It was agreed that for a period of 90 days after the agreement ex-service men should be given preferential rights to buy. The time expired several months ago.

Intersectional Games Prominent East Today

NEW YORK, Nov. 4.—One inter-versity classic and three intersectional contests feature the eastern football program this week-end.

The Harvard-Princeton game, with its traditions dating back to 1877, holds chief attention. Although Notre Dame-Army, Pittsburgh-Nebraska and Yale-Maryland battles all figure prominently because of the different sections of the country represented.

Among the more important of the home-and-home games are the Columbia-Cornell, Lafayette-Pennsylvania, Wesleyan-Amherst, Bucknell-Navy, Union-Williams, Lehigh Muhlenberg, Rochester-Colgate, Penn State-Carnegie Tech. and Fordham-Georgetown struggles.

Princeton and Harvard with a record of two tie games in the last two years, are expected to furnish much of the gridiron fireworks. Both universities will be represented by their strongest combinations.

Reduced Lumber Rates May Extend Far East

The Southern Pacific company announces that in connection with negotiations for reduced through rates on lumber and forest products from Oregon, Washington and Idaho to territory east of Chicago, the eastern lines are now giving further consideration to the question of making the following through rates. Present rates also are indicated: To Cincinnati-Detroit common points—Proposed rate, 85 cents; present rate, 87 1/2 cents.

New Baseball Magnate Off to Attend Meeting

PORTLAND, Nov. 4.—W. H. Klepper, president of the Portland baseball club, left today to attend the annual Pacific coast league winter meeting at Los Angeles November 8.

Klepper said he has no idea of doing any trading at the Los Angeles meeting, although if some good opportunity presented itself he would take advantage of it.

Tremendous Prune Yield Is Shown by Association

Six and a quarter million pounds of prunes in pine packing plants in the various prune growing sections of Oregon are the figures shown in a summary of the stock received up to the end of October by the Oregon Growers Cooperative association.

Four million pounds of this Willamette valley and the remainder were produced in the Willamette valley and the remainder a little over two million pounds are from the Umpqua.

TAKES ISSUE WITH THE STATESMAN

Editor Statesman: Your editorial on the boys' training school of this morning is timely. But I must take issue with you in regard to the grounds. There are not six hundred acres, but four hundred. There will be, when the creek is lowered, fifteen acres of good ground. There is some fair ground, but mostly poor and some worthless. No farmer can ever make a profitable place out of this. In fact, no good farmer would expend as much manual labor as the state possesses in those boys on such a place if he had the choice. However, under the circumstances, the building of the new school should be referred back to the legislature. Sooner or later, Oregon, like other states, will have to furnish an intermediate place between a training school and a penitentiary for advanced boys and young men that are far gone in transgression of the laws but should not be put in the penitentiary. For this purpose, the place would serve, and scrapping of the present valuable buildings would be unnecessary; pending such future re-arrangement and necessities, the place will serve. —FAIR PLAY.

Salem, Or., Nov. 4, 1921.

If the state training school for boys is using only 400 acres, it is very easy to make it 600 acres, or more; for the state owns in all some 2000 acres in that body, under the control of the state hospital (insane asylum), tuberculosis hospital, and boys' training school. And it is nearly all available for some crop that is adapted to this district. It is all under one board; all belongs to the state.

The idea of finally using the plant of the boys' training school for the reformatory is a good one. Most of the states have such institutions, for boys above 16 and first offenders. Both California and Washington have them. In that case, however, the training school for boys under 16 ought to be located at some distance away.

Oregon stands among the six highest states for percentage of school attendance, according to a census report just issued; the others being Iowa, Nebraska, Montana, Idaho and Utah. The highest of all is Utah.

The Salem Commercial club could not take on a more useful activity than the helping of the realtors to get the flax industry organized. First, find the man with the capital, or with the organizing ability.

European motto: "Charity begins in the United States."

Wanted, a man who can organize the flax industry of the Salem district.

If the reduction of the army continues there won't be much to be demobilized in this country when the disarmament conference acts. The organization is now nothing but a skeleton.

It is plain that the only sure way to guarantee a continuously profitable market for our unsurpassed flax fiber is to provide a factory for spinning it into twine and making it into linen fabrics. That will settle it for all time.

The way for the government to get out of business is to get out. Why not drop a number of projects, stop employing thousands of employes and using millions in doing for individuals and groups what these individuals and groups ought to be doing for themselves? If congress had a little more courage.—Exchange. Well said.

Tag day. Like April weather.

The bootlegger gets soaked in Marion county.

The war department is to train reserve officers by mail. The disarmament meet about to open in Washington may fix it so that we can do our fighting in the same way.

What the Salem district must do is, look for a man big enough to organize the flax industry and carry it to the finished product of fine linens.

The elevator in the capitol is to be run by electricity. Some one ought to propose a medal for Secretary of State Sam Kozer. That elevator has been the joke of the state in the past, because it was so slow when it did run, and because it would not run at all a great deal of the time.

France is to abandon horizon blue for khaki in its army uniforms when the present supply of blue, which is expected to last 10 years more, is exhausted. By that time picturesqueness as opposed to grim utility ought to have a much better claim than during the great war, and horizon blue did very well then.

FINAL PAYMENT DUE THIS MONTH

Fifty Thousand Dollars More Coming from Pacific Livestock Company

The final payment of $50,000 due the state of Oregon from the Pacific Livestock company, as a result of the settlement of the famous Pacific Livestock company land fraud case, will be payable November 10, according to G. G. Brown, clerk of the state land board.

By terms of the settlement of the case, which was engineered by Judge George M. Brown, former attorney general, the Pacific Livestock company agreed to pay the state $125,000 in installments and to throw open for sale 10,000 acres at an appraised value, leaving the remainder of the approximately 40,000 acres in the hands of the livestock company.

The money paid to the state by the company according to the terms of the settlement goes into the irreducible school fund of the state. This fund now aggregates $6,784,177.50 in common school notes, all drawing interest at 6 per cent. Besides this the land board has in the fund $73,000 in cash to which will be added the $50,000 to be paid by the Pacific Livestock company on November 10. The $50,000 also draws interest at 6 per cent pending its payment.

Besides the common school fund the land board has a fund of $173,530 in agricultural college notes, $80,075 in state university notes and $453,728.37 in rural credits loan notes, these funds also drawing 6 per cent interest. The common school, the agricultural college, the university and the rural credits loan funds accrue from the sales of public lands.

Practically all the lands that were involved in the Pacific Livestock suit are located in Harney county. They were alleged to have been obtained from the state by fraud at various times dating as far back as the late '70s.

Under the terms of the settlement the 10,000 acres thrown
