LITTLE TO DO FOR FIRE BOYS

No Alarms Turned in For Whole Week — New Equipment Needed

Salem has been a real fireless cooker during the past hot week. Not a single alarm has been turned in to the fire department for a full week, and the firemen haven't seen anything nearer like a real fire than a painted blaze on an insurance sign. The firemen have had time to clear several acres of stump land out several miles from town. The only reason they didn't do it is, that they weren't sure the good news would last.

It didn't last a week ago, when they were getting 'em almost daily

—grass fires, roof fires, almost every kind of a little blaze that by prompt action they could put out before it got big enough to be serious. They're hoping that there won't be anything big doing until they get another big pump outfit; for now, when they have to take the one big LaFrance rig to the outskirts of the city, they haven't adequate reserve equipment for a second alarm, say in the next block or even in the city hall.

There's the old steamer that used to do valiant service. It is still a good steamer, but it has not a good hauling attachment. It is too heavy to carry by hand, too bumpy and slow to go by gas, and so it stands, there with its valve leathers drying up from disuse like rawhide in the sun, and they couldn't keep a team to haul it for the price of a navy or an oil well. The old machine was a faithful servant in its day, along with old Dobbin and the scrap-iron lock mucker—but the gas has given it the go-by and it's just hanging around to save funeral expenses.

If we could sell it to some of these little places like Portland or Seattle," sigh the fire boys, "and put in a speed rig like the present pumper, and an aerial, we'd be ready for the fires, even if they did come twins, or triplets. Why, we'd simply run 'em to death with those two big water-shooters and a climbing rig to pick off the top victims."

In Earlier Days
In former times, when the town butcher or farmer himself dressed and cured the meat for the community, he could not always tell how it would turn out.
His methods were crude, partly traditional, partly guesswork. His tests were few and inconclusive.
Meat packing of today, as carried on by Swift & Company, has changed all that. It is scientific. Nothing is left to chance; nothing taken for granted.
The most painstaking care and attention are given to every step. Processes are worked out on a large scale with minute exactness. Methods are continually revised and improved. Cleanliness is insisted upon. Drastic, incessant inspections are the order of the day.
Swift products are uniform, graded according to quality.
Take bacon, for instance.
Swift & Company set out years ago to make a delicious, savory bacon which should be uniformly excellent.
The result is Swift's Premium Bacon, always the same, always famously good. Today this bacon, wrapped, sealed and branded, has circled the world.
Swift & Company's system of distribution carries it to places which the "town butcher" or the farmer could not reach.

COOS BAY MAKES HIT WITH ELKS

Salem Lodgemen Praise Brothers And Other Citizens for Courtesy

Members of the Salem Elks' lodge who attended the annual convention last week at Marshfield, are loud in their praise of the wonderful hospitality shown by not only Elks but all citizens of Marshfield, Coquille and Bridgeport.

On all autos was the sign, "Don't ride—take this car," and money of Elks was worthless at Marshfield and vicinity. The city and country belonged to the Elks and everything was free.
At Coquille visitors were served with a wonderful luncheon and with the finest of cake given by the women of that vicinity. At Bridgeport they were entertained with varied sea food.
The Salem Elks' band also made a fine impression, even if it was outnumbered by the Portland band. It carried away the second prize for bands, and the award, a fine myrtlewood vase about 24 inches high, now adorns the mantle piece in the Salem lodge.
Again at Eugene, the (Salem and Portland special met with the greatest courtesy. When the Eugene Elks learned that the home-ward special would reach their city about noon Sunday, they wired the good news that the entire delegation should march in a body from the depot for a luncheon prepared at the Osburn hotel. They did.
Everything went off in fine shape and the Salem Elks are unanimous in voting that as hosts Marshfield Elks and Marshfield business men, who closed their stores Saturday afternoon, cannot be beaten.

Press Congress Will Discuss Woman's Work

WARREN, O., Aug. 16.—An American woman has been chosen to discuss the place of women in journalism at the World Press congress at Honolulu next October. She is Mrs. Zell Hart Deming, manager of The Warren Tribune for 20 years.
Mrs. Deming has been appointed a delegate to the congress by the American Newspaper Publishers' association, the Inland Press association and the Associated Ohio Dailies. She is a member of the Central Division advisory board of The Associated Press.
"Sentiment should not be laid aside in managing a business if you want to be really successful in the best sense of the word," is a conclusion Mrs. Deming has arrived at in her newspaper work.
"Good housekeeping is needed in the printing plant as well as in the home," is another, and she has followed this out by installing the last word in every kind of printing machinery. She has taken especial interest in the mechanical end of her paper.
Mrs. Deming is planning to take her daughter with her to Honolulu.
