Winner of Contest Will Lay Claim to Title For Pacific Northwest

By far the most important game layed by a Salem high school one for many years is scheduled for this afternoon when defenders of the Salem high colors will meet the nine of Columbia university, defenders of the Pacific northwest championship, in the third and final champlonship game on Multnomah field, Portland. A large number of local ang accompanied the team when it left for the Portland game this morning

Each team has won one game rom the other, Salem winning rom Columbia in Portland last Thursday by a 7 to 4 score, and olumbia deteating Salem in the cturn game here Saturday. Both. eams are in trim shape for the attle, and the finest game of ball played by high school teams in he state this year is in prospect when the two cross bats today. Both teams have played almost perfect baseball, especially in their first game, when Salem made but one error vet was able to make but four hits for the four tallies.

Ashby and Caughill will again ompose the battery for the Saiem team, with the regular sup-Chances seem to be favorable that Salem will be able to hold up to the standard which it set in the first game, in the event of which it is believed the locals will take the game. Columbia university, a boys' school, claims the championship for Oregon, Washington and Idahave a remarkably fine team.
