TWO PROTESTS ARE RECEIVED

Proposed Purchase of Central Oregon Project Arouses Board

SETTLERS ALSO OBJECT

Appropriation of $400,000 For Investigation May Be In Jeopardy

Two protests already have been received by the state desert land board against the proposal of the Title & Trust company of Portland to take over the interest of the Central Oregon Irrigation company in the central Oregon irrigation project, which was presented to the board at a meeting last week by Jesse Stearns and Denton G. Burdick, representing the company, and Robert E. Smith, representing the Title & Trust company. Oswald West also appeared in behalf of both parties seeking the transfer.

Approval Urged. These representatives urge approval of the transfer by the board forthwith and submitted a written order for the board to sign. Percy A. Cupper, state engineer, however, held out against this, declaring that there were other interests that must be considered before action was taken. Mr. West urged at least a general approval of the plan by the state engineer, but Mr. Cupper would not yield until he had made a close scrutiny of the proposal.

One of the protests received by the board comes from the Central Oregon Irrigation district, and the other is from the federal commission appointed by the reclamation service and the federal power commission to study existing conditions on the Deschutes river as related to reclamation. The members of this commission are D. C. Heney, consulting engineer for the United States reclamation service; Fred F. Henshaw, of the United States geological survey, and Colonel Cavanaugh of the United States army.

Hearing Is Demanded. The district's protest is of general nature and asks that action be deferred until all persons and corporations interested have been given opportunity for hearing. The basis of the protest by the federal commission is that the proposed appropriation of $400,000 authorized by the United States reclamation service to begin work on the Deschutes irrigation project.

It was said here yesterday by members of the state desert land board that all interested persons will be given opportunity for hearing before any decision is reached relative to the proposed transaction.

Improvement Planned. The proposal would leave with the Central Oregon Irrigation company all rights necessary to fulfill existing contracts in the Hutto Falls unit. All unsold lands in the North Canal unit would be transferred, and according to Mr. Smith, developed to cost an estimated $750,000 would begin.

Monday after spending the weekend at Washougal, Wash. Winnie Tate, prosperous young farmer of the Macleay vicinity, was in Salem Monday attending business.

G. E. Ross is spending two or three days in Portland on a business trip.

George White Given Jos. H. Albert Prize

George White was yesterday elected by the senior class of the Salem high school to receive the Joseph H. Albert award for this year. White is a student of high standing in the school and although not very active in school activities has, nevertheless, exerted a great influence for good.

Ralph Bailey and Alfred Montgomery were other nominees for the award.

The annual award to the school was established several years ago by Mr. Albert for the purpose of recognizing those who had exceeded their effort toward bettering conditions in the school. Nominations for the honor are made by the faculty who choose three from whom the senior class elects one. The honor carries with it an award of $25. The basis for selection is mainly that of character. The respect which the candidate has been able to command by his fellow students, as well as scholastic standing, also enters in.

Cherrians Will Wear Uniform— King Bing of the Cherrians has issued a call to all Cherrians assisting them to wear their uniforms or the Cherrian ball at the assembly tonight, doing this to avoid the misunderstanding which has usually occurred over this very thing in previous years. Steelhammer's seven piece orchestra will furnish the music for the dance, which starts at 9 o'clock. The drill team will drill from 8 until 8 o'clock.

"That speech," said the secretary, "will enable anybody to know exactly what you had in mind."

"Do you think so?" exclaimed Senator Sorghum. "In that case we'd better get to work immediately and re-write it."—Washington Star.

CAN YOU WRITE A GOOD AD?

If you think you know how to write a good classified advertisement, here's your chance to win one of the three cash awards the Statesman will give each week for the best story entitled "How to Write a Classified Ad."

The first awards will be announced in Tuesday's issue of each week, the first announcement, Tuesday, April 26. Contestants must see that their "stories" reach the Statesman office before Monday morning of each week in order to be considered.

The awards will be as follows: first award, $2.00; second award, $1.50; third award $1.00.

The Statesman wants your ideas as to how these ads should be written to get the best results. Tell us what you would say in your ad and why you would say it. Don't forget the why. For example, do you think it should contain price of the article offered for sale, or the price you are willing to pay for an article you want to buy? If you think the ad should contain the price, tell us why. If you think it better to leave the price out of the ad, tell us why.

Should it contain description? Why? Should it contain location? Why? Should it describe quality? Why? Tell us about ads for "help wanted" and "work wanted", etc., etc. Also about any and all other kinds of classified ads.

Write your stories plainly on one side of paper only and mail to Classified Ad Manager, Oregon Statesman, Salem, Oregon.

This Week's Award. A number of very interesting "stories" about how to write a classified ad, were received last week; the judges have decided upon the following as winners:

First award, $2.50, Mrs. Nettie Graham, Gen. Del., Salem.

Second award, F. M. Miller, 517 N. Capitol st., Salem. Third award, M. F. W. Allen, 625 N. Winter st., Salem, Ore.

The story winning third award is published in full below; the others will be published in future issues of The Statesman. Watch for them.

How I Would Write a Classified Ad. In writing classified advertisements, one should, I think, be very explicit, going into detail as much as the length of the ad will allow, and the advertisement of too brief a nature, is not the one to be desired as a rule.

Description, location, quality, price and all should be given (with one exception), because people wishing to buy or in employing others, know for the most part, just what they want and if the ad is descriptive, they are enabled to determine then, if that is the one they should reply to or not. This also applies to the one advertising for work; give your qualifications, then the employer knows just what to expect, therefore saving needless time and trouble for both parties concerned.

The one exception would be in advertising land for sale, where by the price may be withheld with good effect, unless the ad should be a great bargain; in that case the price given, of course would help to further the sale. But in many instances one buying land or a home, does not allow the matter of a few hundred dollars to stand between them and the buy providing it is just what they want. This amount might be paid after viewing the place, where, if the price given in first instance might keep one from considering at all. But even in a case of this kind the ad should read reasonable. All fraudulent and misleading advertising should be avoided, as they are never satisfactory, and often reflect discredit on the paper advertising them and the papers nearly always are blameless in the matter. Very truly,

Gen. Del., Salem.

COMMUNITY SING FOR NEWCOMERS

Second Reception Will Be Held at Armory on May 18

A community sing will be the feature of the second reception to newcomers in the city which the Commercial club will give in the Armory, May 18. This decision was reached late yesterday afternoon after a meeting of the committee which has in charge the welcoming of new residents to the city for this year.

The plans at present are to secure one of the best song leaders on the coast to lead the singing which will probably last for about an hour and will serve to bring the people very close together. Following that some speaker of national reputation, about whom the committee is at present undecided, will speak to the guests and to the Commercial club men. Dancing, including the Virginia Reel and other old-fashioned dances, will conclude the evening's entertainment.

Preparations are being made to take care of as many people as the Armory can hold, according to members of the committee. Invitations will, of course, be sent out to those newcomers about whom the Commercial club knows but there will be many persons who have been in the city a year or less and missed and they are expected to attend anyway.

Committees for the various phases of the reception will be appointed in a few days by Dr. Henry E. Morris, chairman of the committee.

The committee is composed of Dr. H. E. Morris, Otto K. Paulus, Colonel E. Hofer, R. O. Snelling and T. E. McCroskey.
