

OREGON CROPS SHOW BIG GAIN

Department Bulletin Attributes Improved Showing to Good Weather

STATE YIELD IS SHOWN

Potatoes Are Small in Many Districts, Wheat, Hops and Other Crops Good

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 14. — Improvement in apple crop prospects and a falling off in potato production forecasts for the state are outstanding points in the Oregon monthly crop report just issued by F. L. Kent, agricultural statistician of the department of agriculture.

Conditions of some crops in the state on October 1, compared with normal was as follows: Corn, 75 per cent; pasture, 87 per cent; potatoes 84 per cent; grapes 90 per cent. Yields per acre are estimated at 4 tons for cabbage; 300 bushels for onions; 800 pounds for hops.

An inquiry relative to total acres in crops compared with last year indicated the 1921 average at 96 per cent of 1921. Assessors 1921 acreage returns except for seven counties not yet available, place this year's crop acreage at 95 per cent of last year.

Weather Favorable. Weather conditions: A very general rainfall occurred about the 20th of September with a light precipitation about the 3rd and again about the 25th. The total precipitation at Portland as recorded by the weather bureau was 3.98 inches, compared with the normal of 1.51 inches for the month of September. There was no long continued damp cloudy weather, consequently there was but little crop damage from the precipitation. Hops were about 90 per cent picked when the heavy rainfall occurred and prunes were only slightly damaged by the rainfall of the month. The precipitation was sufficient to put the soil in good condition for fall seeding operations in most localities and plowing and seeding made rapid progress during the latter half of the month.

Killing frosts over most of the state, occurred on September 12 and 13. In the western part of the state growing crops on the higher elevations, for the most part, escaped frost damage but in the river bottom, practically all garden truck and late potatoes were killed. In some localities, corn on the uplands was also frosted. River bottom land corn was pretty generally frost bitten. In the eastern and central portions of the state, lower temperatures prevailed than in the western district and consequently frost damage was more general. Corn, late potatoes, late alfalfa, in fact, practically every growing crop was injured by frost in the eastern portion of the state. In Union county, it is reported that prunes were damaged to some extent.

Wheat Yield Good.

Spring Wheat: The average yield per acre for the state is estimated at 16 bushels. For the United States the average yield per acre has been placed at 10.9 bushels.

Oats: Average yield per acre of oats for Oregon is estimated at 50 bushels for 1921 as compared with 24 bushels for the United States.

Potatoes: The August dry weather decline in condition continued through the first half of September when killing frosts checked further growth in most districts. Many late planted potatoes had made but little growth of tubers when killed by frost, hence, will be very small in size. In fact, the state crop generally appears to be under average size. Digging is further advanced than usual for this date and market reports indicate that several carloads have already been shipped.

Hops: Hop picking, completed with but little damage from rain but it is reported that a large percentage of the crop was frost damaged. Freezing opens the hop burr, causing shattering. A reddish color also develops, and the value of the product is much impaired.

National Crop Summary

Corn: A large portion of the corn crop is now fairly matured and beyond danger of frost damage. Silo filling is practically completed. Much corn that is to be husked from the shock or shredded is already cut. Good yields are generally reported with the exception of a few sections where the yield has been cut by drought. Recent frosts have considerably damaged the small acreage in Montana, Idaho and Oregon.

Wheat: Plowing for winter wheat still continues and much seeding is in progress. The crop is up to a good stand in early sown fields, and the condition is generally reported as very favorable. Seeding is being delayed by rain in some sections of Iowa and Missouri. The crop will soon be ready to pasture in the main wheat section of Oklahoma.

Some threshing of spring wheat in the stack is still in progress. Yields are generally unsatisfactory. Some damage from recent snow and rains is reported in Montana.

Potatoes Improved

Potatoes: The late crop of Irish potatoes shows some improvement due to recent rains. In general however, the yield is low especially for early potatoes. Digging of late potatoes is in progress in many sections. Recent frosts have killed the vines and caused some damage in the far western states. The dry weather is injuring the fall planted crop in the Southern states.

Fruits: The prospect for the apple crop is quite favorable for the western states, but the yield is generally poor elsewhere. Picking is nearly completed in many sections. Citrus fruit is ripening rapidly in Florida but needs rain badly. The cranberry harvest is making good progress and fair to good yields generally reported.

Livestock, Hay and Pasture: The condition of livestock is generally very good and very little disease is reported. Some local outbreaks of cholera are reported, but no serious epidemics. Anthrax is reported among cattle and horses in several localities of Indiana. The hay crop throughout the northern states has generally been good. Pastures have been greatly benefited by recent rains in most sections of the country and are furnishing much feed. Range grass is generally plentiful and curing in excellent condition for winter feed.
