The Well Dressed Woman By GLORIA SWANSON. Star in Paramount Pictures. As I have said before, colored lace is the fad of the season—there are colored lace frocks for all occasions and now the colored lace hat is blossoming forth. I do not mean black lace, of course, but dyed laces, brown, gray, yellow and henna. Yesterday I found one of brown lace. It was a shape with which we are quite familiar, longer on the sides than in the back and front and with a very slightly drooping brim. It is not at all stiff, the division between crown and brim being quite lost in the soft folds of the lace, which is drawn down on one side of the crown and fastened with a knot of small yellow roses. The lace falls over the edge of the brim for about two inches all around, half concealing the eyes in the most approved and fascinating manner. That being not enough of feminine wiles, it has a wide loop and two long streamers of the lace as well. Black lace hats are very lovely, but there are some women to whom they are not becoming, and these colored lace ones will fill a long felt want. Then, too, you can match your lace frock exactly. White lace hats are much in vogue for the bridesmaids' costumes, and white lace fans are a pleasing addition. Besides their grace and charm there is another strong point to be made in favor of the lace hat—coolness. You know it's a serious matter lives, thinking she had fainted. Then he tried to get Dr. Irons, but had to go to a neighbor's to telephone, as he found theirs out of order. "What did you say?" "I didn't say anything," I returned, hoping she had not noticed my involuntary start at her words. But beating upon my brain was the question: "What had put the Stockbridge telephone out of commission so suddenly?" (To be continued)

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND Adele Garrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE CHAPTER 124 THE QUESTION THAT SORELY TROUBLED MADGE If I had not been secretly preparing myself to hear almost anything concerning the mysterious death of Milly Stockbridge, I think I should have betrayed what I knew at Alice Holcombe's astounding assertion. As it was, I repressed my start of dismay, simply asked the very natural question: "What in the world are you talking about?" "I know you think I'm as demented as poor Milly was," she replied, "but you must be patient with me. I've never in my life had such a shock as was mine when Milly's sister sent for me tonight."

CHICHESTER'S PILLS The maker of stills is taking the piece of the outfit board manufacturers as having a source of easy money. "His story was that he came home this afternoon, and after remaining a little while went to his father-in-law's on an errand, and that when he returned he found her lying on the floor before her 6 o'clock tea table and the couch. He said he thought she was breathing when he picked her up, and that he tried several restora-
