

The Well Dressed Woman

By GLORIA SWANSON, Star in Paramount Pictures.

I have a chintz dress. I never buy new curtains or pillows for summer that I do not have a wild desire to do their barbaric splashes of color, in stead of decorously using them for background, and this summer I have been envying the younger generation who have already and whole heartedly accepted chintz.

The one I have is a morning dress of course, and is made on the chintz lines, simplicity ruled a line at power, and when you have chosen the pattern you will at once understand why.

Roses and tulips as big as colubret forgetmenots only a trifle smaller grow on long vines that trail up and down the entire length of me, or at least as much of me as is covered by collar to hem, and flowers vie with nature in variety and brilliancy of color.

The background does the best I can to make me a bit decorous by being a soft, dull color, and it is a shade by the belt, which is of narrow ribbon velvet, and the little black tuck at the throat.

Further relief is afforded by a tuxedo and cuffs of ecrusse organdy, and a round lace collar dyed to match.

It is not a cool dress, but for early mornings at the shore or in the mountains and for strenuous wear it would be hard to find anything more satisfactory.

Of course, if your taste is more quiet, you might go in for a smaller figured, duller pattern, and there are futuristic patterns to be bought in the shops that I could advise anyone, in all conscience, to even consider as wearing apparel.

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

Adele Garrison's New Phase Of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 91 HOW LILLIAN PLAYED THE "ACE."

There must have been some special significance to the woman at bay before us in the information Lillian had just given concerning my father's connection with the service. At Lillian's assertion, Mr. Seacore has for years been known as Robert Gordon," she started, grew perceptibly paler, while an expression in which amazement and chagrin mingled and spread over her face. Even the sudden baffled rage which came into her face at the verbal flaying which Lillian later gave her did not wipe the almost awed wonder from her countenance.

At Mr. Drake's low call from the door to the man in the hall, she pulled herself together with a swiftness, a sureness that compelled my admiration, even though my thoughts were wholly loathing of the woman. She was evidently prepared to bluff magnificently to the last possible moment.

Defiant to the Last.

Allen Drake's assistant appeared first, stood in the doorway, cool, alert, attentively waiting for his superior's next directions. The slinking, furtive figure I had discerned in the shadow of the hallway in the next street was out of sight, but I knew that he must be close behind the first man.

Lillian looked searchingly at the woman.

"Sure you want to see this ace of ours?" she asked quietly. "I warn you it won't prove a very agreeable experience. I looked at Lillian in surprise. It was not like her to be ungenerous, yet I could see that she was deliberately playing the woman before her as she would a huge, ugly fish, almost gloating over the turmoil which she knew existed in the other woman's mental processes. Then I remembered that I had seen a similar streak of apparent cold-bloodedness in my friend before when her sympathies and anger had been aroused by the sight of injustice or cruelty. Generous to a fault herself, more than ordinarily kind, she can be relentless as death itself when her sympathies have been outraged, her sense of justice attacked.

The woman was keen enough to know what Mrs. Underwood was doing. She threw up her head defiantly.

"Bring on whatever you have," she snarled. "I'm getting tired of this."

Again Lillian looked at Allen Drake significantly. He in turn nodded to the man at the door, who immediately turned his head in the direction of the outer hall. There was a silence, a sort of cold inevitableness about the whole proceeding that chilled me. I felt almost as if I were watching an execution.

"Just Sign This"

Then through the door slouched the furtive figure I had seen in the shadowed hallway. He evidently stood in wholesome awe of the service operative who had escorted him to the room, and his eyes appraised Allen Drake's languid figure with a look of respectful admiration. Evidently Mr. Drake's indolent air did not deceive him. I suspected that he had been told before he came whom he was to meet, for he gave no sign of surprise when he saw the woman who had whirled at his entrance and stood gazing at him with every bit of color drained from her face with her mask of composure stripped from her at last. She shook as with a palsy as he spoke to her.

"Hello, Jen! At it again, eh?" She turned away from him, in her face mingled fear and loathing, spoke wearily, abjectly.

"I'll sign anything you say, do anything you wish if you'll only promise to keep that man away from me."

"You must think I'm anxious for your society, sweetheart," the man began, a menace underneath his apparent jocularity.

"That will be enough from you," Mr. Drake spoke briskly. "Just remember from now on to keep away from this woman unless we send for you. We have even more on you than we have on her, remember."

"All right, boss!" His swift change to humility was almost ludicrous.

"Take him away," Mr. Drake directed, and his assistant at once withdrew. Mr. Drake lounged back in his chair again. Lillian took up the conversation.

"If you keep your part of the bargain you'll never be bothered with us or that man again," she said. "Just sign this."

She put a paper in front of the woman, who sullenly affixed her name.

"Come, Madge," Lillian said, and in another moment I had seen my last of the woman who had wrought so much evil to me and mine.

STRAWBERRY RECIPES

Strawberry Ice. Two cups of water, 2 cups of sugar, boil from 5 to 10 minutes, then add 1 cup of strawberry juice and 1/2 to 1 tablespoon of lemon juice and one or two sheets of gelatin. Soak the gelatin in a little water. Bring the sugar and water to a boil, pour this over the gelatin and stir until dissolved. Strain this into the juice and freeze.

Fancy Jellies. Fancy jellies may be made from non-pectin fruits, such as cherries, strawberries and pineapples by the addition of a pectin preparation made from the white of orange or lemon skins or from green apples.

Orange Pectin. One-third pound white portion of orange peel, 2 tablespoons of lemon juice, 2 cups cold water. Scrape and grate the yellow from the orange and remove the remaining white portion and pass through the food chopper, weigh and for each 1/2 pound of the white material add 3 cups of cold water and 1 tablespoon of lemon juice. Mix thoroughly and allow to stand for 4 or 5 hours. Add another 3 cups of cold water, bring to a boil and then let stand overnight. In the morning boil for 5 minutes; allow to cool, and place in a jelly bag to remove all juice, then filter the juice through a clean flannel jelly bag without pressure. If this pectin is to be kept for later use, pour it into sterilized jars while hot and process quart jars in water bath at 180 degrees for 30 minutes and store in a dark place.

Strawberry Jelly With Orange Pectin. One cup orange pectin, cup of strawberry juice, and 1 cup sugar.

Mix the pectin with the berry juice and bring it to a boil, then add the sugar, continue until the jelly stage is reached. This finishing stage is indicated by the flaking and sheeting from the spoon. Skim after removing from the fire. Pour into hot sterilized glasses, cool and cover with melted paraffin.

Nineteen Homeruns Marked Game in Texas League Way Back in 1902

CHICAGO, June 16.—The mark of seven home runs in a recent game between the Philadelphia and Detroit Americans tied the major league record for circuit drives in a single contest, but it didn't even come close to the world's record.

On July 14, 1902, Corsicana and Texarkana, in a Texas minor league, met in a regularly scheduled game which produced significant records likely to stand for many years. Nineteen home runs, a dozen triples, 10 doubles and almost a dozen singles were clouted off by the batters in this game. Corsicana won by a score of 51 to 3, and the winning team made 53 hits.

Incidentally, "Big" Clarke, formerly the best backstop of the Cleveland American league club, claims to have established in this game the world's record for home runs by an individual batsman. Clark says that he drove out eight round the sacks hits in this game. Previous data credited Harry Wright of the Cincinnati Reds with the record of seven homers in a game in 1867. Modern records gave the honors to Robert Lowe of Boston, Dan Brubaker of Detroit and Ed Deleahanty of Philadelphia with four home runs apiece in one game. Seven home runs were made in a game between St. Louis and Detroit, June 12, 1886.

The Philadelphia-Detroit series produced hitting that has never been rivalled in modern major league baseball, however, for the two teams made 16 home runs in the four games.

Luxury Taxes Evaded By Ingenious Methods

ROME, June 18.—Ingenious methods are invented here to avoid paying the luxury tax. The tailor approaches one mysteriously when his suit is finished and asks if he wishes to have a bill when he pays for it, in which case he will have to add $30 luxury tax.

CONCERNING OSTEOPATHY

The Salem Osteopathic Physicians desire to call your attention to Signaler Tom Skeyhill, a World war veteran, who will lecture in Salem on July 23, under the auspices of the Ellison-White Chautauqua. He was seriously injured and blinded in battle at Gallipoli on December 8, 1916. He was totally blind for a year and a half, when he came under the care of Drs. Moore and Kettler, Osteopathic Physicians of Washington, D. C., and was cured by Osteopathic Adjustment. He had consulted hundreds of specialists, all of whom had pronounced his case hopeless.

Table with columns: Grand total, 2—Materials and supplies, segregated as to buildings, 3—Maintenance and repairs, segregated as to buildings, 4—Miscellaneous, 5—Emergency

ESTIMATED RECEIPTS

Table with columns: From city school fund during com'g yr, From state school fund during com'g yr, From high school tuition, From elementary school fund, Estimated amount to be received from all other sources during coming school year, Total estimated receipts not including money to be received from the tax which it is proposed to vote

RECAPITULATION

Table with columns: Total estimated expenses for the year $219,000.00, Total estimated receipts not including the tax to be voted 94,000.00

Balance to be raised by district tax $125,000.00 Last year the levy was 13.3 mills. This budget will only require a 10 mill levy. This is the lowest school levy in Oregon in a district of the first-class, and is necessary in order to retain manual school nurse and domestic science in Junior high school, school librarian, year attendance and care for the natural increase in next year attendance.

The amount which could be raised without exceeding the 6 percent limitation law would be $107,000.00. The amount raised by direct tax on this budget is $125,000.00. The difference is practically what bonus was to the teachers two years ago in the nature of a gift. Salem has been retained in the salary schedule. Even this class districts in Oregon salary schedule than most of the other first-class districts in Oregon.
