HEATING RATES MAY BE SLASHED

Portland Utility is Asked to Make Estimate of Its Operative Outlay

With a view to possible reduction in its steam heating rates, the Northwest Electric company of Portland will, at the request of the public service commission made in a letter yesterday, make an estimate of its present and prospective operating conditions. The feasibility of a reduction, even though slight, is urged by the commission. If reduced tariffs are filed the commission will place them in effect in less than statutory time.

"Following a reduction last May in oil prices from $2.55 to $2.10 per barrel," says the letter, "this commission had expected to be able to request your utility to make a corresponding reduction in your steam heating rates, and our engineering staff has, since that date, been making from time to time, an analysis of your fuel costs. They report that to date the reduced percentage of hog fuel available and the cost of its transportation from a distance has so increased your fuel cost that probably no decrease in rates could be justified at this particular time, if these conditions were to be continued in the future."

"However, it has come to our attention that your percentage of available hog fuel has recently been augmented and we also feel that the expected revival of the lumber industry will make cheaper fuel available."

In a previous order increasing rates the commission points out that the increased rates were made maximum rates.

FARMER'S LOANS ARE REVIVING

Smith Reports Transactions Totalling $36,000 Since Middle of April

Fully $36,000 has been loaned to farmers since April 16, according to W. D. Smith, secretary and treasurer of the Marion-Polk County National Farm Loan association, out of total applications for loans amounting to $80,000.

After being unable to secure funds for about a year, Mr. Smith says the association was able to resume loaning on April 16 and that he hopes to receive allotments that will enable him to continue making loans to farmers.

Loans through the farm loan association are not especially small ones as Mr. Smith says that one was for $10,000, another for $8,500 and two for $6,500 each.

BOY SCOUT CAMP TO BE PREPARED

Knowland-Fullerton Make Advance Trip To McCredie Springs

In order to prepare the Boy Scout camp at McCredie springs Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Knowland and Mr. and Mrs. P. E. Fullerton left Monday for the camping grounds 12 miles from Oakridge. The Scout camp, after considering a number of sites for this year's camp, decided that McCredie Springs offered unusually fine facilities for camping. Present plans are that the Boy Scouts shall leave Salem next Monday morning for McCredie springs, to arrive there about 5 o'clock in the evening. When the boys arrive in camp they will find everything all set for their convenience with a fine hot dinner awaiting them. And in order that all shall be in readiness for the boys, Mr. Knowland and Mr. Fullerton will put in the week erecting tents and preparing the camp grounds.

McCredie Springs, located 12 miles from the end of the railroad at Oakridge, about 100 miles south of Eugene, is one of the most picturesque locations in the state. It is on the old military highway leading out of Eugene over the Cascades, and by many travelers, said to exceed in scenic beauty the famous McKenzie road west of Eugene.

Many Boy Scouts who have been unable to finance a camp vacation of 16 days, are being helped by several far-seeing men who believe that in helping the boy, it is the finest investment for the coming generation. It is understood that a few boys may not be able to make the trip on account of the expense involved, and it has been suggested that some one who feels that the boy is a good investment, might contribute and help in order that not one of the boys shall be left at home.

being elected a member of the Council of the American Library association, with headquarters in Chicago. This council, of which Miss Marvin is now a member, directs the course of the leading libraries of the state.

But the greater honor was that of being selected as one of the leading 100 librarians of the United States, as Fellow of the American Library Institute. Election of Fellow of this institute is only by unanimous vote of the leading librarians of the country.

To become a member of this select body of librarians, one must have written extensively on subjects of especial value to librarians and to have taken an active part in the general library movement of the country.
