VILLAGE IS SADDENED

Commercial Enterprises Attempt to Steal Fame Of Faithful Folk

OBERAMMERGAU, July 26.—Through the death of Father Schroeder, who has been the priest in charge of the Oberammergau village church for 32 years and the most zealous supporter of the traditions of the Passion Play, this little village has been much saddened just at the time when preparations for the production of the Passion Play in 1922 are under way.

Have You Spots Before Your Eyes? Maybe You're "Crazy To Marry"

Play were prepared by priests and monks from the Ettal monastery and repeated revisions have been made by the clergy in the past 300 years to adapt the production to changed conditions and improve its literary character.

Much Competition Commercial producers in several other German cities are offering religious plays which they advertise in such a way as to give the impression that they really are the Oberammergau Passion Play.

These productions are extremely distasteful to the Oberammergau peasants, who have never produced the Passion Play outside of their own village and have never allowed their productions to be filmed.

of the treaty, special mention was made of the reaffirmation of the government's share in the renounced German overseas possessions, the statement declaring that this provision "confirms the rights of the United States with respect to Yap and other former German overseas possessions upon an equality with the other powers."

The department's statement reviewed the treaty in detail, emphasizing that any advantage which might have been gained by ratification of the treaty of Versailles is fully preserved under the present instrument.

Diplomatic Relations Soon Regarding further settlements necessary between the two nations, the statement said:

It is understood that diplomatic relations will be resumed upon the exchange of ratifications of the treaty and then negotiations can be undertaken with respect to commerce and other matters through the ordinary diplomatic channels.

United States Independent Administration officials are understood to feel, however, that commercial questions between the United States and Germany are as fully covered as seems necessary for the present by the reaffirmation of the financial and economic clauses of the Versailles treaty.

When the plenipotentiaries had signed the document they exchanged a few chosen phrases of obvious import and the American commissioner and his aides bowed their way out of the foreign minister's office.

STORM BREAKS IN TELEPHONE HEARING

Tomlinson made a similar charge relative to the services of the company at the Democratic national convention at San Francisco.

McNary Makes Objection. Attorney McNary objected further to Tomlinson's pointing out the several items, declaring that the volume would stand for itself.

In response to an admonition from Chairman Williams to his brief, Mr. Tomlinson cut his remarks short and the book was received in evidence.

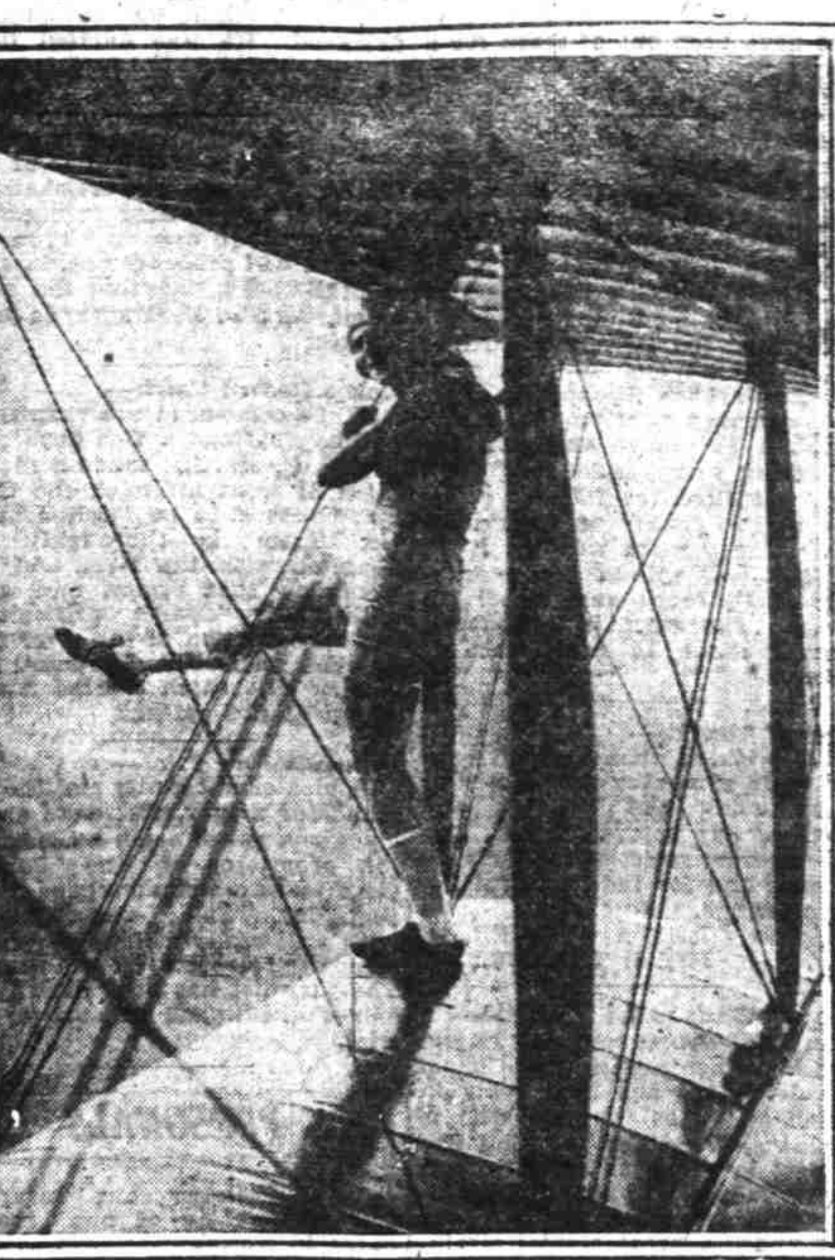

E. C. Willard, Portland engineer, was called by Tomlinson in rebuttal and he analyzed several exhibits relating to comparative prices of telephone equipment demanded by the Western Electric company and independent companies.

More Words Flung. While Willard was commenting on certain exhibits dealing with wage conditions, Mr. Shaw then asked:

"Was not this exhibit introduced to strengthen Mr. Tomlinson's intimation that it might be necessary to reduce the wages of the telephone operators to bring about lower rates?"

Tomlinson cut off Willard's reply by inviting Shaw to read the record and become informed of the truth. "Mr. Tomlinson, you stand before the people of Oregon accused of trying to reduce wages," retorted Shaw. To Willard he remarked that "your exhibit is an engineering absurdity."

Whether the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph company had asked the public service commission for a rate big enough to yield a reasonable return at Astoria not only at the present time but on a future rate base of $289,250 was the question to which City Attorney James Mott of Astoria endeavored to make C. Fleeger, plant engineer of the telephone company, admit an affirmative answer yesterday forenoon.

It was thought Fleeger would be on the stand only a few minutes yesterday. At the conclusion of Mott's cross-examination, however, E. M. Cousin asked the question to their witness and shot several at him before he was halted by an objection of Attorney McNary, who contended that the same matter had been gone over previously.

"We adjourned at a quarter to five Tuesday evening because you said you were through," Chairman Williams said to Cousin. "Then Mr. Mott asked for half an hour additional yesterday. We gave it to him, but he didn't finish and he has taken up 55 minutes in addition today. We are starting to run relays again."

Cousin agreed to stop. Later he asked the commission to rule that the remainder of the hearing be directed to the order of the commission that the telephone rate be raised March 1.

"You should have made that very effort five weeks ago," said Commissioner Cory. "I did that at the very outset," replied Cousin.

"It is believed that a committee such as I am selecting may have a state-wide influence for much such time as the imperial German government and the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government, or their successor or successors, shall have respectively made suitable provision for the satisfaction of all claims against said governments respectively, of all persons, wherever domiciled, who owe permanent allegiance to the United States of America and who have suffered, through the acts of the imperial German government, or its agents, or the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government or its agents, since July 31, 1914, loss, damage, or injury to their persons or property, directly or indirectly, whether through the ownership of shares of stock in German, Austro-Hungarian, American, or other corporations, or in consequence of hostilities or of any operations of war, or otherwise, and also shall have granted to persons owing permanent allegiance to the United States of America most-favored nation treatment, whether the same be national or otherwise, in all matters affecting residence, business, profession, trade, navigation, commerce and industrial property rights, and until the imperial German government and the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government, or successor or successors, shall have respectively confirmed to the United States of America all fines, forfeitures, penalties and seizures imposed or made by the United States of America during the war, whether in respect to the property of the imperial German government or German nationals, or the imperial and royal Austro-Hungarian government, or Austro-Hungarian nationals, and shall have waived any and all pecuniary claims against the United States of America."

"Being desirous of restoring the friendly relations existing between the two nations prior to the outbreak of war:

"Have for that purpose appointed their plenipotentiaries: The president of the United States of America, Ellis Loring Drexel, commissioner of the United States of America to Germany, and.

"The president of the German empire, Dr. Friedrich Rosen, minister for foreign affairs, and.

"Who, having communicated their full powers found to be in good and due form, have agreed as follows:

"Article I: "Germany undertakes to accord to the United States, and the United States shall have and enjoy, all the rights, privileges, immunities, reparations or advantages specified in the aforesaid joint resolution of the congress of the United States of July 2, 1921, including all the rights and advantages stipulated for the benefit of the United States in the treaty of Versailles, which the United States shall fully enjoy notwithstanding the fact that such treaty has not been ratified by the United States.

"Article II: "With a view to defining more particularly the obligations of Germany under the foregoing article with respect to certain provisions in the treaty of Versailles, it is understood and agreed between the high contracting parties:

"(1) That the rights and advantages stipulated in that treaty for the benefit of the United States, which it is intended the United States shall have and enjoy are those defined in section 1, part 1, and parts 5, 6, 8, 9, 10, 11, 12, 14 and 15, of the United States, in availing itself of the rights and advantages stipulated in the provisions of that treaty mentioned in this paragraph, will do so in a manner consistent with the rights accorded to Germany under such provisions.

"(2) That the United States shall not be bound by the provisions of the part one of that treaty nor by any provisions of that treaty including those mentioned in paragraph 1 of this article, which relate to the covenant of the league of nations, nor shall the United States be bound by any action taken by the league of nations, or by the council or by the assembly thereof, unless the United States shall expressly give its assent to such action.

"(3) That the United States assumes no obligations under or with respect to the provisions of part 2, part 3, sections II to VIII inclusive, of part 4, and part 13 of that treaty.

"(4) That while the United States is privileged to participate in the reparations commission, to the terms of part 8 of that treaty, and in any other commission established under the treaty or under any agreement supplemental thereto, the United States is not bound to participate in any such commission unless it shall elect to do so.

"(5) That the periods of time to which reference is made in article 149 of the treaty of Versailles, shall run with respect to any act or election of the part of the United States from the date of the coming into force of the present treaty.

"Article III: "The present treaty shall be ratified in accordance with the constitutional forms of the high contracting parties and shall take effect immediately on the exchange of ratifications which shall take place as soon as possible at Berlin.

"In witness whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed this treaty and have hereunto affixed their seals.

"Done in duplicate in Berlin this 25th day of August, 1921."

Sunday Park Service To Be Last of Season

For the union services to be held next Sunday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Wilson park, efforts are being made to secure the Liberty brass band of 25 pieces.

This band, under the direction of Ivan G. Martin, has made good progress during the past two years and is the pride of Liberty and that section south of Salem. Just now several of the musicians are away from home, and again, there has been but little practicing during the past month or so.

Lumber Trade is Still 21 Percent Under Normal
