

MY HEART AND MY HUSBAND

Adelle Yarrison's New Phase of REVELATIONS OF A WIFE

CHAPTER 171

WHAT MADGE SAW AND HEARD WHEN SHE AWOKE.

Long after Dicky slept I lay awake haggard to my heart the comforting, comprehending assurance of support which my husband had given me when I had told him of the trouble in connection with Milly Stockbridge's death.

It had been a revelation to me of a trait in my husband's character for which I had not given him credit. Much of the terror with which the incidents following the death of my principal wife had invested me had its roots in the ever-present question: "What would Dicky say if he knew?"

Now he knew, and instead of blaming me his only thought had been of how best to protect me from whatever threatened. When I finally fell asleep my last waking thought was of grateful happiness mingled with self-reproach at not having understood my husband better.

When I awoke the sun was streaming through the windows, and the room was filled with sounds of delighted baby chuckles. I rose on one elbow to see Dicky cowering around the floor in his pajamas, playing bear, elephant and other equally amusing roles for the benefit of his small son—an adorable, flushed vision—was holding himself up by the bars of his crib and cowering with delight.

Welcoming Arms.

"Morn'n, Lady!" Dicky sprang to his feet made me a sweeping bow. "We are now giving our celebrated impersonations, renowned through several continents, of the leading wild and domestic animals. If there is any particular specimen which you would like to see or hear our only 'a' m is to please. Your son's taste is somewhat varied, but he seems to like the dog's bow-wow and the lion's roar as well as anything."

The baby smiled at this juncture, and suddenly disdaining all other blandishments, put out his hands entrancingly and showed the tiny teeth of which we were all so foolishly proud in an entrancing, blinding grin. Dicky looked at him reproachfully. "Can you beat it?" he demanded of the surrounding atmosphere. "Here I spend oodles of valuable time and talent in high-class entertainment for this young man's benefit while you simply snore your head off, and then at your slightest look he hands me the icy mitt."

"Dicky!" I protested, half-laughingly, half-indignant. "I don't snore. You know I don't. And please give me Junior right away or he'll cry."

"Pardon me? You're just a rapid breather. Is that it?" Dicky teased, but he swung Junior high in his arms and brought him laughing and crowing to me. I handed him closely, almost fiercely, for I never have gotten over the wonder of having his tender little body in my arms, and spoke over his head to Dicky.

"Have you kissed him yet for his birthday? If you have wint-out waking me—"

Dicky's Vow.

"Do you think I don't value the safe position of my head where it rests at present on my shoulder?" Dicky retorted. "But I warn you, no one is going to have him first either. We'll just perform that little ceremony together."

He dropped to his knees by the bedside and slipped an arm around my shoulders. The baby cuddled between us looking up soberly as if he knew something special was on hand.

"Now, you on that cheek, I on this," I said, and then, with infinite care and tenderness we each imprinted a kiss upon the rose-leaf cheeks of our baby.

"One," we said simultaneously, then with a remembrance of nursery lore I added smilingly: "And now, one to grow on."

The ceremony completed, Dicky looked up at me teasingly. "If I remember rightly," he said, "it is also customary to give a child 'one to get married on.'"

He bent his head toward the baby again. I pushed him away almost roughly. An unreasonable child's superstitious panic seemed to rush over me at his words.

"Indeed, you're not going to give him that one," I said spiritedly.

Dicky threw back his head and laughed delightedly. "My, what a cantankerous old mother-in-law somebody I know is going to be some day!" He chuckled. "Jun or, when you jump over the broomstick I'd advise you to steer clear of your mother."

"I—I didn't mean to be silly, Dicky," I said perilously near to tears, and furiously angry with myself for my nervousness. My husband cast a keen glance at me, then bent down, putting both strong arms around the baby and me.

"It's rather adorable silliness, beloved," he said tenderly. "At least, I don't in the least object to it, and I think I'm one of those most deeply interested. And just let me tell you something to remember. I'm about the happiest man in the world today, delayed as I am, and the little chap here. Please God I'm going to take good care of you both always." (To be continued)

Help Them—Help Yourself

When you consider the steady continuous never-interrupted work demanded of the kidneys, you do not wonder that they must have help occasionally to filter and cast out from the blood stream the waste matter that forms poisons and acids if permitted to remain, causing backache, rheumatic pains, stiff joints, sore muscles, dizziness, floating specks, sallowness and irregular bladder action. Foley Kidney Pills give relief promptly. Sold everywhere.—Adv.

ALL INCOME TAXES ARE CUT BY BILL

Early Consideration Aim. Chairman Penros announced today that in offering the bill in the senate he would ask that it be made the unfinished business so as to bring early consideration. He was of the opinion that its passage would not be long delayed. After the senate acts the bill will go to conference for the composing of differences between the senate and house.

Senator Smoot, Utah, Republican member of the finance committee, plans to offer in the senate as a substitute for the whole measure his bill in which is incorporated a manufacturers' tax plan. This measure has the support of a number of manufacturers' associations, representatives of which were in conference here this week.

A final vote on the bill was deferred today until next Wednesday, but the committee will hold another session to gather up loose ends. At that time, Senator Smoot will offer his substitute bill and Senator Calder, Republican, New York, plans to introduce his proposal for a tax of $5 a barrel on 2.75 per cent beer.

The committee reconsidered today its decision to include in the bill a manufacturers' tax of 2 per cent tax on cosmetics, perfumes and toilet preparations in lieu of the present stamp taxes, effective next January 1 stands, however.

In order to make the taxes on soft drinks uniform, the committee voted to fix the tax on finished fountain syrups at 7 1/2 cents a gallon instead of 10 cents.

Factory Tax Amended

The house plan to impose a 5 per cent manufacturers' tax on entire wholesale selling price of a number of articles, if sold in excess of specified amounts, was amended so that the tax would be paid only in that portion of the selling price in excess of fixed sums, the 5 per cent rate would apply as follows:

Carpets selling in excess of $4 a square yard; rugs selling in excess of $6 a square yard; trunks selling in excess of $25 each; handbags, suitcases, etc., selling in excess of $20 each; purses, etc., $5 each; umbrellas and parasols $5 each; fans $1 each and portable lamps and fixtures $10 each.

Under an added section, a 5 per cent tax would be paid on the total amount of the wholesale price of office furniture and fixtures of mahogany, rosewood or other imported cabinet woods.

Insurance Taxes

The house proposal for taxing life insurance companies was approved except that they would be required to pay a 15 per cent tax on their investment income, effective as of last January 1. Instead of a 12 1/2 per cent rate. The present taxes on premiums would be repealed as of next January 1. Fire, marine and other insurance companies would be taxed as at present, except that the higher corporation income tax would be imposed.

Besides these changes, the committee has made these revisions in the house bill:

Restored the 3 per cent tax on toilet soaps and powders.

Restored the 10 per cent rate on fur articles, motorboats and yachts, portable electric fans and works of art which the house proposed to cut to 5 per cent.

Capitol Reduction Proposed. Imposed 10 per cent tax on candy selling at wholesale for more than 40 cents a pound and accepted the house reduction from 5 per cent to 3 per cent on all other candies.

Rejected the house proposal to exclude from the reduced tax of 5 per cent on sporting goods such articles as baseball, football and basketball equipment, skis, skates and toboggans.

Rejected the house proposal to exempt from income tax the salaries of the president and judges of federal courts and the first $2500 of income from investments by individuals in building and loan associations.

of their former comrades-in-arms on the pier. Tonight, the flag-draped caskets were under the watchful eyes of a guard of honor in the yard chapel, where tomorrow they will be rendered the honor that the navy pays to its heroic dead.

Crews at Salute. As the Dauntless passed quarantine, a navy tug carrying Captain C. M. Tooser, representing the secretary of the navy, and Commander C. R. Robinson, representing the commandant of the New York navy yard, went alongside and American officers climbed aboard. When the Dauntless was made fast, her commander, Captain Gilbert Stephenson, and his staff, together with the American officers on board, took their places near the ship end of the gangway. A whistle sounded and the British marine guard snapped into "present arms." Every member of the crew, from Captain Stephenson down simultaneously came to the salute.

Memorial Today. Eight dusky British bluejackets then lifted the casket containing the body of Commander Maxfield to their shoulders and it was slowly carried down the gangway. As the body left the ship the marine guard on the pier presented arms and the heads of hundreds of spectators were uncovered.

Public memorial service will be held at the navy yard at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon.

Say Divorce Three Times And it Takes in Turkish

ANGORA, Sept. 18.—New divorce laws is one of the reforms proposed by the Nationalists. Under the present religious law, if a husband says to his wife, or the wife to her husband, on three different occasions, "I divorce thee," the divorce is legal and effective.

RAILROAD MEN READY FOR FAIR

Special Passenger Trains to Run Each Day from Portland and Eugene

Preparing for special train service to the state fair, September 27 to October 1, J. A. Ormandy of Portland, assistant general passenger agent for the Southern Pacific, was here yesterday. With him were R. E. Hoke, representative of the company's executive five or six departments, and K. C. Ingram, editor of the Southern Pacific's bureau of news.

Kelly and Ingram are both of Oregon, looking over their territory which the Southern Pacific company serves. Under their direction the Southern Pacific company in July distributed to more than 50,000 persons throughout the country an interesting and handsomely illustrated number of the Southern Pacific Bulletin, explaining the "Land of Promise" in Oregon.

"We are vitally concerned with the interests of the communities we serve in Oregon and in this part of that state said Kelly. "Our investment is large, and we want to do what we can to aid development of this district. In Marion county last year our taxes amounted to $117,000. In Polk county $43,300, in Linn county, $81,500. For all of the state we paid $1,100,000 last year. Our payroll in Salem alone is $20,000 or more a month. In the whole state last year our payroll was $1,083,754. We are interested in every public movement that means the upbuilding of this territory."

Ormandy was busy arranging for the daily special trains that the Southern Pacific will add to its service from Tuesday to Saturday of fair week. Specials via Southern Pacific will arrive here each day from Portland and Eugene about 6:30 last night, and will depart about 5:30 in the evening after the races. A special train from Corvallis will connect with the Eugene special.

Special fares are being granted by the Southern Pacific from all its points in this state and the fair is being widely advertised, every city and town on the Southern Pacific system in Oregon being covered by the publicity campaign.

ANOTHER NOTE SENT BY MR. DE VALERA

Valera's telegram to the premier withdraws nothing that he previously has contended for, but that it is intended to facilitate a decision by the British cabinet in favor of a further conference.

Two leading Sinn Feiners, not members of the Dail Eireann cabinet but nevertheless in close touch with it, said tonight that the phrasing of Mr. DeValera's letter to Mr. Lloyd George was unfortunate, since the intention was to bring about a conference with out prejudice to the convictions of either side to the controversy.

TENNIS TITLE IS DECIDED TODAY

Tilden and Johnson, Both of Philadelphia, Meet in National Singles

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 16.—William T. Tilden II, and Wallace F. Johnson, both of this city will meet for the national tennis singles championship here tonight. Each won his way into the final round of the 40th titular tournament of the United States Lawn Tennis association today by decisively defeating opponents in the semi-final round. Tilden defeated Wallace Davis of San Francisco in straight sets, 6-0, 6-2, 6-1, and Johnson won from James O. Anderson of the Australasian Davis cup team, 6-4, 3-6, 6-6, 6-3.

In each match there was one decisive set, that between Tilden and Davis being the first, while the third set was the turning point in the Johnson-Anderson contest. Tilden having withstood the terrific service and returns of Davis in the initial set of their match won easily, while Johnson, after climbing the crucial third set, was always in the fore in the fourth and final set.

SAN ARDO BEATS SYRACUSE RECORD

Pacer is Driven by Tommy Murphy, Who Has Wonderful Week of Success

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Sept. 16.—San Ardo broke the state fair record here this afternoon when he paced the fastest mile in a race exhibited on the "big time" this year. He went the mile in 1:59 3-4 in the second heat of the 2:03 pacing class. San Ardo was driven by Tommy Murphy, who has driven practically all the record breakers this week.

Czar Worthy, a bay gelding, broke the record for 3-year-olds when he negotiated the mile in 2:03 3-4, also driven by Murphy. San Ardo, an easy winner in the first heat, while he covered the 2:00 3-4, took the lead at the start. He stepped the first quarter in 29 3-4 seconds to assume a lead of 30 feet. He made the half mile post in one minute flat.

San Ardo won the third heat of the 2:03 pace in 2:03 1/2, giving him the race in straight heats. Second honors went to John Henry. Best time 2:00 3-4.

Fred Edman scored a double by winning the next two races on the program. His Tony Mack won the 2:09 pace by taking the second and third heats after finishing fourth in the first. Second honors went to Hodson, Jay Mack, winner of the first heat. Best time 2:07 3-4.

Edman's legal J. won the first two heats and first money in the 2:17 trot. The gelding finished fifth in the third heat which was won by Murphy's Lord Frisco. Best time 2:19 1-4.
