the rail strike scheduled for October 30, suggesting that the roads temporarily postpone seeking further wage reductions because the board's docket was so crowded that wage decisions for all classes of employees could not be rendered before July, 1922. The carriers, however, informed the board that they were "powerless to take any other position," than their present one.

and just recently sent a committee consisting of Frank W. Wrightman, E. W. Hazard and Cuyler Van Patten on a tour of the west to look over the finest lodge buildings in order to help in selecting a style of architecture for the building of the new $150,000 temple.

Electric Service Will Be Extended to Farms

A three-mile extension of electric service north of Salem is announced by the Portland Railway Light & Power company. The new extension will begin on Pacific highway opposite P. N. Andersen's farm, extend east about half a mile, and then north on a road parallel to Pacific highway to the Chemawa road.

tension has already been ordered and work will begin within a few days. The cost of materials and labor will amount to about $3250. This amount will be advanced by the 13 residents along the line who will be benefited, and credit given monthly to each until there is a credit of the total amount advanced. The service then will cost each household the same rate as residents of Salem.

been instrumental in securing the extension are: E. J. Gruenfelder, L. V. Hammer, F. O. Johnson, Lewis F. Kobow, M. H. Lytle, E. E. Lavalaur, E. B. Perrine, Fred Stettler, L. M. Van Gleave, Herman Wacken, William Wulfmeyer, G. L. Warren and John F. Zielenski.
