STARTING SUNDAY

GRAND

Representatives of the Mormon sugar interests of Utah came to Salem before the war and proposed to build here in Salem a beet sugar factory. They told a meeting of men representing the business and property and banking interests here that they had been carrying on experiments, and that they had found that a large acreage here was comparable in this respect with the best sugar beet lands of Germany; and that there is no better in the world. They stated that, at the then prevailing prices of sugar, much lower than they have been at any time since, the proposed factory would pay expenses and overhead, and pay back the cost of the factory itself above the charges named, EVERY TWO YEARS.

The chances for a profitable manufacturing business in the making of beet sugar here in Salem are greater now than they were then, because there is a home market for the total output of a sugar factory-in the fruit concerns here, and in the larger population of the Salem district.

This matter ought by all means to be followed up vigorously. There should be a beet sugar factory in Salem, and it should be owned cooperatively, by our fruit growing and manufacturing interests and our home people generally. It would pay good dividends in two ways; in the profits of manufacturing, and in the indirect profits from the employment of the land with a crop that is a good rotation crop, and the employment of a large number of extra laborers in both country and city; all helping in the upbuilding of both the city and the country.

Next week, the Salem Slogan editor will try to prove that our farmers ought to grow more sorghum, tomatoes, garlic. horseradish, mushrooms, rhubarb, kale, and perhaps one or two other special crops which are especially adapted to our soil and climatic and other conditions.
