

YAMHILL HAS LIVELY BUNCH

McCroskey Avers Organization Formed at Dayton Is Sure Winner

GREAT START IS MADE

George Foster of Dayton Is Elected President of Organization

A few weeks ago, when the McMinnville Chamber of Commerce asked Manager T. E. McCroskey to deliver a lecture on community enthusiasm, and met him with about seven column faces of men who had always been on hand to carry the community burdens on their shoulders, he said to them: "Nothing doing! You can't build enthusiasm on seven solemn faces. When you get ready to get a crowd together and whoop 'er up, I'll come and we'll go it to the legal limit. Just now I've urgent business at home—good-bye!"

And he good-bye'd, just like that!

Activity shown. The septuagint of solemn countenances considered.

"Maybe he's right," was the joint opinion; which they put into action to get the crowd together and see whether it was so.

On Tuesday they had a Yamhill county community league at Dayton that was a record-breaker. One of the solemn visages had become interested pending this meeting.

"We'll try it on," he said. "I'll give my personal guarantee that I'll have six communities there Johnny-at-the-rathole, or forfeit $10 for every one that I fail to get up to six."

At that rate of valuation they owed him enough to buy a flyover when he brought in his converts to the Dayton meeting. Others came in with their delegations, and their delegations' friends until they had one of the liveliest county organization meetings ever held in the state.

Bankers, farmers, politicians, everybody was there to help him along.

Live Stuff Wanted. "I haven't time as a forester to monkey with logged-off stump lands," was Mac's comment when he beheld the seven sobrieties at the first called meeting. "I want live trees with juice in their skins."

They got 'em at the Dayton meeting—a splendid gathering of active boosters who needed an organization and direction to make them a power for building up their state and communities.

George Foster of Dayton was elected president of the new Yamhill County Community federation. L. L. Thornton of McMinnville is secretary and treasurer, and N. J. Emith of Nehalem valley is vice president. Practically everybody is one of the members and directors.

New Spirit Shown. A year ago a county organization was formed, the Yamhill County forum, which developed along the lines of a debating society, that widened the breaches between those who disagreed in public converse. This society was disbanded Tuesday, and its ashes strewn to the wild summer winds and the waves of the raging Willamette. The county federation that succeeds it now starts with a large and representative membership from all over Yamhill county, and the Yamhillers are preparing to build themselves in to a Yam-mountain of importance in help-each-other co-operation.

GOOD BOXERS APPEAR (Continued from page 1)

The company's mathematician estimates that Uncle Sammie's little gun has a kick of about 30 pounds to the square inch, and Wiggins map vouchers for about 60 pounds resistance.

Henry Getmaker, bugler, says that no one would want to "murder the bugler" if they could only understand a musician's troubles. Henry says that 2200 men hate him because he blows his calls.

JURORS FREE C. B. DURDALL

Verdict of Not Guilty Reached Yesterday After Short Deliberation

ARGUMENTS ARE HEARD

Judge Kelly Refuses to Grant Defense Motion to Direct Verdict

Corporal Bill Frazer's squad won in Tuesday's contest for the honor of doing kitchen chores, as follows: Private W. Wiggins, 48; Sergeant Forest E. Welborn, 47. Individual ratings are expected to change during the next six days of shooting. Ratings made above were out of a possible 50 points.

Corporal William Byers and Privates Charles Needham and Harry Gipson have been on the sack for the past few days, but rapid recovery is reported since Sergeant Mason announced ice cream for Sunday.

Home baked pie, "just like mother's," and roast veal with dressing was Cook Harry Plant's offering for the Tuesday evening repast. Lester R. Crum, special first-class, is the right hand boiler of the kitchen. Crum is a baker by trade and a graduate of the army's school for cooks at Fort Riley, Kansas.

Corporal William Garner and Privates H. B. Millard, Lawrence Gardner, E. Anderson are members of squad No. 1, first platoon, under command of Sergeant Roland B. Knighthart.

Joe Deizel, private, and guard for June 18, was much enraged at petty thieves who visited the company's barracks and purloined petty cash during the outfit's absence Saturday afternoon.

"These fellows would knock a man cold for four bits," observed Joe. "Every time I turned around half of the equipment was gone."

The company is glad that Joe kept his eye on the poachers.

Corporal William Garvey has packed his tent and moved over to the quarters of the medical detachment, this regiment. Just why Bill exchanged his rifle for a pill corps' tommyhawk is a problem for all.

Private William Peterson, who dragged down a score of 22 in last week's shooting, is hunting for the fellow who waved the "aisis" at him before shifting the target gate.

Private John Zak is last on the alphabetical list, 11th in the rifle competition, third in the chow line and first for the train when the company travels.

Again Sergeant Alanson R. Mason breaks into the limelight by shooting a straight possible in 50 points during Tuesday's contest far daily record in the regiment. Mechanic Waited D. Gardner ran into fame by joining the 43-point class. Company F now boasts of eight high-average marksmen.

TROUBLED FOR TEN YEARS (Continued from page 1)

If you suffer pains and aches during the day and sleep-disturbing bladder weakness by night, feel tired, nervous and run down, the kidneys and bladder need to be restored to healthy and regular action. J. O. DeWitt, R. F. B. No. 1, Luceville, O., writes: "I tried many remedies but they did me no good. I took Foley Kidney Pills and they helped me so much that now I am well. Don't delay. Sold everywhere. Adv."

HARRY ERTL CHOSEN TO REFEREE FIGHT (Continued from page 1)

engaged three heavyweights whose identities were kept secret. Charles Ledoux, French bantamweight champion, arrived at camp while Georges was away.

Guns Quit's Camp. It was announced that Paul Journee, due to injuries received in his bout with Weisner, would be unable to work with Carpenter, Italian Joe Gans, the other sparring partner, who suffered defeat in his bout with Gans, did not appear today. It is believed his services will be no longer required.

Read The Classified Ads.

JURORS FREE C. B. DURDALL

Verdict of Not Guilty Reached Yesterday After Short Deliberation

ARGUMENTS ARE HEARD

Judge Kelly Refuses to Grant Defense Motion to Direct Verdict

A verdict of not guilty was reached yesterday by the jury sitting on the case of the state vs. C. Burton Durdall, charged with obtaining money under false pretenses. The jury took less than an hour for deliberation. The case went to the jury at 2:30, following an order of Judge Percy K. Kelly, before whom the case was tried, which overruled the motion of the defense for a directed verdict, and instructed the counsel to proceed with the concluding arguments.

In overruling the motion for a directed verdict yesterday morning Judge Kelly declared that the questions of whether the evidence showed that Durdall had given a personal opinion or not, and a statement of fact and whether the evidence had shown that Durdall had actually received any money, were both questions which lay solely in the jurisdiction of the jury to decide.

In the argument for the motion on the previous day the defense attorneys had attempted to show that under the Oregon statute a man could not be convicted for a statement of personal opinion. They held that the value placed upon the land by Durdall was only a matter of personal opinion upon which many might differ, and that the prosecution would have to show criminal intent to defraud, which, they said, it had failed to do.

"Lawful Money" Involved. They also claimed that the prosecution had failed to show where Durdall had received "lawful American money," as charged in the indictment. They maintained that the bank in placing the law in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

In the matter of the third basis upon which the defense had claimed the right to a verdict, that is, in question to the credit of Durdall's account had only made a settlement of credit, and that according to the criminal code a transfer of credit could not be the basis for a suit for false pretense. Both of the questions Judge Kelly left to the jury.

CASE MAY END AT WASHINGTON

McCament and Lord Will Plead in Supreme Court on Steamship Issue

ARGUMENTS ARE HEARD

Judge Kelly Refuses to Grant Defense Motion to Direct Verdict

Because of its public importance, the great length of time the law involved has been on the Oregon statute books, and the possibility of the case being carried to the United States supreme court, the Oregon supreme court, and the United States supreme court, the case of McCament and Lord vs. the United States, which was argued in the case of Joseph E. Conroy vs. the steamship line, appealed from Multnomah county.

The outstanding feature of the case is that the law providing for attachment of ships was enacted in 1827, which Oregon was not in a federal state, and its constitutionality is just now being attacked. Judge Wallace McCament, who represents the steamship line, appeared in the case, has indicated that if he is heard, he will carry the case to the United States supreme court.

The case is one for personal injury, and in the lower court Conroy was awarded damages of $3000. Judge McCament attacks the law from the angle of constitutionality, with the argument that it is a violation of the state courts do not have jurisdiction.

W. P. Lord, Portland attorney who represents Conroy, contends that in such cases only two courses are possible, either proceeding in the admiralty proceeding, or in the lower court because of the fact that ordinarily there is no resident agent against whom action may be brought, and holds that attachment of the vessel is the only logical recourse and therefore that the statute is constitutional.

STORM RAGES IN LABOR CONVENTION (Continued from page 1)

moon good and not for the profit of a class, and in order that all men may enjoy the gains of their own industry."

Program Ordered Published. In order to put the declarations into effect in the industrial life of the nation, the convention directed the executive council to "devise and publish the necessary legislative program for the common good and not for the profit of a class of men."

The council was also directed to assist the recognized railroad labor organizations by every effort within their power to have proper legislation enacted providing for government ownership and democratic operation of the railroad system of the United States.

NEGRO HELD ON GIRL'S STORY (Continued from page 1)

Ralph Collins, a negro charged with the murder of a girl, was held on a $1000 bond for trial in the justice court before Judge G. E. Conroy, charged with a statutory offense. He took 24 hours in which to enter his plea.

Collins was arrested by Chief of Police Moffitt following a night's search for the girl, who was held in custody at the home of Mrs. E. Foster, 745 South Commercial street, early yesterday. The girl, who is named as Hattie Lockman, was called and took her to her home.

In the opinion of Chief Moffitt, Collins' true name is Hammond Bennett. If as the chief thinks, he was named by Colorado authorities, his name has been in this city he is said to have admitted that he was living under an assumed name. Though authorities in Colorado have been notified, up to a late hour last night word had not been received from them.

Adrian, Mich., Man and Family at Camp Grounds (Continued from page 1)

"Are you from California?" "No, I am from Michigan, but like all the rest I have been in California for the winter. I have heard of the Salmon auto camp ever since I left southern California. Everyone told me to be sure to stop here."

This was the statement of J. W. Shepherd, Adrian, Mich., when he pulled into the Salmon auto camp late last night. He is accompanied by his family.

Yesterday was a record day at the camp. These registered were Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Rutherford, Leavenworth, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Leibert, Fresno, Cal.; and Mrs. J. L. McIntire, Polson, Wash.; Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Strong, pects to handle about 1200 tons of cherries, here and at The Dalles. The prices for the various kinds of cherries, Bings, Lamberts and Royal Annes, was not made public. The local maraschino cherries will be treated by the Star Fruit Products Company, in the Salem King's plant, and also at the Star Company's Portland plant.

POOL REMAINS OPEN (Continued from page 1)

Walnut Growers Expect Record Crop This Year (Continued from page 1)

Walnut growers in Western Oregon have prospects of a record breaking crop according to Earl Peary, president of the Oregon State Horticultural society and member of the Oregon Growers' Co-operative association. Along the foot hills west of the Willamette river and in certain districts of the Umpqua valley, may be found the finest soil, as well as climatic conditions in the country for walnut growing. Mr. Peary says, "The Manchurian walnut, without flavor and often wormy, shipped to us from Japan, hurts the local market as people do not know the difference between the fine flavored English walnuts grown in Oregon and the tasteless thick-shelled Manchurians."

Read The Classified Ads.

WEST SALEM TO DISCUSS RELIEF

Mass Meeting is Called To Consider Plans to Help Armenians

ARGUMENTS ARE HEARD

Judge Kelly Refuses to Grant Defense Motion to Direct Verdict

That they will rebuild the mosques and minarets destroyed during the war with the Armenians, a plan that has been proposed to help these people some permanent form of relief. They say this plan, which would help from the United States in a permanent form, does not exist at the hands of the Turkish government.

A mass meeting will be held tonight at 8 o'clock at the Y. M. C. A. building in West Salem to consider how best to help these people of the near east. The problem of taking the matter up in congress through appeal to the Oregon senators and representatives will be considered. The speakers will be considered to be citizens who are writing or telegraphing to the congressmen. Rev. Alexander Hawthorne, pastor of the Methodist church, of West Salem will be in charge of the meeting tonight. The Near East relief committee realizes that the national government is waiting for an expression of opinion from the people direct, and hopes by bringing the situation before the people to get this expression.

Preliminary Hearing Waived by Dan Casey (Continued from page 1)

Dan Casey waived preliminary hearing upon a charge of first degree murder before Judge George Rossman in Portland yesterday morning and was held to answer to the grand jury without bail. He is charged with the murder of James H. ("Black") Phillips, of W. R. & N. Co., company special agent, who was shot and killed by box car thieves on the night of June 14 near the St. Johns tunnel. John Lyle Burns, co-defendant with Casey, has retained counsel and will have a preliminary hearing in municipal court next Tuesday. Phillips formerly was chief keeper at the state prison.

NEW BATTERY COMPANY IS FORMED IN PORTLAND (Continued from page 1)

Articles of incorporation were filed here yesterday by the Rabkey Battery company of Portland, having a capitalization of $10,000. The incorporators are Lawrence Rathkey and Mrs. J. W. Rathkey.

A permit to operate in Oregon was issued to the Universal Pipe Line corporation of Wyoming, capitalized at $500,000. A. W. Richards of Portland is named as president for Oregon.

A permit was issued the Wama lake club, of Washington state, which mentions to capitalization. It is a club formed to provide amusement and recreation for its members. Charles Gramm and eight others represent the club in Portland.

Union Street Car Men To Confer on Wage Cut (Continued from page 1)

PORTLAND, June 22.—Following a conference with Franklin T. Griffith, president of the Portland Railway, Light & Power company, announcement was made by the local street car men's union officials today that two meetings of the membership would be held tomorrow to vote on accepting or rejecting the proposed new agreement, which provides a cut of about 5 per cent for common labor.

If the proposed terms are rejected, arbitration will be resorted to, it is understood.

The reason that no vote was proposed for the platform men is that they were not raised when most of the carmen in other large cities received their last increase, it was said.

BANK ROBBER IS IDENTIFIED (Continued from page 1)

Cobbell Also Wanted By Government on Whiskey Running Charge (Continued from page 1)

YAKIMA, Wash., June 22.—Following identification of Jim Enright, alias John Cobbell, today by Cashier Clarence Ostrom, of the Adly, Wash., state bank and Mrs. Ostrom as one of the men who held the cashier up and robbed the bank, the government will seek to get custody of Cobbell for trial for his connection with whiskey running across the Canadian border.

At the same time proposed removal of Cobbell to Colville, Wash. to answer the bank robbery charge was frustrated by Charles Bohn, attorney for Cobbell, who obtained from Judge George R. Holden, of the Yakima superior court, a writ of habeas corpus returnable Friday morning at 10 o'clock.

Plan of the federal officials became known with receipt of a telegram from Charles Levy, federal assistant district attorney, with headquarters at Spokane, to Sheriff Bear, ordering Cobbell held here until Levy's arrival Friday.

AMERICAN LEAGUE

At Detroit—R. H. E. ... 6 7 0

At Boston—R. H. E. ... 2 6 0

At Chicago—R. H. E. ... 3 8 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0

At Washington—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0

At Washington—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0

At Washington—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0

At Washington—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

NATIONAL LEAGUE

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0

At Washington—R. H. E. ... 5 12 0

At St. Louis—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At New York—R. H. E. ... 9 11 0

At Cincinnati—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Brooklyn—R. H. E. ... 8 11 0

At Pittsburgh—R. H. E. ... 2 10 0

At Philadelphia—R. H. E. ... 4 7 0