great country."

Contrasted with this act, the resolution says Mr. Hughes' note "appears like a ray of light." The American people, it adds, appreciate the real Russian democracy.

STATE AGENT LEVELS GUNS AT SPEEDERS

Officers Start Campaign to Rid Salem and Vicinity of Motor Offenders

T. A. Rafferty, in charge of the field agents for the state mobile department of the secretary of state's office announced yesterday that beginning Monday war would be waged on traffic violators in Salem and vicinity. Mr. Rafferty will have the support of Chief of Police Moffitt and Sheriff Hower, and it is predicted that his program will not be in vain.

All persons violating traffic ordinances of the city will be arrested and prosecuted, regardless of whether the infractions relate to speeding, cutting corners, violation of mufflers, dimmers or other irregularities in the code of automobile ethics.

Mr. Rafferty said today that he and his deputy had recently returned from Pendleton where they spent four days. During that time they rounded up a large number of traffic violators, and in several instances the offenders were fined by the courts. Accidents have become too numerous of late, Mr. Rafferty said, and in most instances have been due to traffic violations. Future enforcement of the traffic statutes will partially, if not entirely eliminate the dangers now confronting the motor vehicle operator, according to Mr. Rafferty.

Chief Moffitt said that he did not believe Salem motorists would consider the warning with any degree of seriousness, therefore he expects that the month will be remunerative as far as fines are concerned.

DEATH LOSSES ARE REDUCED TO NINE

Investigation Continued Till Monday; Report Expected Then

SEATTLE, Wash., April 2.—Death losses from the sinking of the steamship Governor off Point Wilson early yesterday, were reduced to nine late today when error in the list of survivors was cleared up by the discovery that the name Alfred Kaseau, Los Angeles, reported missing, should have been Alvar Risen, Spokane, Wash., who was saved.

Research learned only today of the error and immediately reported to officials of the Pacific Steamship company. He said he had not seen the list of survivors and missing until today and then realized that through the error in names, he had been reported missing.

Interest today centered in the federal investigation of the disaster which is expected to arise in fixing the blame for the collision of the Governor with the freighter West Hartland.

Captain Harry H. Marden, the veteran mariner who piloted the Governor on her last voyage, and Captain E. P. Bartlett, master of the vessel, were questioned at the inquiry today, conducted by Harry C. Lord and Donald S. Ames, United States steamboat inspectors.

The hearing was continued until Monday when it is expected a report will be rendered.

The district attorney's office and the department of justice today continued their separate investigation of the tragedy to protect government interests, involved by the fact that the West Hartland is owned by the shipping board emergency fleet corporation.

The freighter Brookline, now lying in the Union Seattle wharf, taking the cargo of the West Hartland after which the latter vessel will be towed to drydock for repairs. It was said today the cost of repairs would probably be near $700,000.

The hearing was continued until Monday when it is expected a report will be rendered.

SEED WILL BE PURCHASED BY BROCCOLI MEN

C. C. Russell, Waconda Grower, Elected Permanent President Of Growers' Association Last Night.

NEW ACREAGE ADDED BRINGS TOTAL TO 80

Instructive Address Is Given By Prof. Bouquet, Agricultural College

There was a splendid broccoli meeting at the Salem Commercial club auditorium last night—the crowd filling nearly all the seats, and men being there from as far away as the Hubbard neighborhood, where there has been some successful broccoli growing on a small scale.

Prof. A. G. B. Bouquet of Oregon Agricultural college was present and made a thoroughly practical talk, and answered many questions.

He said broccoli has been grown in Oregon for 30 years, in the Oswego district. But the growing of this vegetable on a commercial scale, for shipment to the eastern markets, was originated in the Roseburg district only eight years ago.

He very strongly advocated the prime necessity of good seed, and he urged that only the best methods of growing should be used, with rich, well drained soil, and with thorough cultivation.

There is a good market, he said, there is no trouble about the market—if the best broccoli is grown; if the product is properly packed, and forwarded in the best possible condition.

It is all up to the grower, Professor Bouquet said.

He said the industry ought to come to seed certification, in order to insure the best possible pack from this state, and one running true to established standards year after year.
