Can You Pick Out a Good Ad?
If you think you know a good classified ad, here's your chance to win one of the three cash awards the Statesman will give each week for the one who picks out the five "best written ads" on the Statesman classified page, May 12, 13 and 14.
The best selection, 1st award $2.50.
The second best selection, 2nd award $1.50.
The third best selection, 3rd award $1.00.
The best awards will be announced in Tuesday's issue of each week, the first announcement Tuesday May 17th. Contestants must see their selections reach the Statesman office before Monday morning of each week in order to be considered.
The Statesman wants your selections of the best classified ads. Please clip the five ads that you consider are the best in each issue and mail to the Classified Ad Manager, Oregon Statesman, Salem, Ore.

ORCHESTRA TO GIVE RECITAL
Christian Church Organization to Supplant Regular Evening Service
The Sunday school orchestra of the First Christian church Sunday school will appear in recital tonight at the First Christian church in place of the usual evening service. The orchestra is composed of 18 pieces, all local talent, over which Miss Martha Swart is director. It has been pronounced the best Sunday school orchestra on the Pacific coast.

Orchestra—"Poet and Peasant" (Suppe).

BITS FOR BREAKFAST
Gooseberries and Spinach—
They come first, and then it will be just one thing after another.
But no one will say anything about prices, for the present. However, there will have to be a showing of hands before long.
The Salem slogan man has been telling the fruit growers for two years that they must get more bees, and provide more bee pasture. He thinks there would have been a good many thousand more bushels of prunes in the Salem district next harvest if this advice had been more generally taken. With plenty of bee pastures for the late summer this would be the best bee country on earth; and bees must go with fruit. There can be no sure pollination without plenty of bees; billions of bees.
Edison has been calling college men applying to him for employment an idea that he was a writer. He could not answer a long list of questions concerning miscellaneous information having little or nothing to do with the qualifications for electric engineers. Why, bless the soul of the Wizard, there are men out at the end of Center street, guests of Dr. Lee Steiner, who can answer more questions correctly on many lines of knowledge than Mr. Edison can; yet they have been pronounced insane and are held as dangerous to be at large. Henry Ford testified before a committee of congress that he did not know who Benedict Arnold was; he had an idea that he was a writer. But Henry Ford is in his line the most successful man in the world; he makes half the buzz wagons that travel all the highways and byways, and he has done the "impossible" things in many branches of engineering and construction work. A man may say as full of miscellaneous information as the unabridged dictionary or the encyclopedia, and still have bats in his belfry and be a nut; and a man may know very few things in the vast range of knowledge, outside of his special line of work, and still be a howling success and far from being a numbskull, and whether he is a college graduate or merely holds a sheepskin from the university of hard knocks has very little to do with the case.

son is the immediate occasion, and the coming of warm, outdoor weather is the especial stimulus. As many as half a dozen applicants are in waiting at a time in the sporting goods store, to be measured for their new $5 permits.
Under the new law, a license for either fishing or hunting costs $3; the combined permit is worth $5. Last year, they sold a permit for $1.50 or $2 for the combination. The legislature hadn't had a chance to do anything to repair the state finances during the really busy times, but they did their duty nobly when they did get a chance, and the huntsman whose wage is approaching the vanishing point is now paying an increase of almost 100 per cent for his permit to have fun. But fun is such a necessity—or a luxury—that they've simply got to have it, and so the game fund is fatening on the fishing license.
The sale of fishing tackle is picking up like the demand for ice-water in the desert. Flies are coming into better demand and all the old favorites are being used. Good fishing is reported from the siltman, from Thomas creek, and from most of the usual trout headwaters. More fish are being taken than for years past, say good fishermen, showing that the fisheries department must be doing a good job of stocking the streams. Hundreds of fishermen are expected to leave Salem today to visit almost every foot of good fishing stream within a score of miles.

Runaways Cause Stir—A runaway team came down the alley between Front and Commercial streets and charged for a battery of automobiles parked on Ferry street. They devastated three cars, taking off fenders, headlights and appendages, without raising a hair on themselves. They weren't frightened much; they quieted down the others a week out of the water—but they sure did things to the buzz wagons.

Lad Is Recovering—Bronson, the 10-year-old son of B. J. Miles, is recovering from a severe attack of blood poisoning. A week ago he was playing with an open pocket knife, and the blade slipped and gave him a slight cut in the knee. The wound was treated in the usual way, but infection set in the next day, and for a number of days the boy was delirious and considered in a dangerous condition. His recovery is now believed to be sure.

A substantial increase in the number of electric light users in Salem in the year ending December 31, 1920, over that of the previous year is shown in a statement from the Portland Light and Power company's records. An increase of exactly 400 residence users of electric lights is shown of 2941 in 1919 and 3341 in 1920. During the same period of time lighting in the business section was increased from 325 to 366, in the lodging houses from 22 to 31 and miscellaneous distributions from 76 to 89. This shows a total increase of 436.
The increase of electric power users during 1920 is 19. This number includes heavy consumers such as the paper mill.
The gas consumption increased in 1920 in the business section from 181 to 185 and the residence districts show an increase of 122.

Man is Taken Into Custody When He Attempts Sale Of Lifted Article
A man giving his name as being W. A. Benson was taken in custody yesterday by the police, pending an investigation on a charge of taking a pocket kodak and an overcoat from an automobile owned by C. R. Bowen of Silverton, while the car was parked in front of Hamilton's furniture store on Court street.
Mr. Bowen reported the loss to the police station and Officer Porter was sent to see if either of the stolen articles had been taken to a second hand store to sell. He discovered Benson as he was in the act of selling the kodak in a local store. As he was leaving Porter took him by the collar and ordered him to come along. Benson protested his innocence, saying that the kodak had been given to him by another fellow to sell and that he was to return the money to him.
The kodak has been identified by Mr. Bowen as his. No clue as to the whereabouts of the overcoat has as yet been found.

BERLIN, April 19.—A report from Halle states that American coal is being offered for industrial plants in that section at a price 20 marks per ton below the present German figure. German industry is said to be suffering from a coal shortage owing to the enormous monthly deliveries to the Enneten.
The dispatch adds that Germany is gradually developing into a promising market for American coal in view of the prevalent aversion to purchasing the English product.

BINGHAM URGES PHYSICAL TEST

Suggestion Concerning Naturalization Receives Federal Attention

Should the suggestion of Judge G. G. Bingham of the circuit court be carried out, it may be necessary in the future in order for persons to secure naturalization papers to submit to a medical as well as an educational test.
The suggestion was embodied in a communication recently addressed to John Speed Smith, chief naturalization examiner of Seattle, who has referred the matter to the commissioner of naturalization in Washington for consideration.
In his letter Judge Bingham says: "A short time ago I saw in the public press a statement that on a survey in France a large percentage of the young men were found to be unfit for military duty and the difficulty was attributed to war conditions. Undoubtedly a good part may be the result of under nourishment and social disorders.
"I have thought it might be well to require of petitioners a medical examination as well as an educational test. One disadvantage I would suggest, that your department investigate this phase with reference to new naturalization regulations, which I have understood are in contemplation."
Judge Bingham has attracted wide attention for holding up the standard required for American citizenship. It was through his orders that wives are required by his court to be present if possible, when husbands are being examined for citizenship and that they also attend the meetings for instruction of the applicants, which he has asked to be given through the assistance of school
