

BUTTER PRICES SET NEW MARK

Product Soars Near Maximum Predicted by Farmers for Winter Sales

FEED COST IS CHEAPER

Creameries Have Been Hard Run to Meet Demands Of Customers

Butter has almost reached the maximum winter price predicted by some rural dairy men. Another cent and it will be clear to the top, peering over into No Man's Land of a questionable market whether they'll buy butter, or buy oleo, or go without. It is now hovering at 49 cents, a cut-price edition of the full half-dollar that the predictions have named as the very topmost for the year.

The dry summer has baked the pastures to a yellow brown, and the grass is in many cases as well cured as it were hay in the barn loft. The flow of milk and the production of cream have fallen very markedly. The creameries in general have been hard run to keep up with their trade demands. Indeed, the trade has been supplied from storage, but the spring pack was lighter this season than for years past, and there really isn't very much to pull out of the ice for temporary relief. With both storage and present production curtailed, there may be a real butter famine.

That's the blue or skim-milk side of the picture. Oregon is a top-notch dairy state and while it has been sky-hooted through the air that many of the dairy herds have been slaughtered for beef, it really isn't true. Many poor cow-herders have been made over into hamburger and chops and lard combs, but the good cows have been saved, so that it is believed the average dairy cow of Oregon today is a better producer than ever before in the history of the state. There will be many cows coming fresh within the next few weeks, for winter production; the hay crop was good, and has been harvested without damage; the price of hay and grain makes it feasible to feed cows rather than try to market the produce direct—and good authorities look for an early revival of butter production to care for every consumptive demand.

They do not expect much if any rise in price, either, despite the temporary shortage which is a very real reason for higher price if relief were not in sight. Likelihood, which is just wherever the hunter may find it, the markets are what they are made from day to day. Butter might fluctuate rather sharply, but some of this fluctuation is so closely limited by the public's buying power, that no war-stamped price can possibly be expected.

Housekeepers who make an their budgets in advance, needn't figure on eliminating butter or cutting down the family fuel so as to save for a second pound of butter; for the production outlook is good enough to make a fair price almost certain.

REPRESENTS AMERICAN PEOPLE AT CORNERSTONE LAYING.

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, acting for the American people, officiated at the inception of the new library at Louvain. Representatives from France, Great Britain, Italy, Greece and Rumania attended the ceremonies as the guest of the historic sovereigns, Albert and Elizabeth of Belgium, and Cardinal Mercier. The Louvain University is being rebuilt from donations made by the American public. The photo shows Dr. Butler and Cardinal Mercier laying the corner stone of the Louvain Cathedral.

But you people need to wake up; why you don't half know how good a country you have! It's a bear! It's a dream! There isn't anything like it all the way back over where we've come until you get to Long Beach!

And then the 'olighe!' Mr. Myers is not a native son of the Golden West, but he was bitten in the neck and on both legs and practically over the body by the California bug, and if there's a man within two miles of his 6000 mile course who hasn't heard all the glories of Long Beach, it's because he was deaf, or dead or in jail. It's a thrilling story. Most of it is oil. They've found gushers, and percolators, and bubblers, and pumpers, and they've rolled up every bit of verbal artillery that can whisper or make signs for Long Beach. They're growing a thousand in population a month.

"Oh, yes, what was the name of that faded fellow who sold out the Maze, and was going to shoot or poison or starve everybody who couldn't get out? They must have hired him, with all his experience, to puzzle the road out of Portland. Well, he did himself proud on that Portland contract. I take off my shirt to him. But they'd confer a favor on the traveling public if they'd put a few signs for those who really want to get out and go on. I'll have to say that Oregon has the least signed roads of all we've seen anywhere—and the get away from Portland is the worst of all."

Mr. Myers is not enamored of the Oregon signs, but he says that the state is making marvellous strides in road progress, and he's coming back in three years, expecting to find it one perfect boulevard. The traffic is continuing to be heavy; 100 cars are parking in the grounds for today. The Washington traffic, which has run a close second to that from California, promises to exceed that of the southern visitation for August. It is said so far this month, and both have surpassed their wonderful July record. Both will have more than 300 cars this month. Others are here from Texas, Michigan and other points.

The latest thing out is an X-ray machine that will enable one to see if a shoe fits well. They have been installed in a number of stores in the East. It enables the customer to see the position of the foot in the shoe and if the toes are unduly cramped. It is suggested that it might also be used to explore the pocketbook of the customer to guide the salesman in fixing the price.

GREECE GOAL FOR TRADING

America's Commercial Supremacy Threatened by England, Report

IMPORTS ALSO FALLING

Germany Makes Progress in Establishing Hold in Hellenic Markets

ATHENS, June 21.—America's commercial supremacy in Greece is threatened by England. Pictures just compiled by Will L. Lowrie of Elgin, Ill., American consul general to Greece, show that during the first eight months of 1920 Great Britain's exports to Greece were valued at 10 per cent more than the exports of the United States.

In 1918 the United States held the record, leading England by a good margin. England also leads America, in imports from Greece. American imports for the year fell off more than $5,000,000.

The most notable decrease was in tobacco leaf, the 1920 shipments to the United States amounting to only $19,802,093, compared with $22,681,873 in 1919.

Greece is the principal tobacco center of Europe, and the great fields in Macedonia produce some of the finest leaf in the world. Germany has made considerable progress in her efforts to establish herself in the Hellenic markets, her exports to Greece during the first eight months of last year being only slightly less than her exports for the whole previous year of 1919, and 40 times greater than her exports in 1915.

Germany uses Hides. Shipments to the United States in 1920 of currants and figs showed a large increase as a result of a good crop and a favorable demand. Exports of animal skins, an important product of Greece, were much less than in 1919, owing to increased demand from German markets, which consumed a large part of the local stocks. Some of the old articles of export from Greece to the United States were boots and horns, bridal wreaths, animal bones, intestines, octopus fish, and atar of roses.

Greece's olive yield in 1920 was 50,265,400 gallons, 1,000,000 gallons of which went to the United States.

PURE BLOOD IS FOE OF RHEUMATISM

Sunday Health Talk No. 3—By O. L. Scott, D.D.

Where the blood is pure there is no rheumatism. Rheumatism is due to faulty elimination of poisons from the body. It is principally due to weakness of the kidneys.

In acute inflammatory rheumatism the joints, usually the wrists, ankles, elbows and knees, are the seat of inflammation. Movement of joints affected causes great pain. To minimize pain the muscles will remain contracted. The bones may become deformed and the joints stiff.

When the spinal nerves to the kidneys and bowels and lungs are free, every eliminative process of the body is active and the blood is pure. Chiropractic spinal adjustments freeing spinal nerves to these organs will remove the cause of rheumatism.

THE LOWER NERVE UNDER THE MAGNIFYING GLASS IS PINCHED BY A MISALIGNED JOINT. PINCHED NERVES CANNOT TRANSMIT HEALTHFUL IMPULSES. CHIROPRACTIC ADJUSTING REMOVES THE PRESSURE. THE UPPER NERVE IS FREE AS NATURE INTENDS.

Began Suffering at 13

"I was 13 when I first suffered an attack of inflammatory rheumatism. Last winter for three weeks I was unable to move a muscle, except my tongue. I was fed with a spoon. In April I started chiropractic. Today I feel better than for many, many years. I make this voluntary statement that others may know what chiropractic has done for me in this terrible malady." — H. H. Knock, Chiropractic Research Bureau, Statement No. 1275H.
