History Proves Monroe Doctrine Unselfish Says President

NEW YORK, April 19.—The republics of North and South America joined hands across the Caribbean today, commemorating heroes of each continent.

Amid the roar of cannon and plaudits of a distinguished gathering, President Harding at the bronze equestrian statue of Simon Bolivar unveiled in Central Park, New York, proclaimed anew the fundamentals of the Monroe doctrine and cited the desirability of standing firmly together for service both to the new and the old world.

Simultaneously in Caracas, Venezuela's capital, President-elect Gomez and the people of Bolivar's native land, gathered around the statue of George Washington which was unveiled in Washington park.

President Harding's brief visit here gave the public its first opportunity to greet him with the enthusiasm always reserved for the nation's chief executive. From the moment of his arrival until his departure three and a half hours later crowds waited moodily in the chilly streets and cheered a cordial welcome.

President Harding was generously applauded when he declared the United States is ready to fight in upholding the Monroe doctrine.

"The history of the generations since that doctrine was proposed," he said, "has proved we never intended it selfishly, that we had no dream of exploitation. On the other side, the history of the last decade certainly must have convinced the world that we still stand willing to fight if necessary to protect these continents from oppression."

The president's arrival at Bolivar hill was signalized by a salute of 21 guns. After he had been escorted to the stand facing the statue followed by Secretary Hughes, Rene Viviani, envoy extraordinary from France, Governor Miller, Mayor Hylan, Dr. E. Gil-Borges, Venezuelan foreign minister, and Latin-American diplomats, and representatives of patriotic societies of both continents, the ceremonies began.

Monsignor M. J. Lavelle of St. Patrick's cathedral offered the invocation.

The unveiling by the great granddaughters of General Jose Antonio Paez was the occasion for another salute of 21 guns followed by the playing of the Venezuelan national anthem by a band from the Brazilian battleship Minas Geraes and the presentation of the Venezuelan flag by Mayor Hylan accepted for the city of New York and wreaths were laid at the base of the statue. Governor Miller then eulogized the South American liberator.

President Harding's departure after Dr. William T. Manning, bishop-elect of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, had pronounced the benediction brought another salute of 21 guns. Through the smoke of the artillery and flanked by motorcycle policemen, he was driven at high speed through lanes of cheering men and women to the "Light-house" for the blind where he spoke for one minute to a sightless audience.

The president began to speak slowly and softly in tones scarcely audible to those in the rear of the auditorium. There was a distinct tremor in his voice.

"I want you to know that if there is anything I can do to set aglow a flame in the soul that is denied light, God helping me I mean to do it," the president barely whispered. "I would like to make all America realize what this great work means and to do its utmost to help those I cannot see. I would like to make you understand how deeply I want to bring you some lights in your hearts and I wish for you all the joy that you can find, in compensation for the loss of the great light."

The president carried away a tiny plaster elephant modeled by Rocco de Mucio, a youthful blind sculptor who died at the Light-house. It was mounted on carved wood.

The president who was accompanied by Mrs. Harding and several friends then boarded his special train.

Senator Stanfield's Appeal To Supreme Court Not To Be Dismissed

In the case of Robert H. Stanfield, plaintiff and appellant, vs. Rector Arwine, the supreme court yesterday in an oral opinion overruled a motion of Arwine to dismiss, on condition that a new bond be filed by Senator Stanfield on or before April 1.

Stanfield entered into a contract with Arwine whereby the latter was to deliver 3800 lambs to Stanfield at $9 a head on October 1, 1918. The defendant, it is alleged, failed to deliver and Stanfield sued to collect $5000 that he had advanced and other smaller sums representing expenses. The appeal is from the lower court for Malheur county where Arwine was awarded a decree.

Bank Case Decided.

The court, in an opinion by Justice Harris, held for the defendant bank and affirmed Judge Parker of the lower court for Multnomah county in the case of the First National bank of Portland, appellant, vs. The United States National bank of Portland, which is the appealing bank sought to recover $532.50 on forged checks that were drawn on the First National and passed on the United States National.

On December 2, 1918, two unknown persons took from a printing office employed by the Wilamette Iron & Steel works a number of pay checks that had been printed for the iron and steel company. On those were forged the name of M. H. Insley, secretary-treasurer of the company, and the payees named were "Martin Shea" and "William Rose."

Upon being cashed at the United States National bank, the checks went through the clearing house and upon their discovery the First National instituted suit to recover.

Other Opinions.

Other opinions handed down follow:

W. S. Barnum vs Southern Oregon Traction company et al, defendant, and California-Oregon Power company, intersore and appellant; motion for modification; opinion by Justice Harris. Modification allowed; appealed from Jackson county.

William A. Salling vs First National bank of Tillamook, appellant, and Tillamook county, defendant; title; opinion by Justice Bean. Judge George B. Bagley affirmed.

Joseph W. Kirk, appellant, vs C. S. Mullen et al, appeal from Marion county; suit to remove cloud on title to road property; judgment and sale declared void; opinion by Justice McBride; Judge George C. Bingham reversed.

Edith A. Grignon vs D. F. Shope, appellant, appeal from Multnomah county; action on promissory note; opinion by Justice Bean; Judge Robert C. Morrow affirmed.

Harvey A. Westfall, appellant, vs Florence Edna Westfall, appeal from Yamhill county, suit to annul marriage contract; opinion by Justice Brown. Judge M. H. Bolt affirmed.

Rosina Sprague, appellant, vs City of Astoria, appeal from Clatsop county; suit for damages for personal injury. Opinion by Justice Brown; Judge J. A. Eakin reversed and case remanded.

Robert E. Eaton et al, vs Roy Lake et al, appellants, appeal from Deschutes county; suit for damages arising out of alleged killing of dog. Opinion by Justice Johns; Judge T. E. J. Duffy affirmed.

Southern Oregon company vs W. W. Gage as sheriff and tax collector of Coos county et al, defendants and respondents, and the Menasha Woodware company, appellant, appeal from Coos county; suit to recover taxes; opinion by Chief Justice Burnett; Judge G. F. Skipworth reversed.

Irwin-Hodson Lowest on Bids for License Plates

The Irwin-Hodson company of Portland and the Tittle Manufacturing company of Los Angeles were the lowest bidders on Oregon automobile license plates for 1922, which were opened yesterday by Secretary of State Koser. The bid of the former was 17.5 cents a plate, and the bid of the latter was 19.9 cents. The cost of the 1921 plates was 21 cents.

Secretary Koser said 135,000 plates will be ordered. They will have the beaded instead of the rolled edge of the plate now in use. The color combination has not been decided upon, but it will be a combination giving a contrast with the colors of other neighboring states.

JAM AND JELLY BUSINESS GROWS

Plans of Oregon-Washington Merger Told by G. C. Corbaley

PORTLAND, Ore., April 19.—The United States uses between 30,000,000 and 40,000,000 cases of jam every year. That output comes from about 2000 manufacturers. No attempt has ever been made to standardize the business in the province of the Oregon-Washington Canning & Preserving company to put, for the first time, the making of jams on a standard basis, and by so doing we have the opportunity to take the lion's share of this enormous industry."

Thus Gordon C. Corbaley, fruit and canning expert of Seattle, sums up the situation in the jam-making and canning business. Mr. Corbaley sees in the nationwide shortage in berry products this year, coupled with a large supply in the future, a chance to take advantage of the unsettled condition and make the terms "jam" and "Oregon-Washington" virtually synonymous.

"A few years ago the Puyallup & Sumner plant, which was the first unit to be taken in by the Oregon-Washington Canning & Preserving company, started making jams," said Mr. Corbaley. "As a result of careful and scientific marketing—backed by berries with finer flavor than are produced in any other part of the land—this concern already has a wider distribution for its jams than any other. The product was sold last year to 650 of the 6500 wholesale grocers in the country and to every state in the union.

"What has been done by this one company can be done on an even larger scale by the big merger. We can carry the message of quality at a time when, through lack of supplies, those canneries which have been supplying inferior jams are unable to furnish the product. Once we have introduced our superior fruits, the rest will be easy. We have the chance right now to seize the jam and canned fruit trade of the nation. This chance will not last another year because conditions will surely change. That is why we find it vital right now to hurry final organization of the big merger."

Bump of Gratitude's Small, Say Hotel Folk

When Irene Carmichael, an employe of the Marion hotel, found a money belt beneath a pillow in a room that had been occupied by a guest who had "checked out," she took the belt to the hotel office and efforts were at once begun to locate its owner, presumably R. T. Martin, a traveling man who had slept in the room. First the money was counted in the presence of witnesses and the contents showed $1400 in $100-bills.

Martin's residence is said to be in Portland, but he was not located until he telephoned from Albany.

A. N. Pierce, manager of the Marion, was going to Albany next day on an up-valley fishing trip and personally took the belt to Martin at the Albany hotel. It is said that Martin complained that there should have been $1500 instead of $1400 in the belt. The hotel people feel that Martin's bump of gratitude is not very well developed.

Quine is Appointed Douglas County Judge

George Quine, former sheriff of Douglas county, has been appointed by Governor Olcott as county judge to succeed D. J. Stewart of Roseburg, who has resigned because of the condition of his health.

Stewart was appointed judge by Governor Olcott in August, 1919, and was re-elected last November. Quine was sheriff for several terms. He is thoroughly acquainted with road work in Douglas county, having had charge of road work of importance for some time.

SPRING AILMENTS

Impure Blood, Humors—Relief in a Good Medicine.

Spring ailments are due to impure, thin, devalitized blood. Among them are pimples, boils, other eruptions, catarrh, rheumatism, loss of appetite, that tired feeling, nervousness and "all run-down" conditions.

Hood's Sarsaparilla combines the roots, barks, herbs, berries and other medicinals that have been found in many years of intelligent observation to be most effective in the treatment of these ailments.

Successful physicians prescribe the same ingredients for diseases of the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys, and in cases where alterative and tonic effects are needed.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is the spring medicine that purifies, enriches and revitalizes your blood, increasing power of resistance to disease.
