Many Homes Are Looming Applications Received by Aid Commission Show Boys Are in Earnest

COMMISSION KEPT BUSY Nucleus of Library is Gift From Colonel Charles W. Furlong

When the soldiers' loan money becomes available and the boys are able to get it down in black and white, in green and gold, just what they are to receive, there will be a lot of new homes, new industries started that would bring tears of gladness to any one who has wondered what to do with the returned soldier problem.

Over in West Salem, right now, two or three houses are already being built on understandings that the bonus bill will pay for them, give the boys a home and a fair start in life, and boost them along for future clear sailing.

Yesterday two boys came in to talk over a farm that they wanted to buy. It was shown that they couldn't do this as a partnership, but they are going to have the tract divided, each one taking half the acreage, and then whatever partnership arrangements they want to make for operation is solely their own business.

A Portland soldier's wife asks what arrangements she can make for their buying a $12,500 home. This couple is going in deeper—but it is a fine, encouraging thing for them to want so good a home, and she is a clever enough business woman to know that they can pay it out.

Hospital and Labor Editor Statesman: The hospital board has not yet admitted that they planned to hand labor an unknown quantity when they first decided to commence work on the hospital.

The board members intended to do just the thing they have started to do with labor when they let the contracts for machinery and material. They started in on the carpenters and if they can reduce the carpenters' scale of prices why not in justice to the carpenters, then reduce all other crafts.

In other words why should not the hospital board come out and let us know what they have decided to do? They knew their tactics were going to be just as they are a month ago.

Why do not those three members of the hospital board notify all trades as they have the carpenters that they are going to cut a dollar a day off their wages? They have planned to do so if they can, it is rumored.

Why not tell the public something about the contemplated row to enclose their own business. They have planned to do so if they can, it is rumored.

A thorough investigation is being made by committees of the Central Labor Council and some new information is being gathered. Publicity Committee S. T. L. C.

SAYS HE'S PAST SPEEDING AGE H. V. Smith of Lents Com- plains About Interference of Officers

That "hungry" municipalities and "grafting" constables are making life miserable for the "innocent" autoist, was the complaint filed with Governor Olcott yesterday by H. V. Smith, 57 years old, who gave his address as Lents, Ore.

"On June 28," said the letter, "while four miles west of Clatskanie, Columbia county, on my way from Seaside to Portland, I was arrested and forced to pay a constable (B. F. Davis) $15, or be taken to Clatskanie, where the constable said my machine would be taken away until I made financial restitution."

"The constable said we were traveling at a speed of 37 miles an hour, despite the fact that Mrs. Smith and myself had our eyes on the speedometer, which registered less than 30 miles per hour. Because of the conflicting statements however, upon our arrival in Portland we had the speedometer tested. This test showed that upon the speedometer registering 30 miles an hour, our machine actually would be traveling 35 miles an hour."

"I am now 57 years of age, have driven a car more than 40,000 miles and have passed the speeding age. I thoroughly understand and respect the necessity of keeping the speed within reasonable bounds, but nevertheless it does not look exactly right that a touring motorist should be at the mercy of every underpaid or grafting constable. I hope that this complaint, together with others of a similar character, will be of some effect in helping to correct the evil now existing.

"The practice of using a little at the time of the arrest and then forgetting the incident only tends to make the situation more serious."
