in six of the eight battles. Their championship craft went down with flag flying and tonight their loyal supporters were tempering their condolences over the loss of the series with congratulations on the showing the Yankees made in the first world's title series in which a New York American league team has earned the right to compete.

Nehf's Pitching Superb

Winning of the final game was due to the superb pitching of Nehf against a moundsmen to whom he previously had twice lost the decision. Allowing the American league batsmen but four hits, all singles and three of them coming with two men out, the crafty southpaw again and again turned the Yankees back in order or baffled their determined efforts to put across the solitary run for which they were struggling.

Hardly a whit less creditable was the performance of Hoyt, the Yankee youngster who twice before had taken Nehf's measure in close battles. Hoyt was in trouble in several innings, but except in the fatal first, when the Giants scored their only tally on two bases on balls and an error, he worked himself out brilliantly, once with a fine running catch by Fowler to help. Toward the end he was going stronger than ever, retiring the Giants in order in the eighth and ninth.

Brilliant Play Saves Game

The game, won by the Giants in the first inning, was probably saved for them in the ninth by as brilliant a fielding performance as has been seen in many a day.

One Yankee had been retired in the final frame. This was "Babe" Ruth, again in uniform, but confining his activities heretofore in the game to the coaching lines. Yankee fans poked hope and cheered wildly as the "Bambino" stepped up to bat for Wally Pipp. He made a valiant try, but his injured arm had taken the power from his swing and the best he could do was Nehf's puzzling delivery was to ground weakly to Kelly.

Aaron Ward was more fortunate. He waited out Nehf and finally walked.

It Did Not Pass

Frank Baker, again in the lineup, in place of the injured McNally, came next. With the count of three and two he met one of Nehf's offerings squarely. It shot toward right field, skimming the ground far to the left of John Rawlings. It looked like a sure hit and with Ward legging it for third, it promised to put the Yankees in a favorable scoring position if it got by.

But it did not pass. Throwing himself at the skimming sphere, Rawlings reached out and clung to it with his left hand. Rolling over and transferring the ball to his right hand Rawlings made the throw to Kelly at first while still on the ground, getting Baker by several feet.

Last Yankee Retired

Then Kelly, with a lightning-like throw shot the ball to Third Baseman Frank Frisch. A cloud of dust flew up over third as Ward slid from the midst of it. Umpire Quigley's form emerged as he right arm flung forth, motioning the runner out. The double play had been completed, the third Yankee had been retired, the game was over and the Giants had won the world championship.

The Giants' run was scored without the aid of a hit. With Burns disposed of at first as Baker fielded his grounded to Pipp, Bancroft walked on five pitched balls, got his first while Frisch was outlining out a tip and went to second as Hoyt, with the count of two and three, walked Young. There was a short protest by Hoyt on the fourth ball with which the young twirler insisted he had cut the plate.

With Bancroft on second Kelly sent what looked like an easy rouser to Peckinpaugh. With the third out 'n' sight, however, Peckinpaugh let the ball get through him and Bancroft, starting from second as the ball was hit scored easily.

Rawlings besides making the most spectacular fielding play, led his side at bat, with two doubles and a single. None, however influenced the result.

The game was played before the smallest crowd of the series. The morning was cloudy and raw, although the skies cleared early in the afternoon and the atmosphere warmed somewhat. There was tumult and shouting plenty and a last, overpowering, evanescent yell from the Giants' supporters as the final dazzling play was flashed.

CUT IN RATES MAY FOLLOW WAGE CUT

act failed to bring any material relief because of the decrease in business and had the railroad labor board not authorized a reduction in wages, many railroads would have been bankrupt before the end of the year, it was asserted.

Wage Fixing Hit

Railroad executives, according to the official, have realized the desirability of a reduction in freight rates because of the decrease in the prices of other commodities.

They have, however, been unable to effect such reductions, he said, because of the fixed operating costs. This, he asserted, applied to the arbitrary fixing of wages and to the limitation placed on hours employees can work and the amount of work that can be done.

To effect a reduction in freight rates and maintain present revenues, the plan announced tonight was formulated. Increased business brought about by lower freight rates, is expected to provide the increased revenue necessary for the railroads to operate at a fair profit, it was stated.

Formality Necessary

The plan, if approved by the executives tomorrow will be presented in an official announcement by executive officials, it is expected.

Those in touch with the situation pointed out that even if the proposal became effective at once some time would elapse before freight rates could be reduced. To decrease rates, a through almost as much formality as to raise them, it was stated.

May Go To Labor Board

A conference with employees would first be necessary and if the employees refused to accept the proposed reductions, the case would then be placed before the railroad labor board, under present provisions. If the board authorized the requested wage reduction the interstate commerce commission would then be required to pass on a proposal to reduce freight rates.

HIGHTOWER FOUND GUILTY, FIRST DEGREE

Then he was led back to his cell in the county jail.

Throughout the day he had chewed gum and toyed with a pencil.

Letter Deciding Factor

Apparently the letter demanding $6500 for Father Heslin's ransom was an important element in the jury's deliberations. The jurors retired for deliberation at 2:07 p. m. At 3:10 o'clock the ransom letter was sent in to them and 15 minutes later photographs and enlargements of letters of that document and of Hightower's acknowledged handwriting were given them. At 3:49 p. m. Foreman C. M. Dorse solemnly announced: "We find the defendant guilty of first degree murder, with a recommendation of life imprisonment."

NEW FINANCIAL AND ATTENDANCE RECORD MADE

The advisory board, which succeeded the national commission, will take as its 15 per cent share $135,034.95. The club owner's share will amount to $472,675.84. This latter sum exceeds by $2,853 the best previous club owners' share made during the 1919 series when $389,822 was divided.

Owners of the two local clubs, however, are not permitted to retain and divide equally the close to a half million dollars which appears at first sight to be theirs.

Rules governing the financial affairs of the world series provide that 50 per cent of each club's share for the first seven games shall be paid into their respective league treasuries and that in case an eighth game is necessary as was the case today, then 75 per cent of the club's share of receipts for that game must go to the league treasuries.

Uncle Sam Collects

Uncle Sam, in the guise of war tax and income tax collector, will also share in the receipts. The straight 10 per cent tax was deducted before the gate receipts were made public but there are still experts of the government accounting department to work out what each player, club owner and umpire shall contribute by income taxes.

Still another group will do some figuring and announce the league's contributions in the shape of excess profits, surtaxes and other little details which business enterprises are requested to eventually pass into the treasury at Washington.

In voting, the witness declared that the ritual called for support of men known to be patriotic above party. Among exhibits presented were telegrams to President Harding and Attorney General Daugherty urging an investigation of the Klan, both of whom replied, the wizard said, that they would give the question due consideration.

Discussing membership restrictions, he said: "I want to state emphatically and in the fear of God, that the Klan is not an anti-Catholic order."

Not Anti-Catholic.

"But you do not permit Catholics to join it," said Representative Rodenberg, Republican, Illinois.

"That is true, but the Knights of Columbus only admit Catholics," he replied. "We antagonize no man's religion. I have heard of only one case where a Kiegler circulated anti-Catholic propaganda and he was instantly discharged."

"We are not anti-Jewish. Any Jew who can subscribe to the tenets of the Christian religion can get in. We are not anti-negro. Scores of other fraternal organizations will not admit negroes. We are not anti-foreign born; we merely request that members must be native born Americans."
