THRIFT MADE STATE SLOGAN

Heads of Numerous Departments Accept Retrenchment Policy of Governor

LETTERS ARE QUOTED

Trips Will Be Sacrificed and Office Expense Cut to Bleeding Point

That Governor Olcott's letter issued recently urging the heads of all state departments and institutions to curtail as much as possible the expense of conducting the state government, has met with favorable consideration, is indicated in the numerous letters received at his office during the past few days.

Archie B. Carter, secretary of the state board of engineering examiners, in a letter to Governor Olcott, wrote: "The state board of engineering examiners have at all times since their organization adhered to a policy of strictest economy in the carrying on of their duties, and I desire to inform you that the same policy will be continued."

"Bramwell Accepts Policy" H. C. Wortman, chairman of the soldiers' and sailors' commission, wrote: "A copy of your letter has been given to the members of the commission and your ideas as expressed meet with our hearty support."

In a letter to the executive, Frank Bramwell, state superintendent of banks, said: "Under the existing conditions the expenses of this department have been held to a minimum. There has been a slight increase, however, compared with the expenses incurred during the normal conditions. The income of this department will be sufficient to cover all expenses for salaries, and I assure you that no unnecessary expenditures will be authorized."

George Quayle, secretary of the state land settlement commission, had the following to say in his reply to the governor: "The expenses of this department have been held to a minimum throughout the country that unnecessary expenditures should be entirely eliminated and I commend the sentiment expressed by you."

Warden Has Thrift Spirit I. H. Compton, warden of the penitentiary, wrote: "I am, and have been for some time past, profoundly impressed with the necessity of curtailing expenses and shall do my utmost to see that your instructions are obeyed to the letter."

Lewis A. McArthur, secretary of the Oregon geographic board, in his letter to the governor, said: "I can assure you that we are doing everything we possibly can to keep down expenses. As you may know, this board is without appropriation from the state and such expenses as are necessary have to be paid out of the pockets of the secretary. I believe if you could arrange to have all the boards and officers pay state expenses out of their own funds you would achieve a record for efficiency and economy that would make every other state suffer by comparison."

Vincent Sends Answer S. B. Vincent, manager of the Oregon tourist and information bureau, wrote: "You can depend upon me to cooperate with you to the limit of safety. In fact, I have been holding down expenses very greatly, conserving the funds of the bureau with the hope that the committee would authorize the publication of some state booklets for distribution next spring. However, before such moneys are expended I will suggest to Chairman Butler that he discuss matters with you."

A letter from W. A. Dalziel, deputy state sealer of weights and measures, said: "I fully realize the importance of your suggestions and wish to assure you of my hearty cooperation."

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns streaked, it is an application of two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold. Don't bother to prepare the mixture; you can get this famous old recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients at a small cost, all ready for use, in the famous Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color and lustre to your hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound" now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy and lustrous.—Adv.

Suggestions Held Necessary Millie R. Trumbull, secretary of the board of inspectors of child labor, wrote: "I can assure you that the commission will give your suggestions the gravest consideration."

N. C. Morris, deputy state dairy and food commissioner, said: "As evidence that this office is and has been practicing the greatest economy, I wish to offer as evidence the stationery used in writing this letter, as Exhibit 'A,' referring to an unusually low grade of scratch paper. I will use this paper for writing letters, but save liberally a great quantity of it from our predecessors we do use it for carbon copies and scratch paper. Can you beat this for economy?"

Fire Marshal Heard From A. C. Barber, state insurance commissioner, had the following to say in his reply to the governor: "One who hears the frequent complaints from the citizens of our state concerning high taxes, at the present time, can only agree with your opinion with relation to the necessity of curtailing expenses in every possible way in the operation of the state's business."

A. E. Burkhduff, state game warden, wrote: "It has always been my desire to see the affairs of the state game commission handled on a strictly business basis, and I feel that we are working toward that point very rapidly. But I desire to assure you that we will continue to appreciate your interest in the affairs of the game commission, and am sure that the members of the commission will likewise appreciate them."

N. D. Day, chairman of the committee on tax investigation, said: "I am glad to hear that you will cooperate with you in your endeavor to keep the expenses down to an irreducible minimum."

W. J. Hoffman, president of the Pacific Northwest Tourist association, replied: "You can rest assured that the expenses of this department will be curtailed as much as possible compatible with carrying on the work this association exists to perform. I can assure you that at the end of the biennium you will find that this association will not have spent all the money appropriated by the legislature."

George T. Cochran, state water superintendent, wrote: "My department has realized the uncertain conditions, and has already been making arrangements to continue to use its best efforts in operating the same upon the most economical basis possible."

P. L. Campbell, president of the state university, said: "I wish you to know that we are all heartily in accord with you in your movement for economy during these present times."

Carl D. Shoemaker, master fish warden, wrote: "I assure you that we will cooperate with you in every way to hold down our expenditures and increase the efficiency of our office."

Copper Returns From Deschutes Investigation Percy Cupper, state engineer, returned last night from Madras where he went recently to accompany a number of reclamation officials on a tour of inspection of the Deschutes irrigation project.

Congress some time ago appropriated $400,000 for the development of this project, and it was for the purpose of determining how this money should be expended that the recent inspection trip was arranged. Water for the irrigation of the project will be obtained from the Deschutes river.

LUMBER ISSUE UNDER DEBATE

Conditions on Pacific Coast Discussed from Two Angles at Tacoma

WASTE CHARGE DENIED

After Session Visitors Leave For Inspection Trip to Portland

TACOMA, Wash., July 28.—Lumber problems of the Pacific coast were discussed from two angles today at a joint conference of local lumbermen; a visiting delegation of lumbermen from many states of the Union and the national forest policy committee of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

Forest conservation was the topic at the morning session and marketing of western lumber the subject of the afternoon meeting which included the first annual convention of the West Coast Forest Products bureau.

Timber Not Wasted That Pacific coast loggers and manufacturers are not wasting the timber except insofar as economic conditions force waste upon them, was the defense which lumbermen pressed home before the Chamber of Commerce committee. The point was conceded by the committee which declared that the means of conserving what is left must be the point considered.

The viewpoint of the eastern retailer was described by Harry S. Gould of Middletown, N. Y., who told of troubles encountered with undersized western lumber and urged standardization of sizes so that eastern retailers might send out mixed deliveries with assurance that the pine and fir would work together.

Portland Visited. After an inspection of Washington logging operations at the St. Paul & Tacoma Lumber company's camp near Kapowsin, the visiting lumbermen left for Portland, Ore., tonight.

Board of Control Members Again Go Over School Plan

Members of the state board of control passed most of yesterday investigating plans prepared by W. C. Knighton, architect, for the proposed new plant of the state industrial school for boys. The plant will cost $280,000 and will be constructed on the cottage system. The plans, as prepared, include the major conveniences adopted in the training schools of other states, and insure a system of buildings that will meet the demands of the officials for a number of years. There are yet a number of minor changes to be made in the plans, however, and it was not expected today that this would be received for several weeks.

The plant will be located on lands now owned by the state. The present training school, upon completion of the new plant, probably will be converted into a hospital for the treatment of drug addicts or a corrective institution for so-called first term men.
