Portland Man Heard The principal address of vening was delivered by James Larimore, executive secretary of the Portland Y. M. C. A. The program of the evening was enlivened by James Palmer, of Portland, song leader, and selections by the orchestra, which played during the dinner.

The report of the activities of the Y. M. C. A. during the past year, as read by W. I. Staley, president, is as follows: "The past year has been a notable one for the Young Men's Christian associations of this country. Advancement has been made in every phase of the work Some departments have advance as much as 33 1-3 per cent, and the average growth for the year has been 17 1-2 per cent. "Our local association growth will compare favorably with the national growth. The past year has been an outstanding one in the history of the association. We started the work last fall with a three-man staff, and a big program. All departments of the work was organized in a systematic manner. Boys' Work Told About "Our boys' work program was one of unusual interest. The beginning of the year the interior of the building was changed to make it more fitted for boys work. Our boys and young men members were divided into 13 groups or clubs. These clubs competed for honors in the gym and athletics, in social activities and Bible study. The leadership of these groups was secured largely from the university. Through the efforts of the boys' work secretary, the Mothers club was formed, which has proven to be such a splendid aid to the association. The association cooperated with the Hi-Y club of the high school. They held meetings here every week. We cooperated with the state committee in a Willamette valley boys camp. This camp was conducted in a manner that made a profound impression upon the lives of the boys.

Physical Work Progresses "The association carried on a heavy gymnasium and athletic program. We had a thoroughly trained physical director, and classes for all ages and groups of men and boys in the membership. The business men's classes has been especially good the past year. There was one group playing biff and volley ball three times a week, and another group playing hand ball three evenings a week

Trial of the case of certain residents of Independence, Polk county, against the state highway commission, seeking to prevent the construction of some of the planforts have made the work so suc- ned state roads in that county. cessful. The newspapers, who will probably be reached in a few have been so generous in their weeks, according to J. M. Devers, attorney for the commission. The plaintiffs declare that the Polk county court is without legal authority to designate certain sections of the west Side Pacific highway as market roads, and that the court erred in entering into contracts of more than $5000 to make the improvements. Judges Pipes of Portland, representing the plaintiffs, has pre-pared his reply to Mr. Devers' answer, it is said. Judge Kelly of Albany will try the case. The suit is important in that it will determine for all time the rights of county courts concerning the designation of market roads.
