

D. S. C. AWARD GRANTED TO 36

Adjutant General Compiles
List of Oregonians Receiving Honor

SALEM MAN INCLUDED

Exploits of Daring Recorded
In Official Records of Recent War

Thirty-six Oregon men received the coveted service cross for exceptional bravery in battle, according to a compilation added to the state's official war record yesterday by George A. White, adjutant general of the state. One man received the congressional medal of honor, the highest award in the gift of the country.

These names, added to the list of those decorated by foreign governments, brings the total number of decorated Oregonians up to 187. The list is now complete except for those who received the American distinguished service medal, which differs from the distinguished service cross in that it is given chiefly for extraordinary service other than battle service. Several Oregonians are known to have received this award and this list will be added to the state's records in the course of a few weeks. Colonel White stated. A few later awards of the D. S. C. may also be located.

cross men 20 were enlisted men and 15 officers. Thirty-three served in the army or marine corps and two in the navy. Extraordinary heroism far above the call of duty is the basis of each award by the American government.

Edward C. Allworth is the Oregonian who was given the congressional medal of honor and his exploit includes swimming a canal at the head of his men and leading an attack on a superior force, capturing machine guns, a hundred prisoners and making possible the advance of other troops which had been held in check by machine gun fire. Allworth remained in the regular army as a captain.

Intrepidity and courage in the highest form is shown in every Oregon citation for the distinguished service crosses. Sergeant Ernest E. Ely of Eugene was under heavy fire for five days and nights until carried unconscious to a dressing station overcome by German poison gas.

On regaining consciousness he escaped from the hospital and made his way back to his post where he fought until gassed a second time. Lieutenant John C. Burgard of Portland led a surprise attack on German machine guns, capturing 21 of the enemy together with a machine gun and two light machine guns. Corporal Hursey A. Dakin of Freewater, volunteered with another soldier to attack a German machine gun nest, which mission they were successful in after advancing under heavy fire and killing part of the crew.

Every citation recounts some such record of devotion and courage. The complete list of Oregon distinguished service cross men, 14 of whom are Portland men follows:

Ward M. Ackley, captain 363rd infantry; Hobart M. Bird, sergeant Battery A 147th field artillery; John C. Burgard, first lieutenant 362nd infantry; James P. Crowden, captain fourth engineers; William Hansen, corporal fifth marines; Ernest C. Kyle, private 116th ambulance company; Eugene McEntee, private 26th infantry; George B. Noble, first lieutenant 168th infantry.

Merger Means Fruit Control
Will L. Finch of New York Says World Market Will Be Captured
QUALITY IS MADE BASIS
Regional Headquarters Are Opened in Portland, Seattle and Tacoma

PORTLAND, April 4.—Merger of the canning industry of the states of Washington and Oregon will have a decidedly good effect on the condition of the growers of fruits and berries, according to Will L. Finch of New York, one of the leaders in the formation of the new $10,000,000 corporation merging the canneries of Oregon and Washington, under the name of the Oregon-Washington Canning & Preserving company.

Mr. Finch, who took a big part in the organization of the giant merger, has returned to Portland from Seattle where for the last week he has been actively at work lining up various plants and arranging to take over those plants most strategically located and best adapted to turning out the product.

World Scope Purpose.
"This corporation intends to build up an industry which will be world-wide in its scope," said Mr. Finch. "It is founded on far-sighted principles and one of the things which it seeks to do before anything else is to make sure that the growers prosper to such an extent that they will be an advertisement to others of the advantages of intensive berry and fruit farming in western Washington and western Oregon. To achieve such a result the Oregon-Washington Canning & Preserving company must see to it that the growers prosper. We have 3,000,000 acres of land in the two states available for scientific berry and fruit raising. We want to see every one of those acres under cultivation by people who are making money."

Market Control Planned.
"We will have a market for our product throughout the entire United States, and expect within a year to have made such headway with our selling organization that we will virtually control the market. We will do this by showing that we have the quality to such an extent that no other part of the world can compete with us, because we do have the quality, due to the wonderful advantages from the exact temperature and moisture needed to give the proper flavor, texture and profusion to our product."

"One of the greatest benefits to the growers will be a sure market. Under conditions of the last year or so, especially last year, the canneries, many of them, were handicapped by lack of a selling organization based on scientific principles. This has resulted in threatened shut-down by many of the plants and the growers are now facing real trouble. We, however, hope to come to their rescue to such an extent that we will be able to take care of virtually every berry breaking crop is imminent. And in doing so, we know we can, with the solid business judgment and financial backing which we have with us, work along such lines that there will be a large profit to the canner as well as to the fruit grower.

Regional Offices Opened.
The new corporation has opened regional offices in Portland, Seattle and Tacoma and is so arranging its affairs that in all probability the merger will be completed and functioning by the opening of the ensuing berry season.

PRAISES THEM TO HIS FRIENDS
Backache is a symptom of weak or disordered kidneys. Stiff and painful joints, rheumatic aches, sore muscles, puffiness under the eyes are others. These symptoms indicate that the kidneys and bladder need help to do the work of filtering and casting out from the system poisons and waste products that cause trouble. Ben Richardson, Wingrove, W. Va., writes: "I will praise Foley Kidney Pills because they have helped me." — Sold everywhere. — (adv.)

Robertson Qualifies and Starts on His First Trip
State Senator O. B. Robertson of Condon yesterday qualified as state bank examiner, a position to which he recently was appointed by Frank C. Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, with the confirmation of the state banking board.

Mr. Robertson at once left on an official tour covering eastern Oregon depositories, in company with W. M. Adair, assistant state superintendent.
