

FLAX BOOSTED BY REALTORS

Inquiry Will Be Made to Ascertain Plans of State For Industry

PRODUCTION PAYS WELL

Speakers Sought Who May Offer Enlightenment to County Farmers

The Marion County Realtors association is not quite satisfied with a report that the state intends to ditch the flax industry after all that has been done for a number of years to establish flax growing in the valley.

Members of the association are after information as to why the powers that be at the state house—if the report is true—want to get rid of flax and why they claim it is not a paying industry, especially since reports of crops grown by farmers this year show that flax can be grown here and at a most reasonable profit.

This Farmer Did Well
A. C. Bohrnstedt reported that he knew one farmer who had 100 acres in flax this year and had sold his crop for $10,000. Others expressed the opinion that possibly the state officials thought this was too much money.

Realtors expressed the opinion that it had been proved that the Willamette valley could grow flax equal to the best grown in Ireland and Belgium. A motion was unanimously carried in which the opinion was expressed that the Marion County Realtors association go on record to continue its efforts in flax growing.

Rumor Worries Realtors
This motion was based on the report that the state officials were attempting to dispose of the state's machinery and discontinue the growing of flax under state supervision.

A committee was appointed to investigate real flax conditions and sentiment at the state house, and also to arrange for speakers who have direct information as to flax growing, its profits and whether the state has given the industry a fair test and fair treatment.

Scrofula: Most Progressive Now
Sudden changes of weather are especially trying, and probably to none more so than to the scrofulous and consumptive.

The progress of scrofula during a normal autumn is commonly great. It is probable that few people ever think of scrofula—its eruptions, eruptions, and wasting of the body—without thinking of the benefit many sufferers from it have derived from Hood's Sarsaparilla, whose success in the treatment of this one disease alone would be enough to make it what it is, one of the most famous medicines in the world.

There is probably not a city or town where Hood's Sarsaparilla has not proved it merit in more homes than one, in arresting and completely eradicating scrofula, which is almost as serious, and as much to be feared as its near relative, consumption.

Hood's Pills, the cathartic to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla, in cases where one is necessary, are gentle in action and thorough in effect.—Adv.

Rural Route No. 8 Is Praised by Huckestein

August Huckestein, after taking trips over rural routes 1, 2, 5, 6 and 8, finds that rural route 8, with 232 patrons, is in the best condition of all when it comes to roads, and the placing of mail boxes on the right-hand side of the road as the mail carrier travels.

On rural route 2, in Polk county, in parts the roads are bad and a number of patrons have not complied with the postal regulations in placing mail boxes.

Rural route 8, which is in such fine condition, runs north along North Front street and River road to the Keizer schoolhouse, retracing about a mile, then to South Prairie and Clear Lake, then back on the Pacific highway to the fair grounds.

COUGARS WIN FROM MOSCOW

Washington State College Eleven Outclasses University of Idaho

FORWARD PASSES COUNT

Field Goal by Irving of Idaho is First Registration Of Battle

PULLMAN, Wash., Oct. 21.—The 23rd annual gridiron contest between Washington State college and the University of Idaho went to the Cougars this afternoon by a score of 20 to 3.

Washington's superiority was particularly apparent on forward passes, Idaho having essayed several which could not be completed.

The Idaho team's sole scoring came in the first period, Irving scoring field goal from the Washington 20-yard line. At the start of the second period Bohannon took Skadan's pass for the first Washington touchdown.

In the middle of the third Sax went through center for seven yards for another, and in the final quarter Sax made a 17-yard run which permitted Sandberg to carry the ball across by a line plunge.

Near the close of the game Washington State held the leaders for their fourth down on the Washington one-yard line. Sax and Moran were effective as yardage gainers for Washington, and Jenne starred with punts and passes.

Summary:
Idaho—Washington Evans (c) ... Bohannon Vohs ... Hamilton Neil ... Durrwachter Goff ... Dunlap (c) F. Brown ... McKay Glinde ... Dunton B. Brown ... Hanley H. Brashears ... Skadan Irving ... Sax Whitcomb ... Jenne A. Brashears ... Moran

OBITUARY

Dr. Z. M. Parvin was born in Indiana, April 25, 1843, and while a child moved with his parents to Illinois where he lived until his enlistment in the Union army in 1863. He received his discharge from the army in 1866. During this period he served with Yates' sharpshooters and the 151st infantry. The latter part of his service was spent in reconstruction work in the south.

He was married on November 11, 1866, to Addie Sutton and had he lived until Armistice day of this year. Dr. and Mrs. Parvin planned to celebrate their 55th wedding anniversary.

In 1876 Dr. Parvin moved with his family to San Jose, Cal. where he held the chair of music in the state normal school until his election in 1883 as dean of the college of music in Willamette university at Salem, Ore., which position he held for 12 years. Dr. Parvin made Salem his home until he went to Portland in 1905 where he lived until his death.

All of Dr. Parvin's life was devoted to music. Two universities in appreciation of his musical achievements conferred upon him the degree of Doctor of Music. It is a noteworthy fact that Dr. Parvin has graduated more finished musicians and teachers that are actively engaged in their profession than any other professor of music in the country. He always gave a great deal of his time to the developing and leading of church choirs. Dr. Parvin is the author of a large number of well known musical compositions which range from popular to sacred music and operatic scores.

He was a member of the Odd Fellows lodge, the A.O.U.W. and George Wright post of the G.A.R. Dr. Parvin was the last of six brothers and is survived by his wife, Addie Parvin; one daughter, Mamie P. Brown of Portland; two sons, J. Ray of Silver Lake, Wash. and Chester A. who is at present in the east, and five grandchildren.

APPREHENSIVE.
She had received proposal of marriage from a man she had always regarded more in the light of a brother than a lover.

"Janet," he began, "you know, I have always turned to you; that I have always thought of you. May I—that is—ah, will you be my wife?"

"What a start you gave me, Henry," said Janet at last. "Do you know I thought from your manner that you were going to ask me to lend you some money."

TALE OF CRUISE PRESENTED STATE

New York Attorney Author of Story of Oregon's Voyage Around World

Lewis Hopkins Rogers, an attorney of New York, has presented to the state of Oregon manuscript copy of from 80,000 to 100,000 words together with over 100 photographs, describing the eventual five-year cruise of the world by the battleship Oregon.

A condition of the gift is that the state have it published in book form. The copy has been presented to the state through Sam A. Kozier, secretary of state.

Mr. Kozier has accepted the gift but has advised Mr. Rogers that its publication at state expense will depend upon the state legislature. A proposal that an appropriation be provided will be placed before the legislature of 1923.

Material for the book was obtained by Mr. Rogers from one of the orderlies of Captain Francis E. Clark, commander of the ship on the cruise and also during the historic voyage around the Horn in 1898 and at the subsequent battle of Santiago. The orderly's name is Kemp, and from him Mr. Rogers procured the data during a visit in San Francisco at the conclusion of the world voyage. As orderly for Captain Clark, Kemp read the signals passing between Commodore Schley's flagship, the Brooklyn, and the battleship Oregon during the famous chase of the American ship after the one remaining Spanish man-of-war after the battle of Santiago. Mr. Rogers says his manuscript was read by Captain Clark, who pronounced it one of the most truthful accounts of the world voyage.

The presentation of the copy and the pictures was suggested to Mr. Rogers when he read of efforts by the people of Oregon to have the ship preserved.

Lumber Business Only 15 Percent Under Normal

New lumber business totaled 77,456,366 feet for the week ending October 15, according to reports from 100 mills to West Coast Lumbermen's Association.

The volume of new business fell slightly from the preceding two weeks, but still remained above both production and shipments. Thirty-six per cent of the total new business was for water delivery. This amounted to 28,167,366 feet, of which 18,388,366 feet was represented in coastwise and intercoastal orders, and 9,778,000 feet in export orders. Business for delivery by rail amounted to 1,843 cars. Shipments by rail totaled 1,554 cars. The unshipped balance in the rail trade is reported at 3,592 cars, reduction totalPed 63,792,927 feet. Of water shipments, 9,007,899 feet moved coastwise and 9,165,028 feet cleared for over-seas.

Is anybody holding the watch on the return to normalcy? Get down and dig, that is the proper caper.
