

KILBANE YET WORLD CHAMP

Danny Frush, Challenger, Goes Down Before Title Holders in Seventh

STRUGGLE IS HARD ONE

Fouls Do Not Go With Referee, Who Makes Pugs Scrap to Bitter End

CLEVELAND, Sept. 17.—Johnny Kilbane is gray haired, 32 years old and has a look of age around his eyes, but he is still the world's featherweight champion.

The Cleveland veteran, defending his championship for the first time in five years, knocked out Danny Frush of Baltimore, a challenger 19 years younger, in the seventh round of a scheduled 12-round contest today. The match was fought in the Cleveland American league park before a crowd of 22,000 which paid approximately $100,000 to watch Kilbane who has been the title holder for nine years.

Fighting Is Rough
The fight developed into one of the roughest and most exciting contests ever staged in the featherweight division. It came near being ended in the first round when Kilbane hit Frush in the groin with his knee in retaliation for a punch Frush had landed low.

Kilbane, face reddened with left jabs, protested to the referee, W. C. Kelly, who paid no attention. As he fell into a clinch, Kilbane brought his knee up sharply and Frush fell. The referee allowed him to lay. Kelly said to the crowd:

"I am not going to let this fight end in a fluke. You came to see a fight and you're going to see one."

Kelly then ordered Frush's handlers to carry him to his corner and after a minute's rest, the second round started. Frush carried the fight to Kilbane and staggered him with a left hook to the chin. It was the only time Kilbane was in danger.

After boxing cautiously the first two rounds Kilbane opened up with an attack that brought cheers when the bell sounded. Neither apparently heard the bell and they continued to fight until the referee stopped them.

In the sixth round Frush was floored for the count of nine with a right and left to the jaw. When the challenger struggled to his feet, Kilbane rushed at him and was again guilty of fighting after the gong.

Floored Three Times
Frush was knocked down three times in the seventh round. He had opened a cut over Kilbane's left eye, which brought blood. Angered, the champion caught Frush with a terrific right to the chin. Frush fell in a heap but managed to struggle to his feet at the count of nine. Kilbane then piled into Frush with right and left hooks that dropped him in a neutral corner for the second time. Frush tottered to his feet at the count of nine and swayed into the ropes. Kilbane tore into his dazed opponent as he hung on the ropes, his arms hanging limply. The champion showed him with rights and lefts and Frush slid off the ropes knocked out.

Near Fortunc Made
Thousands of ringers swarmed into the ring congratulating Kilbane. The fans fought with the police who were obliged to use clubs to clear the ring.

The match was fought in a drizzle. Kilbane received $62,000 as his share. He was guaranteed $60,000 and was given an additional $2,000 as a bonus for signing. Frush got $2500. Kilbane did not weigh in for the fight but his handlers said he was about 128 pounds. Frush was obliged to make 126 pounds half an hour before the ringside.

Kilbane Objects
Early in the afternoon Kilbane threatened to call off the fight because he objected to the appointment of Sam P. Hall of Chicago and Richard Guy of Pittsburgh, sport writers, as judges. He refused to accept them chiefly because he was not consulted. He insisted so strongly on the appointment of Cleveland men that J. B. Wilderding, chairman of the boxing commission, appointed Frank Davis, a member of the commission and Thomas Terrell, to officiate.

Y CONFERENCE SLATED TODAY

Association Friends and Officials Meet at Wallace Farm in Afternoon

BONFIRE THIS EVENING

Outside Speakers to Participate in Setting-up Exercises in Country

The Y. M. C. A. setting-up conference at the Wallace farm will be held today rain or shine. Arrangements have been made to have the meeting in the grove at the head of the lake, with a bonfire in the evening, if the weather is unfavorable to have it indoors.

Among the out-of-town visitors expected are W. W. Dillon and wife, Fred Lookley of Portland, A. C. Schmidt of Albany, Frank Eberhart, A. C. McMoran and wife, and E. A. Britton and wife of Eugene.

The replies would indicate that there will be about 75 in attendance. All associations in the state are having similar conferences. Several Salem people went to the Eugene conference last Sunday. Portland association will have its exercises at Camas today.

The supper will be picnic style. arrangement of which is in charge of Mrs. J. B. Littler, chairman of the Mothers' club. The women's program is in charge of Mrs. E. E. Fisher.

Early Saturday Closing Is Object of Movement
Efforts are being made by a number of the leading business firms in Salem to secure a uniform closing hour for Saturday evenings. It is felt by many that the public in general would favor a closing hour at 6 o'clock, instead of holding them until 8 o'clock or later.

As yet, all business firms have not been interviewed, but those who have been seen, favor 6 o'clock Saturday closing.

Those that have signed are Miller Mercantile company, Portland Cloak & Suit company, N. C. Kaffoury and U. G. Shipley. It is thought that as soon as the committee in charge of the new movement has had opportunity to see other merchants, that all will agree to the earlier closing hour for Saturday night.

ASPINWALL HAS RECORD YIELD

Amazing Loganberry Production Reported By Growers' Association

Carl Aspinwall of Gervais, harvested and sold during the last season 85,372 pounds of loganberries from eight acres; 42.7 tons; five and a third tons to the acre.

If that is not the record yield for so large a yard of loganberries what is the record? T. A. Livesley & Co., in 1919, sold 12,460 pounds from one acre; and that is perhaps the record for a single acre. The Salem Slogan editor who is preparing the slogan matter in book form, asked the Oregon Growers Co-operative association to give the record loganberry yields for this year. The Carl Aspinwall showing is the highest for the loganberries handled by this association. The following are some more:

- L. H. Martin, Gervais, 9 1/2 acres, 89,476 pounds; 4.7 tons to the acre.
- J. A. McClain, Salem, 19,726 pounds from 2 1/2 acres; 4 tons to the acre.
- E. Dougherty, Salem, 7 acres, 55,730 pounds; 4 tons to the acre.
- R. E. Cartwright, Salem, 7 acres, 51,265 pounds; 3 1/2 tons to the acre.
- Emil Cramer, Salem, 4 acres; 20,388 pounds; 2 1/2 tons to the acre.
- O. L. Dencer, Salem, 5 acres, 32,253 pounds; 3 1/5 tons to the acre.
- E. J. Ellison, Salem, 5 acres, 33,167 pounds; 3 1/3 tons to the acre.
- A. Lentz, Salem, 29 acres, 142,000 pounds; 2 1/3 tons to the acre.
- John S. Marshall, Salem, 5 1/2 acres, 35,609 pounds; 3 tons to the acre.
- Miller & Bliven, Salem, 8 acres, 41,264 pounds, 2 1/2 tons to the acre.
- W. J. Neuens, Salem, 4 acres, 30,538 pounds; 4 tons to the acre.
- E. M. Faxon, Salem, 3 acres, 17,504 pounds; 2 tons to the acre.
- W. G. Pearline, Salem, 4 acres, 26,415 pounds; 3 1/2 tons to the acre.
- C. D. Query, Salem, 3 acres, 21,471 pounds; 3 1/2 tons to the acre.
- E. G. Funk, Sheridan, 25 acres, 94,892 pounds; 2 tons to the acre.

CONSTITUTION IS BROWN'S SUBJECT

Address Given by Supreme Court Justice at Court House Yesterday

Judge George M. Brown of the Oregon Supreme court, in his address at the court house Saturday morning, in commemoration of Constitution day, declared that the constitution of the United States as it now is, was adopted by the original 13 states only as a compromise measure.

Consists in those days were fearful of centralized power, and many states held back in ratifying the constitution as drawn up by the constitutional assembly that met at Philadelphia in 1787, he said.

Patrick Henry was one who opposed the adoption of the constitution, and it was only through the influence of George Washington that Virginia finally fell into line with other states and voted for adoption, Judge Brown said.

"Only three of the original states voted in favor of adoption after it was formally drawn up at Philadelphia and passed to the states for adoption," said Justice Brown. "Rhode Island did not adopt until George Washington was president."

"Benjamin Franklin was the greatest man in the constitutional convention, with the exception of Washington. John Hancock only finally agreed to support the constitution when it was intimated to him that if Washington was not elected president, Hancock had a chance.

"There was never an assembly of 55 men who had more intellect than the 55 who wrote and adopted our constitution, as every man elected to that assembly had held prominent places in the political and intellectual life of the colonies."

"Massachusetts adopted the constitution by a majority of 19 votes out of 309. New York adopted it by the small majority
