Has Two-Thirds of a Dollar—Ivan G. Martin has two-thirds of a dollar. It is currency issued by the first continental congress and was printed in February of 1776. It is about two by four inches in size, and on one side are 13 small rings looped into one large ring with the motto, "We Are One."

Legal Blanks—Get them at The Statesman office. Catalog on application.—Adv.

Keep Your Own Leaves—Walt S. Low, city street commissioner, is having more than his share of trouble this year and this is due to the fact that many people are of the opinion that the city should take care of all the leaves that have fallen on their premises. Mr. Low says the city carts away only leaves that have fallen on the curbing and streets, and no one is entitled to sweep their leaves out into the street. Any one who does permit leaves to accumulate in the street is subject to a fine, as leaves come under the head of rubbish.

Wanted—Experienced girl for steady work. Apply at Gray Belle.—Adv.

Wheat Market Stronger—The wheat market was stronger yesterday and pushed up about one cent. However, there is no demand, and the price is likely to wobble either way. All shippers are awaiting the outcome of the railroad strike.

A Classified Ad—Will bring you a buyer.—Adv.

About the Cherrian Dance—When questioned as to whether the Cherrian dance, to be given at the Salem Shrine mosque Tuesday evening, November 2 was formal dress for all, Lee L. Gilbert, chairman in charge, puts it this way: The Cherrian un-form is regarded as formal dress for Cherrians, and the women will be expected to appear in evening dress. There will be no surplus of women there, that evening, as each Cherrian will be limited to one, and their sisters and their cousins and their aunts stand a mighty poor show of receiving an invitation. It's going to be the finest Cherrian dance ever given," declared Mr. Gilbert.

More Soldiers in Hospitals—According to a bulletin received by the Red Cross, there are more former service men in hospitals than ever before. The official records show that in 1919 there were 3300 ex-service men in hospitals, and in 1920 the number was 17,500. So far this year the records show that 26,300 former service men have been placed in hospitals through the Red Cross.

Will Operate Another Month—The Hunt Brothers Packing company is now canning apples and squash and will continue to operate for about 30 days longer. On account of favorable weather conditions the season, taken as a whole, has been better than anticipated, according to W. H. Allen, manager.

$532.50 Pledged Yesterday—The Y. M. C. A. campaign continues, and will continue until the necessary amount for the maintenance of the institution is pledged. The total amount now subscribed is $6908.50. In the efforts to find eight men who will give $250 each, C. A. Kells, secretary, announces that when two more citizens offer to give $250 each, the eight are assured.

ART BUILDING NEEDED Editor Statesman: The article entitled "City Art Building Considered Art," which appeared on the front page of the Wednesday edition of the "Statesman" interested me very much. I heartily agree with the contributor of that article on a number of the points which she makes.

In the first place, her word description of the art room was most realistic and very accurate. Those interested in the art display at the Oregon State Fair will all agree that the room used for this purpose is most unsuitable. To begin with, the room is located in the back of the pavilion where one would never find it without explicit directions. The lighting is poor, which means that the majority of exhibits have dead shadows, which under more favorable light would appear to be varied in light and shade with animated color. The room itself is far too small, and this year even a portion of that, (which) has here-to-fore been devoted to china paintings was given over to an advertising display by a Portland decorating house. (This should not have been tolerated, since it necessitated the hanging of some fine paintings near the ceiling, and forced the cases of painted china, and art-craft work into awkward positions in the room). We cannot expect to observe the "light" displays of art to exhibit at our fair when there is danger of both fire and theft. Every canvas, etching, photographic study, tapestry and china piece exhibited, represents a skill and workmanship that cannot be lightly estimated, and which is worthy of a safe and attractive building. I believe every entry should be approved of by the one in charge of exhibits, before they are allowed to be unpacked and hung. If this ruling is adopted by the fair board, pictures such as the ones referred to in the previous article, as "colored photography," will not be thrust upon the public again. In this particular case, I happen to be familiar with the facts, and I know that the man who made these large nude photographs sent them to Vancouver, B. C. in August to be exhibited at the Photographers convention of the Pacific Northwest. The officers of the convention refused to hang them. However, the man undaunted by this edict, shipped them down to Salem, and they appeared on the most conspicuous wall in the art room. These large colored nude pictures cheapened woman's loveliness, and were an outrage against art.
