We Have No Favorites

In the pony contests there are no favorites. We treat all alike and if you work for one of our ponies you will be honestly and fairly treated. You will surely get one of our ponies if you are entitled to it. In canvassing or collecting for our publications you are working for the best in their class.

The Estimating Competition

How Good Are You At Estimating?

We are going to give away absolutely free $50.00 in gold.

You Can Win a Gold Prize

Read How to Win These Gold Prizes

Can you tell us how many kernels of wheat there are in this quart jar. The contestants whose estimates are correct or nearest correct will win these gold prizes. In case of a tie the estimates first received will win.

Any person (except regular adult employees of the Statesman or Pacific Homestead) can enter this contest but all estimates must be accompanied by one or more new or renewal subscriptions to the Daily Statesman, the Semi-Weekly Statesman, The Pacific Homestead, The Northwest Poultry Journal or the Oregon Teachers Monthly.

How to Earn Estimates—Estimates will be allowed on any of the above mentioned publications in accordance with the following schedule:

Schedule of Estimates

One new subscription without deposit—5 estimates allowed. One additional estimate will be allowed for each 25 cents paid on a new, arrearage or renewal subscriptions to any of our publications. No estimates allowed on renewals or arrearage subscriptions without a cash payment.

Send in your own subscription and as many more as you are able to secure. You may hand them to a contestant who is working in the pony voting contest or send in direct to the Statesman on your own account to be credited to yourself. By registering several different estimates you are able to protect yourself against any error in your calculations, thereby having a better chance to win a prize. Here it is in short—you get one estimate for every 25 cents paid on subscriptions and an additional five estimates for every new subscription turned in either for yourself or that of a friend. These subscriptions may be either your own or those of your neighbors. Somebody is going to win these cash prizes—why not you?

The Official Quart Jar of Wheat

This official wheat jar is an ordinary Kerr Economy quart jar filled as full as the jar will hold with Red Fife wheat—1920 crop, grown near Chemawa, Oregon.

D. A. White, seed merchant, Salem, supplied the wheat. He also weighed the wheat, poured the wheat into the bottle in the presence of the pony contest editor.

The wheat alone (not counting the weight of the bottle) weighs (26½) twenty-six and one half ounces. The bottle was carefully sealed by Mr. White and will remain sealed until the end of the competition when it will be opened and the whole kernels of wheat will be counted with great care. Bear in mind that broken kernels do not count—nor oat or other seeds that are usually found in wheat—whole kernels of wheat only will be counted, although the average number of other seeds are undoubtedly in the bottle—remember that these other seeds do not count—only whole kernels of wheat will be counted.
