M'CARREN ELECTED HEAD OF VETERANS (Continued from page 1)

Appeals were made in behalf of the disabled veterans in the different towns of the state who are not being properly taken care of and a committee was ordered to take this matter up. There are about 200 disabled veterans in Corvallis, and the commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars is directed to name a special committee to look out for their rights. The only real contest of the session was over the position of state commander. Portland is the parent post and had been instrumental in organizing the outside posts, so that position was conceded to Portland for the first time, and a warm fight developed between Judge Richard Deich of Portland and James McCarren of Portland, formerly an auditor for the state industrial accident commission. The Portland delegates split and it was necessary for the outside delegates to settle the matter. McCarren has been one of the most active members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars since its organization, and was the second commander of Over-the-Top post of Portland. McCarren was largely responsible for the organization of the Salem post, and assisted in its installation. Visitors Banqueted. The hall of representatives at the state capitol was placed at the disposal of the veterans by Secretary of State Kozer, who had both the hall and the rotunda decorated in the national colors for the occasion. He was given a vote of thanks for his courtesy. At the noon hour the visitors were entertained at luncheon in the banquet room of the Hotel Marion by the members of Marion post acting as hosts. Col. Charlie Abrams acted as toastmaster and called upon Col. John L. May of Portland, Bolton Hamble of Salem, Dr. J. C. Booth of Lebanon, James Walsh of Portland, Commanders Hagerman of Salem, the commanders of all of the outside posts represented, and the two cand dates for department commander, Judge Deich and James McCarren. Strength comes from well digested and thoroughly assimilated food. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the digestive organs and thus builds up the strength. If you are getting "run down," begin taking Hood's at once. It gives nerve, mental and digestive strength.—Adv.

OLCOTT FAVORS EXCLUSION ACT

Letter Written to Oregon Delegation Urging Anti-Japanese Measure

Governor Olcott yesterday sent a letter to members of the Oregon delegation in congress expressing the hope that congress will take action for a rigid exclusion of Japanese. The governor writes: "This office is in receipt of a communication from the Hon. William D. Stephens, governor of California, in which he urges that I write to each of our state delegations in Washington asking their co-operation with the California delegation in an effort to secure absolute exclusion of Japanese immigration under conditions which will save any real humiliation to Japan and will make for peace now and permanent friendship hereafter between this country and Japan. I feel very strongly upon this Japanese question and made an urgent appeal as I knew how to the recent legislature for proper legislation dealing with the subject. While such legislation was not enacted I do sincerely hope that the federal government will take a strong position in this matter and insist upon rigid exclusion which, I believe, must eventually be the satisfactory solution of this great problem."

Turning to Raymond Clark, foreman on a construction job in the vicinity of the explosion, Smith asked if that description fitted the man that Clark had seen shortly after the blast. Clark, who also went to Scranton today to see if he could recognize Ligi, but who failed to do so, admitted that the general description fitted the man who, a few moments after the explosion, had rushed up to him and shouted: "My God, my horse has been killed." Smith said the other man standing by the wagon was taller and better dressed. This man, whom he identified as Ligi, was wrangling, he said, with the smaller man apparently trying to induce him to leave the neighborhood. "The shorter man," Smith added, "apparently did not want to go. I thought they were going to fight and I stayed around a moment, but there was no fight and I went on, turning up Nassau street. Three Men Fled. "Just after I passed the corner of Nassau and Cedar streets, I heard the explosion. I turned to go back to Wall street, but was stopped by the rush of people fleeing up Nassau street. Running by me in the crowd I saw three men going westward in Cedar street toward Broadway and one of them was the man I had seen wrangling with the wagon driver. Neither of the two men with him, however, was the driver. "One of Ligi's companions was an Italian about five feet, eight inches, fairly well built. The other also appeared to be an Italian and was about five feet six. He had a stubby black moustache. The man who had been with the driver was urging these two men along. "I noticed that the voice was the same as that of the man I had heard wrangling with the wagon driver and when I looked at it was the same man." Confronting Ligi this afternoon Smith again made a test of the prisoner's voice. When Ligi denied he had ever seen Smith, the insurance man declared the voice apparently was the same he had heard, both before the explosion and a few minutes after. Ligi is being held in $10,000 bail here for appearance before a federal court in Harrisburg May 2, on a charge of evading the draft.

was positively identified as a man seen talking to the driver of the death wagon shortly before the tragedy, by Thomas J. Smith of Brooklyn, employed in the legal department of an insurance company in Manhattan. The other incident that caused unusual police activity was the suicide of Adolph La Sar, 57 years old, in his furnished room in Brooklyn. In an incoherent diary mentioning half a dozen names of men in New York and Chicago, was written: "They furnished the wagon-load of T. N. T. with which I blew up Wall street."

Close examination of the man's effects and inquiry into his habits while in the Brooklyn house, convinced the police tonight that the suicide was mentally deranged, and none of the evidence associated him with the crime. Three wills, leaving his clothing and a few personal effects to persons who could not be located, were among the papers. In another note to his landlady he said he was "leaving for a better world."

Wagon Hit By Auto—A. F. Bailey, 1800 Commercial street, who is driving a team with a load of lumber yesterday out of the Spalding lumber yard in turning north on Front street, was struck by an automobile driven by James Miles of route 1. Mr. Miles was traveling west on State street and in turning north on Front street, in order to evade a collision with another car drove too close to the load of lumber. Luck by no serious damage was done.
