

RIDING HANNAFORDS WITH SELLS-FLOTO CIRCUS ARE HIGHEST SALARIED RING PERFORMERS IN THE WORLD

The Riding Hannafords, featured among many notable acts with the Sells-Floto circus, are the best known as well as the highest salaried equestrians in the world. During the past winter they appeared at the New York Hippodrome, and no act offered in that mammoth playhouse ever caused so much comment or contributed so potentially to attracting the public. There are many circus acts that are highly meritorious, but which can not be credited with increasing the revenues of a show. The Hannaford riding act is, however, so unusual that it becomes "the talk of the town" wherever it is seen and is a distinct factor in helping to crowd the big tents.

The Hannafords not only perform all the equestrian feats accomplished by other clever riders, but they also introduce feature stunts in their riding that are entirely new to the circus. With this, "Poodles" Hannaford, the irrepresible riding clown, creates a comedy element that is as original as it is funny. "Poodles" rides on, over, under and back of a horse, and his burlesque equestrianism gives a merry contrast to the often thrilling riding exploits of the other members of the family. The Hannafords will surely be one of the big hits of the Sells-Floto circus when it exhibits in Salem, on Wednesday, September 21.

Besides the Hannafords, the Hobsons, the Hodrins, riders; the Codonas and Nelsons, big casting acts; Victoria and Berta Beeson, wire dancers; the Otwas and Hamido Madri Arabs, acrobatic troupes; Beatrice and Alfredo, aerial sensations, and 35 other feature performers contribute to the prestige of the "second largest show on earth."

No Opinion Given on Subject, Says Attorney

Attorney General Van Winkle has issued a statement to the effect that he did not advise the World war veterans state bonus and loan commission relative to propriety under the laws of dividing Multnomah county into districts for purposes of appointing attorneys under the bonus and loan act, and that he has given no opinion on the question. He says the commission acted without advice from him.

When the commission some time ago appointed all attorneys outside of Multnomah county members of the commission said that the Multnomah appointment would be held up until an opinion came from the attorney general as to whether the county could be distributed and an attorney named for each district.

Kennedy Files Suit as Outcome of Collision

A collision between a Ford truck and a Buick, on the corner of state street and Fourteenth on September 9, is responsible for the filing of a suit yesterday by E. H. Kennedy against W. H. Myers and S. W. Foster.

Mr. Kennedy operates the City Cleaning Works. He alleges that on September 9, he was driving his Ford truck south on Fourteenth street, that W. H. Myers, with the consent of the owner, S. W. Foster, was driving a Buick west on State street, that Myers was driving with utter disregard of traffic laws and that as a result, he collided with the Ford truck, causing damage to the extent of $64.85.

Mr. Kennedy asks for this amount and for $20 additional for the four days the Ford truck was out of commission.

TRIBUTE IS PAID 15 DEAD HEROES

Greatest and Humblest of Land Mourn Beside Caskets of Heroes

NEW YORK, Sept. 17.—(By The Associated Press)—The nation, from president to humblest citizen, today paid tribute to the memory of 15 brave men, American officers and men of the ill-fated dirigible ZR-2, whose plunge into the River Humber put two nations in mourning.

Around the caskets of 15—for one was buried in British soil—there gathered in the New York navy yard today a great band of mourners, coming from all ranks of American society. With them, in reverent sympathy, stood guards of honor from Great Britain, France and Brazil, which landed parties from warships.

Secretary Denby, representing the president and cabinet placed on each casket a bouquet of flowers. When he had finished his hands were trembling and his eyes were moist.

Hugh Trenchard, British air minister; Major General Robert Lee Bullard of the United States army; British and French consultants, and prominent men.

Nearer the caskets were privates and ordinary seamen, while the inside of the auditorium and out were men of both colors who stood for hours in the rain, until their clothes were soaked to pay tribute to the men who had faced death unflinchingly.

The sound of muffled drums outside, the strains of the "Star Spangled Banner" within and the service started.

Women in black, close relatives of the dead, stood a little straighter, held their heads a little more proudly when they heard the anthem. But there was one gray-haired mother for whom the strain was too much, the sorrow too deep. It seemed as if she would faint and she was led out weeping.

Secretary Denby raised his handkerchief to his eyes as the mother was assisted down the aisle, moaning again and again "My baby."

Lieutenant Commander F. E. Moyer, navy chaplain, conducted the final ritual—that of the Protestant faith. A male quartet sang: "Lead Kindly Light."

Then Secretary Denby stepped forward. Behind were three American seamen, bearing bouquets sent from the president and cabinet. He placed one on each coffin.

Sir Hugh Trenchard and the commander of the Dauntless then laid wreaths from the British embassy, British air ministry and the crew of the Dauntless. On the casket of Commander Louis H. Maxfield, was a representation of the ZR-2 in English violets, with a card inscribed: "A remembrance from your shipmates, whom you left behind."

Then Captain M. C. Gleason, Catholic chaplain, conducted the second service. Opposite him, holding lighted candles, were three bluejackets—youngsters scarcely eighteen.

"Nearer My God To Thee"—and then three volleys. Sharp and crisp they rang out. A bugler sounded taps.

Fifteen hearses bore the caskets to the naval hospital. Four bodies will be interred in Arlington—one, that of Lieutenant Emery Colt—will be buried at sea and the others will be turned over to relatives.

Ternan is Sentenced, Parole is Recommended

H. M. Ternan was yesterday sentenced to a term in the Oregon state penitentiary with a maximum of two years, and then upon recommendation of John H. Carson, district attorney, paroled to Anna J. Bromwell.
