MOURNERS FOR STATE NAMED

Hogan, Burgard and Wight Will March in Cortege of Unknown Soldier

ALL HAVE WAR RECORDS

Expense to Washington for Armistice Event Paid By Government

Captain Otero F. Hogan, and John C. Burgard of Portland, and Howard M. Wight of the faculty of Oregon Agricultural college, Corvallis, all exservice men with good war records, have been appointed by Governor Olcott as representatives of Oregon as participants in the funeral procession honoring the unknown American soldier who will be buried in Arlington cemetery on Armistice day.

The governor was requested by John W. Weeks, secretary of war, to appoint representatives of the state. At first the number of men was to be one for each 10,000 men the state had in the service, which would have given Oregon four, but later this was reduced.

Government Stands Expense

It is the plan of the government that the state representatives shall be included among the official mourners at the funeral and will follow the remains from the national capitol to the historic cemetery. It is required that the men arrive at Washington not later than the night of November 10. The cortege will leave the capitol at 8:30 a. m. on November 11 and the procession will cover a distance of about five miles. The representatives of the states will be received at Washington as guests of the nation and the cost of their board and lodging for one day will be paid by the government.

Hogan Has Wide Service

Captain Hogan entered the Oregon national guard as a private. During the Mexican border trouble he entered the federal service as a lieutenant in troop A, Oregon cavalry. When the United States entered the World War he was in charge of recruiting for the national guard in Portland and remained in that service until called overseas with the Oregon cavalry which later became part of the 14th field artillery of the 66th brigade. He participated in all the major engagements in France, going to the front immediately upon his arrival and serving continuously with his regiment. After the armistice he was detailed to duty in Paris. He remained in the army until last year when he resigned because of broken health due to long service, and is now engaged in the practice of law in Portland.

Burgard Was Cited

John C. Burgard was a first lieutenant with the 352nd infantry. He was cited for extraordinary heroism in action near Epouville, France, September 27, 1918. While on duty as a battalion liaison officer, Lieutenant Burgard at daybreak was establishing the battalion post of command when he suddenly discovered the Germans placing a battery of machine guns at a point where they might fire upon the post from the flank. Burgard fired a rifle to give the alarm and started toward the enemy, followed by the battalion headquarters group whom he led in a vigorous attack on the enemy. The Americans captured 21 of the Germans, one machine gun and two light machine rifles. There was but one casualty among Burgard's men. His residence is 619 Hillcrest drive, Portland.

Wight Showed Bravery

Howard M. Wight was a private with Company I, 361st infantry. He was cited for extraordinary heroism in action near Gessen, France, September 18, 1918, when his battalion withdrew after attacking the enemy under heavy fire. Private Wight, instead of retreating, organized a small party and braved a heavy machine gun fire, rescued 15 wounded soldiers and prevented their falling into the hands of the enemy. The wounded men were placed by Wight into a gravel pit and he remained with them throughout the night, administering first aid, although he himself was nearly exhausted after three days of fighting.

Hard Colds

People whose blood is pure are not nearly so likely to take hard colds as are others. Hood's Sarsaparilla makes the blood pure; and this great medicine recovers the system after a cold as no other medicine does. Take Hood's.—Adv.

"Boss," said the young fellow, hopefully, "don't you think it's about time I was earning more money?" "I should say I do," growled the boss, "Why'n thunder don'tchu?"—Richmond Times-Dispatch.
