

SALEM ELKS PLAN WINTER ACTIVITY

Entertainment Committee Again Signs Contract With Lyceum Company

The regular fall meetings of the Salem Elks lodge will begin Thursday evening, October 6, according to Harry J. Weidner, secretary.

On the following Thursday, Oct. 13, a dozen or more candidates who are now eligible for admission to the lodge will be initiated. At this initiation there will be served one of the regular Johnny Jones banquets, following the initiations.

The entertainment committee for the fall and winter consists of A. L. Wallace, chairman; Paul Stege and I. R. Smith. This committee has already signed with the same lyceum that presented so many pleasing entertainments last winter.

The building committee of the Elks lodge, which will have charge of the building of the new Elks temple, consists of Charles R. Archer, chairman; Homer H. Smith, T. B. Kay, Frank T. Wrightman, Dr. H. H. Olinger, E. W. Hazard and W. D. Evans.

Incidentally, it may be said that the present membership of the Elks lodge of Salem is 1,200, and that it is one of the strongest in the northwest.

GALLAGHER RISKS ALL FOR ACCUSED WOMAN

She found out her mistake later, and she was trying to get away from him when his insane jealousy forced this tragedy. If she could have got away from him, we would probably have been married. If I can bring it about we will be yet as soon as she can get out of this trouble."

Occupation Not Divulged

The Journal knows Gallagher's occupation, and is withholding it for the time being to prevent, if possible, the loss of his position. But Gallagher is willing to stand that, too, if it will help the woman he regards as his savior.

Gallagher is about Mrs. Wurtzberger's age—37 years. He is well educated, and gives the impression of a man who has gone through fire and come out tempered.

"I hesitated about coming forward," he said. "I knew it probably meant the loss of my position—and it is hard for a man with a record to get good jobs. I needed the money, because this woman has none of her own, and I intend to devote every cent I can get to her defense. But I Every man's hand seemed against her, and I had to speak."

Sent to Penitentiary

It was on March 26, 1924, that Gallagher first went to the penitentiary for from one to 10 years on a charge of embezzlement from the bartenders' union in Astoria.

"I'd taken money," he said in telling of it; "but I hadn't tried to hide the shortage on the books. They couldn't have proved embezzlement. But there was something else—I can't tell you what it was—that made it impossible for me to put up a defense. I pleaded guilty and took the sentence."

"I was paroled at the end of a year. I went to Sacramento and went to work. Then I got careless; quit reporting. At the end of three years the parole officer happened to be in Sacramento, and recognized me. So I went back for another year."

Gets Job as Cook

"I got out this time in the fall of 1920, and got a job as cook in the Feeble Minded Institute. Mrs. Wurtzberger was the housekeeper there. That was how I met her."

"The man's face darkened. 'I was bitter against the world. I felt that the second stretch had been unjust. Think of it—a year for just falling to report. There was nothing else—absolutely nothing. You can look up the record and see."

"I was just going to work long enough to get a good 'front,' and then pull some kind of a job. I didn't know what, but you learn in the penitentiary."

Everybody Against Him

"Everybody at the institute knew I was an ex-con, and they were all against me. Well, that suited me. I was against everybody, too."

"The speaker got up and began to walk back and forth across the room."

"Then Mrs. Wurtzberger came to my rescue. I will tell you, man, you can't know what that meant. She stood up for me against all of them. She talked to me as she would have to her own son—and she has raised two fine children. One of them is working with me right now—her 17-year-old son. She braced me up. I saw where I was wrong, and I made up my mind to go straight."

She Realizes Mistake

He halted abruptly. His face darkened again.

"She married Wurtzberger last May," he went on, with obvious effort. "I thought it was going to be us, but—well, even she wasn't entirely free of the usual prejudice against an ex-con. I knew she had made a mistake, and so did she by the end of the first week. He conceived an insane jealousy for me. He used

MANY INVITATIONS SENT FROM SALEM

Cherrians Do Not Overlook Any Booster Club in Bids To State Fair

All uniformed organizations in the state who make it a business to boost for their localities, have been mailed invitations by King Bing Knowland to become the guests of the Cherrians Tuesday, September 27, at the state fair.

This is in accordance with a motion carried at the last meeting of the Cherrians, when it was decided to send invitations to dinner to all members of boosting uniformed organizations in the state.

The invitation means that the Cherrians will entertain at the state fair grounds the Rosarians of Portland, Radiators of Eugene, Pirrians of McMinnville, Hubarians of Albany, the Portland Ad Club, and the East Side Business Men's club of Portland.

In addition to sending invitations to the above named uniformed boosting organizations, the Cherrians have officially invited 91 commercial clubs throughout the state to come to the state fair on Tuesday, September 27, when there will be big things done.

With one of the finest programs of the week promised by A. H. Lea, and the special entertainments to be put on by the visiting boosting organizations, the second day of the fair promises to be one of the most interesting days of the whole week.

MOUNT ANGEL FILES ANSWER TO COMPLAINT

The city alleges in its answer that its sewerage plant was constructed in accordance with plans and specifications approved by the state board, and that it is being operated in accordance with such plans.

On July 27, Martin Horst entered suit against the city of Mt. Angel, in which he alleged that he owns a farm of 10 acres through which flows fluid from the city's septic tank.

He also alleged that on account of this sewerage, the small stream flowing through his farm has become polluted and worthless for farm purposes. Also that the stench arising made it impossible to work and that it was a menace to health. He asked for $2,000 damages.

Clara B. Hougham filed suit against the city for $10,000 damages. She alleged in her complaint that she owns some 230 acres and that the small stream flowing through her farm had become useless on account of the fluid from the septic tank flowing into the stream.

In a joint suit, both of the plaintiffs ask a restraining order against Mt. Angel, restraining the city from discharging its sewerage into the small stream and from discharging its sewerage into its sewer pipe.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE TO HOUSE VISITORS

The telephone company has arranged to put in a special phone service for the booth, but not until the morning of September 23.

Those having rooms to rent should not telephone the hotel until that date, as the staff of workers will not be there to respond.

Details Must Be Given

For the benefit of those who will have rooms, it has been suggested that they have this information ready when telephoning on September 23: Name and address, how many single beds, how

CHERRIANS ARE TOLD THEIR DUTY

King Bing Knowland Sends Pointed Letter to All Members of Club

In explaining to Cherrians just why it is their duty to assist in entertaining booster organizations Tuesday and Thursday of state fair week, Charles Knowland, King Bing, argues thusly in a letter sent all Cherrians yesterday:

"We no longer spend any time or money on a cherry fair, and the state fair offers us a wonderful opportunity to boost for Salem by making enjoyable the visits of prominent and influential men from all over the state, such as members of these booster organizations."

"All loyal Cherrians are therefore urged to set aside Tuesday and Thursday of state fair week on which they will serve on committees in this work of entertaining these visitors."

It is promised that those who respond will receive definite assignments in order that each may know just what to do in helping put the day over.

that the topography of the island made a search from the air impossible and the aviator returned to the lake.

One rifle shot shortly before noon today brought immediate investigation from several sources and the reserves of the island were held in readiness for quick action. It developed that Captain John Eden, living near the shore on the south side had shot a chicken hawk. The guards smiled on receiving the news but did not relax their vigilance.

Neither had it been definitely established tonight that the prowler shot at twice Thursday night by Charles Savage, at his home while off duty as a guard, was Gardner.

BERRY GROWER IS MADE DEFENDANT

Phex Company Alleges that Dorman Did Not Live Up to Contract

Alleging that he did not live up to his contract by delivering loganberries during the year 1920, the Phex company has brought suit against M. Dorman, who lives near Liberty, for $450 and $100 attorney's fees.

In the complaint, it is alleged that Mr. Dorman entered into a contract with the Pheasant Fruit Juice company June 15, 1918, to deliver all his loganberries grown on a six-acre tract near Liberty, for a period of five years. The price was to be 3½ cents a pound, Salem delivery.

It is also alleged that in the contract it was provided that should Dorman fail to deliver, he was subject to damages on a basis of 1½ cents a pound.

That Dorman's crop in 1920 amounted to 30,000 pounds and that he failed to live up to his contract in not delivering is alleged.

Based on his crop of 30,000 pounds and the contract providing a penalty of 1½ cents a pound in case of non-delivery, the Phex company, successors to the Pheasant Fruit Juice company, asks the court for judgment against M. Dorman for $450, and also for $100 attorney's fees.

While no information was available regarding the suit, it is thought that this is the beginning of a series of suits that will be brought against loganberry growers who, it is claimed, failed to live up to their contracts.
