LECTURERS TO ADDRESS CLUB Ford and Taylor Expected to Appear at Monday Noon Luncheon

For the Monday noon luncheon at the Commercial, the patrons will have "some bargain." They will get their regular half dollar meal for two-bits, and Burrell Ford, the first night lecturer on the big league Chautauqua circuit in Salem is expected to be one of the speakers.

Mr. Ford is bringing $10,000 worth of electrical equipment to illustrate his lectures. Some of the little boxes that a man could carry under his arm represent many thousands of dollars worth of actual mechanical workmanship and a billion dollars worth of stock in the industry. Ford's reputation of being a "good feller" and when he appears before a Commercial club he'll prove it.

M. S. Taylor, season manager of the Chautauqua, and a lecturer of reputation, will be another speaker. He is to deliver two lectures on Tuesday. The first is on "Sex Psychology." The address by Judge Bingham, at a recent Commercial club luncheon on incompatibility and divorce, gave many hearers a new slant in considering social conditions around them; and Mr. Taylor may have to say may add some other valuable ideas to what they have already gathered.

But the luncheon is a good fellows' luncheon, and not a compendium of either science or morality. The urge is sent to all other members to attend.

Guilty Verdict Against Bush is Jury's Report Two neighbors, erstwhile friendly, had their inings in justice court yesterday when Samuel Dingee, 74, told Judge Unruh and a jury about an altercation with Neighbor Bush, 55, said altercation ending in assault and battery charges filed by Mr. Dingee.

After retiring for 10 minutes, the jury returned a verdict against Mr. Bush, finding him guilty. Dingee had complained that he had been hit on the head by Bush. Bush had such an extent that he had been compelled to seek a physician's aid in taking care of his eye, damage somewhat by the alleged fistful activity of Mr. Bush. Mr. Bush defended his part in the incident, claiming that he had been challenged to cross the Bush-Dingee fence and that he had done so without thinking that he would walk into a battle.

Judge G. E. Unruh will pronounce sentence at 10 a. m. Monday morning.

WOOD WORKERS ARE PROFICIENT Efficiency Greater Than For Years, Declares Superintendent Holt

"There has not been as much per capita efficiency in the woods, for years, as there is right now," is the sentiment of U. G. Holt, of Salem, in charge of the logging department of the Charles K. Spaulding Logging company.

"During the war, and for almost two years following the war the woods were flooded with men who were not properly woodsmen at all. Many of them were willing enough to work, but they hadn't been trained to woodcraft. And logging, which some may say is merely 'common labor,' calls for as high a degree of skill as machine work of almost any kind. Out of every crew of 100 men, during the boom days in the woods, there were not likely to be more than 10 men who could fall a tree properly; the proportion even now is very small. It is a work of art to make those big trees behave. And all throughout the woods, there is need for trained skill that puts a real logger almost into the skilled artisan class."

The average wages in the woods now are about $4 a day, with a base pay of $2 for unskilled labor. Some of the men draw good wages, but they certainly earn it. The hook tenders draw approximately $7 a day, and the loaders $6; there is responsible foremanship; and in not a few cases personal danger from the character of their work.

The Spaulding company is now working about 90 men in the Black Rock camp. Logs are also coming in by contract from another camp, so that the Spaulding mills are kept fully supplied.

The corporation was organized under the laws of New Jersey.

Arthur E. Gibbard is Back from Trip East Arthur E. Gibbard has returned from a trip through the east, where he visited a number of the large cities, looking for ideas which would help him in his work as superintendent of mails at the Salem postoffice.

Mrs. Gibbard and daughter, Esther, will stay in Michigan several months to visit with her people and Mr. Gibbard's, hoping to entirely regain her health. They enjoyed their trip very much, and while it was hot and dry, they expected that to be the case at this time of the year.

LETTER IS SENT BY AID BOARD Legion Posts Are Told to Refer Bonus Inquirers to State Office Official communications have gone out from the state headquarters of the American legion, to all the local camps in the state, relative to the operation of the new bonus bill.

Each of every post has been besieged with inquiries as to the operation of the new law. Sometimes the inquiries have been well answered. Sometimes, perhaps, the replies have been insufficient because the local posts themselves could not quite know all the facts.

The state headquarters now direct all the local camps receiving such inquiries to acknowledge them, but to refer the inquiries directly to the state aid commission at its offices in the United States National bank building in Salem. The commission will soon have a full set of information sheets and blanks, so that all inquiries can be answered authoritatively and immediately direct from headquarters.

Sidewalks at Dallas In Need of Repairs DALLAS, Ore., July 22.—(Special to The Statesman)—At a special meeting of the city council Thursday afternoon, the street commissioner was authorized and empowered to purchase material and hire help for the purpose of replacing and repairing a number of the sidewalks built last year under contract by Pugh & Souer of Salem. Both the contractors and their bondsmen had been notified of the repairs and replacements and had failed to take any action in the matter.

City Engineer Himes who has made a careful inspection of the walks reports that there are about 20 bad pieces in last year's work and that there are also a number of walks that are damaged to such an extent that the two per cent of the contract price held from the contractors by the city for repairs for one year will probably all be needed to place these walks in first class condition.
