GOOD news for mothers comes with the discovery of calicoes, gingham-cloths, poplins, and beach cloths in ever fast colors. For the first time she now has cotton materials for her own and the children's use that retain their original color in spite of everything. The kids can get as dirty as they like in their pinafores. Just put the clothes in the "biler" and out comes the dirt while in stays the color. The faded morning house dress is to be a thing of the past. Its crisp newness and brightness of shade can be retained indefinitely. Samples of the new cloths were boiled in caustic soda recently and then used to net sun for 168 hours. They came out of the test with no loss of color.

RURAL CARRIERS TELL OF ROADS

Conditions in Country Thoroughly Surveyed by Postoffice Employees

In order that the postoffice department at Washington shall be fully informed as to rural route conditions, roads, and whether rural patrons out of Salem are assisting the department in every way, each rural carrier has been requested of report on general conditions.

Rural route 1 is covered by John J. Moritz, with Bernard J. Kretcher as substitute. The route covers 28 3/8 miles. On this route all patrons have not taken the trouble to place their boxes properly, or to have their names plainly marked. Traveling conditions are good on this route. The route runs into Polk county on Wallace road to the county line, thence to Spring Valley and Zena.

Rural route 2 is handled by Harry A. Loomis and he has no substitute. The route is 22 1/2 miles long and the roads only fair. On this route several patrons need to look into having their mail boxes placed right and names plainly on boxes. The route follows Oak Grove road, thence south to the Dallas road and thence return to Salem.

Lyman McDonald is rural carrier for route 3, and he has the longest distance of all carriers to travel, as the route is 30.3 miles in length. His substitute is M. W. Sawyer. Not all boxes are in proper condition on the route and the roads are only fair. The route is south of Salem by the Liberty road to Orville and return by Riverside drive.

Route 4 is handled by George L. Litchfield and his substitute is Susie Litchfield. On this route several patrons will need to look after their boxes, and also look into the painting of names more carefully. The route is 24 1/2 miles in length and roads fair. Route 4 leads out on South High street to Jefferson road, thence west to Liberty road, south to Rosedale and Friends church and return by way of Pringle to Salem.

James S. Albert is carrier for rural route 5, and he has no substitute. The route is 24 1/4 miles in length. Several mail boxes need attention on the route. The roads are partly good. This route extends south on Twelfth street through Morningside to the feeble minded school, thence to the state industrial school, Waldo hills to Macleay, thence Asylum road to Turner road and back to Salem.

Oratio L. Fisher is carrier for rural route 6, and his substitute is Walter H. Smith. The route is 24 2/5 miles in length and the roads fair. Here again a number of boxes need attention. This route runs eight miles on the penitentiary road, thence north to Pratum, west to the Asylum road, south to Auburn avenue, west 2 1/2 miles, thence north to the Asylum road.

Charles W. Brasher is carrier for rural route 7, and his substitute is Grace R. Pugh. The route is 24 1/5 miles in length and the roads fair. Several mail boxes need attention on this route. It leads out of Salem on D street, Silverton road to Howell Prairie, south to Pratum and return to Pratum by Garden road.

Frtmont L. South is carrier for route 8, and his substitute is Hattie A. Pickett. The progressive farmers on this route have all their mail boxes in fine condition and the roads are all right. The route is 26 1/4 miles long. Route 8 extends north on Front street and River road to Keizer school, thence south to Prairie and Clear Lake, and return to Salem on Pacific highway.

James A. Remington is carrier for route 9, and Gertrude C. Remington is substitute. The route has a length of 26 1/8 miles. While the roads are good, the same cannot be said of all rural mail boxes, and several patrons need to give their boxes attention. This route extends from Salem north on Pacific highway to Brooks, thence east to Hazelgreen road, thence to the Silverton road and back to Salem on Fairgrounds road.

The output of cotton will be smaller in the south next season principal crops of that section are smaller than for some years. With the likely to be far and feathers.
