

THIS MAN IS LIKELY SAILING UNDER AN ALIAS, IS PETE D'ARCY'S GUESS

He Calls Himself J. W. Harrington, But, 'Steen to One, He Is None Other Than J. W. Redington, Who, Even Though He Ought To Know Better by Now, Is Probably the Same Joker He Was in Ye Olden Days.

Millpetas, Cal., June 5, 1921. Editor Statesman:

As we look to the home newspaper for all our valuable information, I am wondering if you could give me the present address of Capt. Al B. Crossman, who used to be commanding officer of the Capital Engine Co., in Salem's volunteer fire department some years ago, although it seems like yesterday.

We used to have to pay for the privilege of belonging in those days, and when I ran behind in out, and never went back any more, and I suppose that Al paid my dues for 25 or 30 years after.

John G. Wright used to be mayor of the city after one fire I got about $10 worth of crackers and cheese at his store for the fire is, and stood him off for it and am still ditting. So I don't see this time he owing him about $300.

And the only thing we used to get some in getting, first water on fire, on our building, Capt. George D. Dyer, Tiger Dyer, some party, and both were very heavy men. I recall, through the mail on a congressional street when I would follow a shillibidoo.

Two other men in Salem that I know money to, but I don't know their names, each are Willard H. Henson and Elie Lafore, who used to back me up when the place was passed at Sunday school. They always saw me through, and I never told the girls about it.

I am going to pay up all those good men, for, with another dollar, I am going to get grubbed and strike a crotan oil well, and when it begins to push every body look out. Anybody can go out and strike a common crotan oil well, but it takes 23 water-witches to strike a crotan oil well and you know that such stuff is one of the most active accelerators on earth, and will relieve the congestion now prevailing in all cities as large as Sen, and it will take the carbon of a man's spunk pluzs quicker'n you can say Jack Robinson. We will put it on the market within reach of all, so that grown people will also cry for it.

AN INTERESTING SCENE AT LAWN FETE.

Georges Carpentier, Dempsey's challenger, made a wonderful impression in social circles when, dressed in white flannels, he appeared at the Villa Marlin, where a fete was being given. He was promptly autohounded by Miss Sigried Holmquist, Sweden's Mary Pickford.

In recognition of the good work that we will organize our oil company on Lucky Friday the 13th, we are going to have 13 treasures, one of whom must be honest, and show the rest of us, Missourians that he is so. Our stock will be sold at 500 a share, with only 500 shares to a customer, unless he or she, as the case may be, insists on buying more, but there will be no easy-payment plan of $10,000 down and $1000 a minute, as that involves writing too many checks, which is the real cause of the present scarcity of white paper.

We are also expecting to strike a ledge of petrified eggnog among the cupboards of the old cliff-dwellers, so I C that I will soon be able to pay up my old Salem debts with interest.

Meantime, if I should have to climb the Golden Stair, I will break off and throw down the top step, which my editors can use for filling their teeth, and thus laugh at the hi cost of dentistry. Very truly yours,

J. W. Harrington.

(The police reporter of The Statesman, after receiving the above, looked around a little among the old-timers of Salem, and the general conclusion is that he is sailing under an alias—that he is not J. W. Harrington, and that he does not live at Millpetas, Cal., but that he is J. W. Redington, and that he lives somewhere around Los Angeles, where his letter was postmarked. That is the opinion of Pete D'Arcy, who has been in Salem ever since Mount Hood was a hole in the ground, and who knew J. W. Redington well in the old days, when he was a printer and newspaper man in Salem, and afterwards the same and more in Hopped and in Puyallup, Wash., which he always spelled Peadap. If J. W. Redington is not the author of the above letter, at least come to the front and prove an alibi. Al Crossman is in Portland, John G. Wright is a resident of Salem, Willard H. Henson is at Heppner, and Elmer Lafore is on the other shore of the shining river.—Ed.)

People of Salem Thanked for Possibilities While Soldiers Camp

CAMP LEAVE, Wash., June 21.—For the past two years, the company has maintained the reputation of having the best table of any other company of the Fifth Oregon Infantry. This, according to the company's officers, is made possible by the patronage of Salem folks to dinners given by the guardsmen and by the strict economy on the part of those in charge of the mess fund.

The army ration, while wholesome and ample for the ordinary soldier, is woefully lacking for the citizen soldier who has just left the home menu. Fruit, vegetables and extra items are provided in the traditional mess fund which in the regular army is created by fines and proceeds from organization shows and profits from entertainments. In guard units home benefits provide the only means for financial support.

"We are grateful to our Salem friends for their response to our various benefit affairs during the past year," says Captain Leroy Jewett.

Private Carl Frame, a member of Barney H. Becker's squad, has won two sets of laurels, one in the kitchen as a 1st pot scrubber and the other as a 12-point shooter in an 18-point range. Frame is another member of the company who wishes his kitchen prowess kept a deep, dark secret from the folks at home. "The night the dishwasher and drink me in asserts Lester.

"You can't get 'em up in the morning."

"Gardner's worse than Peter Pan," Frame once boasted to an old Redington's squad of all. Applauds to Morning March.

Tuesday, June 21, was a busy day with this company. Both the state and federal pay roll were signed, and the organization was carried out at 6:20 in the evening. With a pay-day in sight, all hands are busy making ready for the week-end.

"We can sleep, then?"

"Nothing means."

"My hat can't get nothin' like you father." Boston Transcript.

New York Athletic and Multnomah Clubs Clash in Portland Today

COLLEGES SEND STARS

Hurley, Tuck, Payne, Spearow and Others to Defend Western Honors

PORTLAND, Ore., June 24.—Track stars of the Pacific coast will start on a with the track of New York's center men when the Multnomah Amateur Athletic Club meets the New York Athletic Club here today. The world and American records are not broken in the contest, promoters of the event will be disappointed. The New York Athletic Club's team will be here en route to the National Amateur Athletic Union meet at Pasadena July 25, 26, 27.

The Multnomah club's list of entries includes many well known track stars. The list follows:

Washington Men Enter
Vic Hurley, University of Washington sprinter, with record of 2:4 in 100 yards and 2:13 in 220, and 1:10 in 100 yards.

Gus Pope, University of Washington shot put and discus man who represented America at the Olympic games. Besides being considered one of the best discus men in the United States, he ranks high as a shot putter.

Art Tuck, University of Oregon, javelin thrower, will make an effort to break the American record.

Reginald Pratt, University of Washington, quarter miler who also leads the northwest quarter mile record.

"Chuck" Frankland, University of Washington, is a jumper and high hurdler.

Joseph Sparrow, University of Oregon, known as the "swallow parson" because he is an ordained minister, is good for 13 feet in the pole vault.

Payne in Five-Mile Run
Eldon Jenne, Washington State college, is another pole vaulter good for 13 feet.

Miss Payne declared the greatest five-mile ever developed in the northwest.

"Gap" Powell, Oregon Agricultural college, weight man, will try to beat Pope in the shot put.

Max Snook, Oregon Agricultural college, sprinter, who won the Washington Growers' Packing Corporation in co-operative organization of Clarke growers. The yield will be about 2,000,000 pounds, it is said.

There was the 1921 crop have not yet been set, but it is thought the growers will bring a good price in the early market because of the general shortage of fruit. The season crop of peaches is 75 per cent normal this year and the Oregon crop about the same as in the previous year, according to the Clarke growers.

Clarke County Prunes Are 25 Percent Normal

MANAGERS of the Clarke County Prune Association, who are optimistic that the crop will be about 25 per cent normal, according to the association's annual report, are busy packing and shipping.
