AIRSHIPS FORCED TO CRUISE LOW

Low-Hanging Clouds Handicap First Two Days of Patrol in Oregon

EUGENE, Ore., June 16.—Low hanging clouds have kept the planes of the 91st aero squadron, on forest fire patrol duty, down in the hills during the first two days of the patrol, ending tonight. However, several fires have been spotted and they were reported by wireless to the main base at Eugene, where word was relayed to the district fire warden, who in turn notified the ranchers.

A total of 227,000 square miles of timber in national, state and private forests in Oregon and Washington each day are under the eye of observers who accompany the army pilots. There are four circuits as follows:

MAY LIBRARY REPORT MADE

Gain of 47 Per Cent in Circulation as Compared With Year Ago

For the month of May, 1921, the book circulation of the Salem public library was 6827 books as compared with 4704 for May, 1920, a gain of 47 per cent in only one year. This was a little, but only a very little, more than for the first five months of this year as compared with the first five months of 1920. The gain was 41 per cent. Salem is going red-hot after books.

There were 642 book borrowers on the lists at the close of May, after all withdrawals had been eliminated, a gain of 61 for the month of May alone.

Adults hold the lead over the children in the total borrowings for the month. Adults borrowed a total of 4164, and children only 1848, according to the records. This, however, is as the books are shown in the library classifications, and not necessarily as the patrons actually use them. Children might call for books years beyond their age, and the figures might not apply to the actual reading. The library has been practically the home of many super children, who seem to spend their most enjoyable hours there.

The library basement had an unusual run of patrons during May, when it was in use for 25 nights for lectures and various public or semi-public meetings.

These figures are taken from the May report of Miss Flora Case, librarian in charge.

LEGION OUT OF PENNANT RACE

State House Spoils Chances By Winning Last Night By 11-2 Score

In last night's game the State House's eliminated the Legion from the race for the Twilight league pennant when they ran up a score of 11 against the ex-soldiers' 2 hard-earned runs.

Although the Legionnaires were in the game with volumes of fight they were outclassed by the Senators in every phase of the game.

Gabrielson, on the keystone sack for the State House's, was the outstanding star of the struggle, handling six chances in regular Eddie Collins style.

The State House's lammed out eight last night, while the ex-soldiers men nicked the offerings of Stolz for but two blows. Stolz of the State House clan pitched a scorching game, allowing but two scattered hits and whiffed eight of the Legionnaires in addition to being the batting star of the game with three hits to his credit.

Weeks, pitching for the Legion, struck out nine State House's but was mauled for eight safe hits.

PRISON DOORS CLOSE ON ROY GARDNER

guards, Gardner crowded through the narrow cabin door of the federal launch and within the hour was behind the bars at McNeil island penitentiary.

Officers Are Careful CENTRALIA, Wash., June 16.—At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon Roy Gardner, mail robber, and fugitive from justice since last Saturday morning when he escaped from federal guards at Castle Rock, Wash., once more started for the McNeil island penitentiary to serve a term of 50 years following his capture by patrolman Louis Sonny.

Officers this time took no chances. The bandit was handcuffed on the one side to H. H. P. Hunter, special agent for the O. W. R. & N. and on the other to Maurice Cotturri, special agent for the Southern Pacific. With them on the trip to McNeil island were J. P. McMurray, special agent for the Northern Pacific, W. G. Chandler, Southern Pacific, special agent, and United States Marshal J. B. Holahan.

Tracy Hunt Recalled

Gardner was captured after a hunt rivaling in interest and excitement the one in which posses, 20 years ago, searched through the same territory for Harry Tracy escaped convict from an Oregon penitentiary. Scores of citizens joined with railroad agents and federal officers for the search of the district around Castle Rock and Kelso, Wash., where Gardner was reported several times to have been seen.

While the possemen scoured the country, Gardner lay quietly hidden in the brush, less than half a mile from Castle Rock, watching his pursuers parade around with rifles and sawed-off shotguns.

Gardner Admits Identity.

Tuesday night he slipped aboard a freight train, leaving it here a few hours later. That night he registered at the Dale hotel under the name of J. Patten, moving next day to the Oxford hotel. His face was heavily bandaged in an effort to disguise his identity. Patrolman Sonny, suspicious, followed him to his hotel room, and at 11:50 this morning, he opened him under arrest. It was not until he was at the city jail a few minutes later, that he admitted identity.

Fully a thousand Centralia residents packed the station platform when Gardner and his guards left here for McNeil island. Officers were forced to clear a path through the crowd from the station baggage room to the train.

Prisoner Waves Farewell

Gardner's last act before departing was to wave farewell to the crowd, holding up manacled hands with those of his guards. The bandit was marched from

PARLOR MAID IS WITNESS

Further Testimony Offered In Stillman Divorce Proceedings

SERVANTS SEE LETTERS

Attorneys Decide to Postpone Bringing Banker Back to Stand

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 16.—Attempts to prove misconduct by Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, in her relations with her servant, Fred Beauvais, were made today in the divorce case instituted by James A. Stillman.

A parlor maid frequently saw Beauvais at Pocantico hills estate standing beside Mrs. Stillman's bed, playing the phonograph and reading to her, according to a report of the testimony.

Wore Indian's Hair.

Mary Kelly, a maid, declared Mrs. Stillman sometimes used to wear a plain band ring with the initials "F. B." engraved on the inside, it was said.

During her testimony, it was said she told of having seen Beauvais' handwriting not only on letters, but within the moccasins worn by Guy Stillman, who Mr. Stillman claims is the son of Beauvais, inscribed within one moccasin, it was said, she testified, were the words: "I hope Guy will always be good to his mother," and in the other, "I hope Guy will some day know his father."

Margaret McDonough, nurse of Alexander Stillman, testified, it was asserted, that on one occasion in 1919, Mrs. Stillman, Beauvais, Alexander and a Miss Fegan, dwelt in the upper story in the "Blue Cottage" while Guy and his nurse slept below.

Beds Cause Suspicion.

Early one morning Miss McDonough, according to a report of her testimony, was passing the bathroom and saw Mrs. Stillman come out of the door in her kimono and enter her room. The nurse followed, and noticed Mrs. Stillman's bed appeared not to have been slept in during the night. Then, it was said, she testified, that she walked down the corridor, looked into the adjoining room which had been occupied by Beauvais and observed that the bed had been slept in.

There was considerable testimony today as to when, where and how the various servants had gained access to letters belonging to Mrs. Stillman.

Attorneys Protest.

Mary Kelly showed one of them to Bernard Kelly, then caretaker of the estate. It was brought out, but on cross-examination, these two witnesses were reported to have so conflicted the date of the letter and other details as to contradict statements on which one of the letters had been accepted into the case as evidence.

It was understood that the attorneys for Mr. Stillman protested at today's hearings that reports of the testimony taken yesterday had been somewhat garbled somewhere on the trip into print. Because the public learned that they had agreed to produce Mr. Stillman for cross-examination, June 24, his attorneys announced, it was said they would not put Mr. Stillman on the stand then, but later.

QUESTION OF REFEREE IS HARD TO SOLVE

with a request that he try to effect a compromise.

Rules in Conflict.

It was learned unofficially that the commission would stand on its rights under the state boxing law, which empowers it to name and license all referees. It was also ascertained that none of the five named in the fight contract had yet applied for a referee's license.

It was considered not unlikely that difficulties will arise in adjusting rules to the New Jersey boxing regulations regarding seconds, hand-bandaging, etc., which appear to conflict with the match code specified in the boxers' contract.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., June 16

After resting four days, Jack Dempsey resumed his training program today and boxed for the first time since the cut over his left eye was opened a week ago Sunday. He toiled 40 minutes under a blazing sun.

After tussling at the pulley for two rounds and hand-boxing for three, Dempsey boxed four rounds, two each with Irish Patsy Cline, a Philadelphia lights-fighter, and Babe Herman, California featherweight.

Champion Is Forced.

Dempsey appeared in the ring wearing a head guard with a thick padding to protect the healing wound over his eye. Cline faced the champion for the first two rounds and was badly shaken up a couple of times, although Jack was careful. Herman forced the champion to display the dash and speed of a much lighter man.

The champion appeared in splendid condition. His wind was good, his speed was evident, and his hitting was sharp and accurate.

Manager Kearns said he sealed about 194 pounds and probably would face Carpenter around the 190-mark, and perhaps lower.

Carpenter Hard as Nails.

MANHASSETT, N. Y., June 16.—George Carpenter permitted Joe Jeannette, negro heavyweight, to beat a tattoo on his abdomen during a workout today. Manager Deschamps explained that some newspaper fight critics had questioned the challenger's ability to assimilate punishment in the body and that this was the answer.

This performance came after George had worked four fast rounds, one each with Marcel Denis, French lightweight; Paul Journee, French heavyweight; Italian Joe Gans, middleweight, and Jeannette.

Visitors Entertained.

Jeannette, in his first appearance, worked especially hard in trying to break through the Frenchman's guard. After his regular time, Jeannette, who had been perfecting the Frenchman in defensive tactics, was recalled.

Carpenter's ring workout was preceded by several hours of work before the movie cameramen. After luncheon he received a host of visitors, including several present and former fighters. Knock-out Brennan, who gave Dempsey such a good fight in New York last winter, said he was greatly impressed with the challenger.

ducers, large or small, will have much surplus from now on. Indeed, they can hardly hope to have enough for their regular business; they'll have to import from other localities where there is no city to use more than it makes.

"The great increase in clover acreage reported this year is going to make dairying easier and safer than it has been in some other years. Clover hay is better than grain hay, and it will sell cheaper, even while it pays the grower a fair profit. It's entirely safe for the dairyman to hang onto his cows, for they are going to prove to be his best property."

Campaign Not Selfish.

"It isn't merely selfish campaign to urge the adoption of a heavier dairy diet for the people of Oregon. This movement championed by the Oregon Dairy council means health and prosperity for the whole state. It means health for everybody who drinks milk enough, especially the children. The statistics show that even in this splendid dairy state, the per capita consumption of milk and dairy products is far below the normal physical requirements. We would be healthier and happier if we used more dairy stuff; there would be more farmers selling their stuff for a profit, and more city buyers living better for less money—even though we cut off the market for South Sea island copra and for a thousand imported foods and commodities that we eat to our own harm. It's a 'buy-at-home' campaign that ought to have the encouragement of all Oregon."
